THE BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY is issued by THE F. W. FAXON COMPANY. $3.00 a year. Single numbers, $1.00. Back numbers, over three years old, 25 cents each. [Vols. 1-11 (1897-1923) in cloth, uniformly bound, $33.00. Separate volumes 1 to 10 are $3.00 each; volume 11, $4.00. Cases for binding subscribers' volumes, 50c.

The material in the "Dramatic Index" department of the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY is reprinted annually, with many additions, in one alphabet.

The Dramatic Index (annual) for 1909 to 1922 is issued in separate form, price $7.50 net, each, bound in red buckram.

The special work of THE F. W. FAXON COMPANY is to supply libraries with sets of periodicals — using the term periodical in its broadest sense to cover year-books and the publications of societies, as well as magazines and reviews. The favor of correspondence is requested whenever a periodical set or a part of a set is desired.

THE F. W. FAXON COMPANY also publishes books of reference, bibliographies, and reading lists, — "The Useful Reference Series," "Bulletin of Bibliography Pamphlets," etc. Lists of these may be had on application.

"FAXON SERVICE" in magazine subscriptions for libraries is now available, giving not only reduced prices, but insuring title-pages and indexes, and an expert handling of library lists. Estimates furnished.

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths" in the periodical world. A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited; and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE BULLETIN ADVANCES IN PRICE!

Like almost every other periodical in America, and abroad, the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY is confronted by the ever increasing costs of printing and paper. Since the price was fixed at two dollars a year the cost of manufacture has more than doubled and we are promised another advance by our printer before the end of 1920. Reluctantly we increase the subscription to $3.00, but all subscriptions for 1920 paid before February 1 will be allowed to stand at the old rate.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Azariah Smith Root holds a notable position among the well-known librarians belonging to that generation midway between the pioneers of '76 and the war-made group of 1914 to 1917. He has been heard but little through the world of print, yet his advice and services have for years been in demand wherever library problems were to be solved. Efficient, with a wide knowledge of books, and many years of growth in active library work at the head of the library of Oberlin College, he has served on committees of the American Library Association and has been a leader in the counsels of the Ohio Library Association.

When, by the passing of Miss Plummer, the library school of the New York Public Library needed an acting director, he came to New York and threw himself into that work, having obtained a year's leave of absence from Oberlin.

Mr. Root is, we are proud to say, a Massachusetts boy, born in Middleborough in 1862. He was graduated from Oberlin College in 1884, and made Master of Arts in 1887, the year he became college librarian. He had been a cataloguer there in 1885-86, then studied law in the Harvard law school. But the library profession drew him back and he has been librarian of his college library since 1887,—one of the oldest college librarians in point of service in one library.

He has been professor of bibliography at Oberlin since 1890, is a member of the American Library Institute and Bibliographical Society of America, serving as president of the latter in 1910.

We are glad to give our readers such a good photograph of Mr. Root as our frontispiece, thus adding another to our portrait gallery of notable librarians and bibliographers.

INDEX TO REFERENCE LISTS, 1919

We give in this issue our annual index to Library Reference Lists, compiled as always by the Providence Public Library, in the person of Miss Marian F. Bonner. These very useful lists have been a feature of the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY since 1901. A pamphlet covering 1901 to 1906 inclusive was issued, and copies may still be had. The numbers of this BULLETIN containing subsequent lists are also still available.

CONTEMPORARY POETS

This useful compilation, of which the second installment will be found in this issue, has been reprinted as an eight-page pamphlet, and copies may be had, post free, for 25c.

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Any library which has not had satisfactory results from its subscription agent, or which desires expert "library" service such as "evening up" expiration dates, will find the Faxon service worthy of trial. All subscriptions are placed direct with publishers, and not relayed through magazine agencies. English, French, and Italian periodicals are mailed from publisher direct. Allowance made for favorable rate of foreign exchange.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. The Boardwalk. This is a volume of short stories, of similar theme and setting. The scene is a resort town of the Atlantic coast, not named, but we strongly suspect Asbury Park, since two recent library conventions have put it on the map, so to speak. There are nine stories in the book, dealing with the lives of young people — all-the-year-round residents of the resort.

New York. Harcourt, Brace & Howe. 241 pp. 1920. $1.60 net.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. Winona's Way. Another book in the Camp Fire series, with further adventures of the same group of girls, who have now turned to community work and made the farmhouse a center for the entertainment and uplift of the shop and factory girls of the town. Their success and the joy they found in the work make this the most interesting volume of the series so far.

Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott Co. 304 pp. 1919. $1.30 net.

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS. The Wonder Garden. Here are gathered some 150 tales from all countries, wonder stories, myths retold, delightful for children from 7 to 12 years of age. Then for the use of teachers and librarians an appendix is added arranging these nature stories to follow the seasons through the school year. A subject index helps to locate stories by the name of fruits, flowers, birds, trees, etc. There is a reference list also of nature stories in other books, suitable to read aloud.

Boston. Houghton, Mifflin Co. 476 pp. $2.50 net.

MAGAZINE NOTES

It's contagious! Both our esteemed contemporaries, Library Journal and Public Libraries, have succumbed to the prevailing distemper, and admitted advertising on text pages. Library Journal has in its new fortnightly format reverted to that old habit of its early youth — paging covers and advertising pages as part of the text. Even Garden Magazine, which we commended as a bright and shining example for all good magazines to follow, has after a seven months' trial re-admitted text to its advertising pages.

Ladies' Home Journal for March, 1920, consists of 122 pages and there are just 24 pages entirely given up to text. We really don't much blame poor Mr. Burleson for charging extra postage on advertising.

Dial. The good old Dial since it left Chicago has hardly been itself. One of our librarian friends wrote us not long ago, "We subscribed for Dial, Chicago, but you sent us a New York affair of the same name, which we don't want at all."

After threatening to become a weekly for over a year, the Dial now comes as a full-fledged monthly. The only reminder of the days when it was owned and edited by the Brownes is its new cover — a delicate reminiscent brown. (v. 68, no. 1, Jan. 1920.)

Literary Digest, November 2, 1918

Chapter I

As all observing librarians know Literary Digest issued a printed card to every subscriber in November, 1918, stating that on account of a printers' strike the number for November 2, 1918 was not printed. To make sure we ordered copies for a subscriber and for ourselves. They sent the subscriber a copy of November 9 and wrote us that this issue contained practically all the matter that would have appeared in November 2, including the advertising. So our subscriber then had two issues of November 9, and we to ourselves thought "stupid clerk at publishers."

Then they, in response to our order, wrote us January 8, 1919, "There was no issue of the Literary Digest published on November 2, 1918, owing to a printers' strike, as you will see from reading the enclosed post card which we were obliged to address to our entire mailing list." That seems rather plain and final, and we don't believe anyone would call us erratic when we announced in the BULLETIN that no November 2 was published and wrote some hundred or more librarians who from day to day ordered that number of us, that it was never issued and advised them to bind without it.

Chapter II

The other day a librarian told us she had a copy of November 2, 1918. Knowing there wasn't any such animal we, to ourselves of course, thought "un-observing library assistant." But we were impelled to investigate, and we made a hunt, and found several copies, and they looked perfectly normal in every way. So we wrote the publishers to please explain, and here it is:

"New York, March 8, 1920.

"Dear Mr. Faxon: We are in receipt of your enquiry, and would say in reply that we were able to issue a few copies of November 2, 1918, but could not undertake to get the paper delivered in time to be of very much use to the entire list of our subscribers. We therefore reserved the few copies we were able to print for libraries and subscribers who wished to bind their copies, and therefore wanted the complete series."

We thought then, to ourselves, Those two letters cannot be reconciled, yet we are not dreaming, we have them both before us. Lit. D. should be put away for psychopathic observation.

Chapter III

We are sorry we misled so many, but can you blame us? We now put at the disposal of any library which has not yet bound up the Literary Digest for 1918, what numbers we have accumulated of November 2, 1918, price 25c. each.

THE PRINTING STRIKE OF OCT. 1, 1919

The effects of a strike in the shops where all periodicals published in New York City were printed have been far reaching, and we are going to list for future reference some, at least, of the irregularities and omissions caused thereby.

Although the presses were silent for eight weeks, the strike was not sanctioned by the National Unions of which the New York locals were members, hence many publishers were enabled to employ printers in other cities, and to supply subscribers belated and somewhat changed issues of the magazines. Most of the monthlies were issued for November, December, and January, but from five to two weeks late. The weeklies, however, were harder hit and many were forced to omit issues or to "double-up." Some of the technical serials issued a letter-bulletin each week, thus covering the news of greatest importance to their subscribers — using some form of typewritten duplication process. The Literary Digest got out its regular weekly issues without a break, but the text was typewritten and reproduced by photographic process — a notable and most unusual achievement covering seven weeks' issues. The Scientific American also adopted this plan for six of its issues, and the Independent for three numbers.

When early in December the strikers went back to work, things were so congested by back work that some of the monthlies in order to relieve the situation were obliged to omit issues, or plan for a double issue, — the only possible method of getting back to normal. So the effects of the strike are to be felt until the spring of 1920 is well along. Some subscriptions are extended "automatically," as they call it, to offset the omitted issues, and libraries which desire to have all expirations come on the same date — and its the only really easy way to handle a subscription list — will have to turn for help to the F. W. Faxon Company, as local agents cannot give "library service" in cares of irregularity. (Advertisement.)

We give below some of the antics which publishers were made to perform, and quotations from their remarks — the ones that were fit to print. First let us state that we award the grand first prize for mixing up the subscriber to Good Housekeeping for "combining" January and February, 1920, calling the resulting single number "vol. 70, no. 2, February," there being no January and no vol. 70, no. 1, published.

Second prize goes to Scientific American Supplement for "combining" the October 4 and October 11 issues so that no one without hunting through the text of October 11, would realize that there was no issue for October 4.

In compiling the following "Trouble List" we acknowledge our indebtedness to the New York Public Library for opportunity to read all the "letters" sent out by stricken publishers, and to Boston Public Library for allowing us to examine file records.

F. W. FAXON.

"Bubble, Bubble, Toil and Trouble"

Adventure omits both May 3 and 18, 1920, issues in order to catch up on publication date.

American Architect was able to get out every issue due during the strike period, but they were very late. December 31 was not available until early in February.

American City. October delayed. November was printed out of town. No issues of either edition missed. January, 1920, of the City edition was received by subscribers about January 27. On February 6 the January Town and County edition came.

American Economist "failed of publication October 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, November 7, 14, 21, 1919."

American Grocer published only two numbers in November and two in December, making v. 102 complete in 21 numbers.

American Lawn Tennis. October 15th issue mailed December 8th, but no issues skipped.

American Machinist issued a typewritten 2-page news-letter October 9, 16, 23, but later caught up on issues by publishing November 13 to 27, and November 27 to December 4, as two numbers.

Architecture and Building. October and November, 1919, omitted, but December was "more than a double number" to compensate, so no subscription extension was made.

Asia. October was printed out of New York, but all issues were published though somewhat late.

Bon Ton, Le. No January, 1920, was published.

Bookman issued November-December as a double number.

Bradstreet's Journal for the first time in forty years had to break the continuity of the weekly issues and omitted October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 1, 8, 15, 22, 1919.

Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering became a weekly October 1, but issues were late in appearing. Meantime an emergency bulletin was issued October 8 and October 22.

Christian Advocate, "for the first time in its existence of nearly 100 years, finds itself without pressmen." October 16, 23, 30 were omitted.

Christian Herald. "The strike conditions after making several of our issues late, have prevented the printing of a full edition of September 27 and October 4, or any of our October 11. It is necessary to omit October 11. This will be made up to you later."

Churchman "has been compelled temporarily to suspend publication. Out of 152 periodicals published in New York City, 120 are supporting the position of the employing printers in suspending issue until strike is settled." October 4, 11, 18, November 1, 8, were omitted.

Club Worker omitted December, numbering irregular, October, 1919, being v. 19, no. 2; November, v. 19 no. 9; January, 1920, v. 20, no. 1; February, v. 19 no. 5.

Coal Age. Six letters were sent subscribers during the weeks of strike, and later all issues were published, though some were late. November 13-20, November 27-December 4, December 11-18, were doubled up.

Colliers' Weekly omitted October 11, 18, 25, November 1, and December 27.

Commercial and Financial Chronicle. No issues were omitted, but those of the strike period, except that for September 27, were mailed from two to four days late. September 27 was issued November 28.

Contracting omitted October and November.

Cosmopolitan. February, 1920, was omitted.

Current Opinion. November, 1919, was omitted.

Dial. The issues of October 4 and following were delayed by the strike, and no December issues were put out. Dial became a monthly, January, 1920.

Dun's Review. "The strike has interfered with our publication and we have been unable to get out any issues since September 27 until October 4, and nothing after that until November 29. Issues between those dates have been abandoned." (Sounds like our New England train service in February, 1920. F.)

Economic World omitted October 4 to December 17 inclusive.

Electric Railway Journal published and mailed weekly letters October 4, 11, 18, 25, and later made up all issues, combining November 15 and 22, and November 29–December 6–December 13 in two numbers.

Electrical World. Sent out weekly letters in October, and on November 1, but later issued all numbers, combining the last week in October and first and second weeks in November as v. 74, no. 17. No. 18 covered the second and third weeks in November and no. 19 was for last week in November and first week in December.

Engineering and Mining Journal issued a Bulletin for each week of October, and November 1, 8, 15, and later issued all numbers. No. 19 was for second and third week in November. No. 20 covered last two weeks in November, others were single.

Engineering News-Record issued Bulletins October 16, 23, 30, November 6, but had to "suspend publication from the beginning of October until the middle of November. When we resumed our work in November we began publishing issues which were missed because of the strike. October 2 was marked November 11"; and other issues followed from week to week. October 30–November 6 was combined in one number as were November 13–20, November 27–December 4, and December 11–18. "By combining these issues we could publish our regular schedule in January, 1920."

Field and Fancy omitted issues from October 1 to November 1, and November 15 and 22.

Forum issued vol. 62, nos. 4–5 (October–November, 1919), as a double number.

Fur Trade Review was unable to publish an October number.

Geographical Review. October–November, 1919, was a double number, issued in February, 1920.

Good Housekeeping. "January and February will be combined and sent out as the February issue." It was so done, but it is a single issue called "vol. 70, no. 2, February, 1920," and there is no vol. 70, no. 1. So don't hunt for it.

Graphite combined November and December issues as nos. 11–12.

Harper's Bazar for November, 1919, was omitted, so December became no. 11, and no number 12 was published.

Hearst's Magazine. February and March, 1920, were "combined" and issued as March (v. 37, no. 2). There was no separate February, March looks just like a single number.

Home Sector was forced to omit its weekly issues of October 18 to December 6 (eight weeks in all), but numbering was consecutive. It ceased publication with the issue of April 17, 1920 (vol. 2, no. 16).

Independent. No copies for October 11, 18, 25, November 22, December 6, 1919, were published. November 22 was combined with November 29, December 6 was combined in December 13. Subscriptions were extended one month. November 1, 8, 15 issues were published by typewriting the text and photographing the pages.

International Studio. "January–February, 1920, will be a double number to help in relieving the printing congestion due to the strike." It was not published until the middle of March.

Iron Age. "Issues from October 9 to November 20 inclusive were not printed, but Emergency Market Bulletins were mailed each week to our subscribers.

These Bulletins should be bound to take the place of the issues we did not publish."

Jewelers' Circular. Vol. 51 skipped after the first issue of October to the middle of November, but numbering was consecutive, the volume being complete in twenty numbers.

Judge. January 17 and 24, 1920, came out as one issue, and also January 31 and February 7. During the strike no issues were missed, Judge being printed in Chicago. "Subscribers are asked to refrain from sending unnecessary complaints."

Leslies' Weekly. "Issues of December 13–20–27 were combined into one number, also the issues of January 3 and 10, January 17 and 24, and March 27 and April 3. Subscriptions automatically extended."

"All our copies of November 29, 1919, were minus pages 815–818 — reason being printers' strike."

Liberator published no November, 1919, issue.

Library Journal. The October, 1919, number was partly printed and copies mailed to the distant zones. The remainder of the subscribers got October in late November. No issues were omitted.

Life. No issue of December 11 was published. The strike delayed all the October issues after that of the second. October 9 was not issued until after October 16 had been mailed. Charles Dana Gibson purchased Life in March, 1920, for, it is said, $900,000, thus becoming proprietor of the magazine which made him famous.

Literary Digest for October 18, 25, November 1, 8, 15, 22, 29 came in the unique form of typewritten text photographed and plated. No typesetters were needed therefore.

McCall's Magazine issued no January number for 1920.

McClure's doubled up March–April, 1920.

Maccabean Magazine. On October 8th this notice was sent subscribers, "Should the strike continue until the latter part of this month, the next issue will be a combined enlarged October–November, 1919, number.

Masonic Standard omitted October and November issues (nine weeks).

Nation. October 11 and following numbers though delayed were finally issued. "This is the first time since 1865 that Nation has failed to appear on time."

New Republic resumed regular publication with November 12 issue, having missed October 15, 22, 29, November 5.

Optical Journal and Review of Optometry. "October 1st the printing plants of New York City stopped work, causing the suspension of 250 periodicals. We were forced to suspend beginning with our issue of October 2." Omitted all November.

Our Hope, on October 28, sent out to its subscribers a card, "For over two weeks the printers of New York City are on a strike. As we write (October 15) the situation is unchanged. Our Hope for November cannot be published. It is one of 156 other periodicals which share the same fate. December will be a double number. . . . All this has been a great trouble to us and we need your prayers and help in this matter."

Outlook "is compelled temporarily to suspend publication." October 5, 15, 22, November 5, 19, 1919, were omitted, but the sequence of numbering vol. 123 was kept unbroken, there being five less numbers in the complete volume than usual.

Paper Mill and Wood Pulp News. "For the first time in forty-one years we have been compelled to suspend." October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2 were not issued.

Paper Trade Journal omitted the first week in October, vol. 69, no. 14, giving no indication anywhere that an issue had been skipped.

Popular Science Monthly skipped November, 1919. December and January were issued from Chicago and as the press available there was an 11-inch one, and the magazine plate, 12 inches, the number of the page usually appearing at the bottom of each page was cut off. So December and January are unique in that they are unpagged magazines.

Power issued Bulletins October 14, 21, 28, November 4, but later got out all its unissued issues; but October 14 was called November 22, the date of its issue; and October 21 appeared December 1st. October 28-November 4, November 11-18, November 25-December 2-9, December 16-23-30 were the combined issues published in the catching up process, thus there were only 21 numbers in vol. 50.

Public was killed by the strike, having omitted issues of October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 8, and died with the issue of December 6; subscriptions were taken over by the New Republic.

Publishers Weekly issued September 27, 1919, as usual, and October 4 was under way when the strike started. Publication was suspended until October 25 (v. 96, no. 14), which was printed at Nyack, N. Y. The edition was short so the number was photographed and the rest sent out a week later. During the time of suspension, two mimeograph Bulletins were sent out, and a pamphlet "Selling Talks" covering the advertisements. The weekly record of new books was cumulated and given in November 1st issue, from Nyack, two weeks late. November 15 and 22 were also about a fortnight late. "Bookshelf for Boys and Girls" was issued as a Supplement to Library Journal [and to Publishers Weekly] and should be bound in place of the three issues of Publishers' Weekly skipped. It was printed in Pittsfield, Mass. November 29 was the Christmas Bookshelf issue and printed in Albany and mailed November 29."

Railway Age was delayed in issue after September 26, 1919, the subsequent weekly issues all coming out, but between the issues of September 26 and October 3 (which was printed November 19th) there were issued four emergency Bulletins of four pages each (October 6, 13, 20, Nov. 6), the first two unpagged, the others pagged into vol. 64 as pp. 667-674, and 8 pages (659-666) were left out to accommodate the two unpagged Bulletins preceding and make the sequence of pagination complete.

Scientific American in its issue of October 25, 1919, said: "This week's issue comes to the public in a condition resembling that of the gentleman who finds his clothes mysteriously missing after taking a dip in the river, and who is forced to pursue his homeward way clad in a barrel." The issues of October 25, November 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29 were typewritten and the pages photographed and plated.

Scientific American Supplement omitted October 4, combined October 18 in the number for October 25, and merged November 1 in November 8, thus practically omitting three issues, October 4, 18, November 1. All later issues were published a month late, December 27 coming on January 23, 1920, and December 27 was the final issue. The Scientific American Monthly was born January, 1920, (vol. 1, no. 1).

Silk. "Well we're being initiated. Anyway that's the way it feels. Fact is we've been reading and writing so much about other people's strike troubles that we got sort of feeling that we were somehow inoculated against the darn bug. Then blooie! the pressmen in New York walked out on October 1st. And so here we are, or rather aint. At any rate we belong now to the honorable order of strike-stricken." From circular dated October 17 which also carried a typewritten list of classified advertisements. All issues were finally published.

Stratford Journal, Boston. "October-December will be a composite number ready soon. Delay and doubling up caused by trouble in the printing trade." Letter from Publisher, Jan. 29, 1920.

Struggling Russia struggled as follows: October 4 was delayed, then numbers 30-32, 33-36, 38-40, 42-43 were combined to catch up.

Suffragist, Washington, D. C., got out no issue after September 29, 1919, until February, 1920, when it became a monthly.

Survey was forced to omit October 11, 18, November 1, and December 6, 1919, but the issues of October 4, 25, November 8, 15, 22, 29, December 13 bear consecutive numbers 1 to 7 of vol. 43. No extension of subscription allowed unless especially requested, as Survey claims to give service, not a stated 52 issues a year.

Textile World Journal was obliged to suspend, and issued Bulletins October 11, 18, 25, November 1 and 8, and then later having moved its force to Boston, transporting by motor truck over-land plates and paper, issued from here the numbers for October 4 (published November 8); October 11-18, double number (issued November 15); October 25 (published November 22). Then from New York were sent out double numbers November 1-8 on November 29; November 15-22 on December 6; November 29-December 6 on December 13; December 13-20 on December 20, this bringing the issues up to date again. All these issues were plainly marked on the back with the real dates and the issue date as well. "Awarded First Prize for the best and clearest notice of irregularity." F. W. F.

Touchstone did not issue any November, 1919, number.

Vogue. "40,000 copies of Vogue now in press cannot be completed and mailed. So soon as the strike ceases we will resume publishing. In the meantime if you do not get your October 15th copy on time, or if you do not get it at all, or if you fail to get succeeding numbers, please do not write us about it. Thousands of our subscribers will write us anyhow and we'll have to answer them all, explaining that we can't supply magazines we haven't got. If you are a friend of ours don't add to our troubles. Please help us out, we're going to need it." Publishers' card dated October 7, 1919.

(Note: We understand that finally all issues were mailed, tho' we refrained from writing the publisher. F. W. F.)

Wohelo. No October or November issues published. Vol. 7, no. 3, was September; vol. 7, no. 4, was December, 1919.

Woman Citizen. No issues between October 4 and November 15; no issue November 22 or November 29.

World Outlook. All issues were published, though October came out December 15, November on January 30, December on February 11, and January, 1920, on January 30.

(Note: This story of World Outlook will apply also to almost any monthly published in New York City. We have not listed them, as this record is for future generations of bindery department assistants, and they wont care a hoot whether Century for November came out early in December, or late in October.)

Yachting. November, December, 1919, were not received by at least one subscriber, but we can't get any reply from them regarding the apparent omission.

P. S. Yachting sent a printed card out November 6: "Impossible to produce November, 1919, issue. Subscriptions will be extended one month or for the number of issues missed."

Further irregularities will be gratefully received and published in our next issue.

THE IMAGISTS AND RADICALS

Miss Amy Lowell says, 'The Imagist movement means a re-discovery of beauty in our modern world, and the originality and honesty to affirm that beauty in whatever manner is native to the poet.' This affirmation may be in vers libre or not, but the rhythm employed must express the thot and mood of the poet; the diction must be exact, not merely decorative words; the poem as a whole must be concentrated, clear, hard, and clean cut.

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths" in the periodical world. A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited; and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

THE BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY

We have decided that the only way the increased costs of printing and paper can be met this year is to make three issues instead of four, thus saving the cost of one mailing, and the price of one cover. We are giving extra pages in each issue, so that the total pages for the year will be practically the same as in 1919.

We hope soon to be able to resume the quarterly issue.

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Renewals for 1921 should, if possible, be placed in September this year. These are abnormal times, and we believe better service can be had by an early renewal before the publishers are swamped with orders.

In some cases a saving can be made, where a raise in price is later to come.

If you have not had satisfactory service from your agent, let the Faxon Company place your list for 1921. They specialize on library subscription lists, and can help you over many troubles.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

This time we are glad to show our readers an excellent photograph of Raymond C. Davis, who for many years was librarian of the University of Michigan. The short account of his life by Mr. Bishop, the present University librarian, will be found another interesting addition to the early history of American libraries, as revealed by the lives of these pioneers.

LEADERSHIP IN A DEMOCRACY

The sixth volume of The National Institute of Social Sciences Journal will be ready in September. It is devoted to the one topic, "Leadership in a Democracy," and contains five essays on that important and timely subject. The authors are James M. Beck, Alleyne Ireland, Harry Pratt Judson, Frederick A. Cleveland, Emory R. Johnson.

Bound in cloth. F. W. Faxon Co., Boston. Complete sets of vol. 1-5 also available in cloth to match, $17.00.

DRAMATIC INDEX

The Indexes are now all in type and we hope to send them out to all subscribers in September. May conditions so improve that 1920 can be published on time.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Ajax is "a monthly magazine for lovers of literature" and published at Alton, Illinois. Vol. 5, no. 6, has come to our table and is dated thus: "April, 1919, (delayed issue, published May, 1920)." We admire the frankness of this publisher and hope he will catch up in time. The magazine is entirely devoted to poems and, the contents having no temporal appeal, there is no necessity of keeping up-to-date in issue, when the publisher is so busy about other matters. Why have any date on it at all, that would obviate a lot of bother answering letters about delayed issue!

Annals of Iowa, April, 1920, has come in its smiling yellow cover again, having failed to appear from October, 1915, until now on account of the world war. Third series, vol. 12, no. 3, was October, 1915; vol. 12, no. 4, is April, 1920. We are glad the publisher makes it very clear right on the cover that so many years were skipped. Others should take a lesson from this careful man, — bless him.

Builders' Journal, Boston, is a new candidate for support in the building field, and is a monthly worthy of patronage by all interested. The publishers are known by the very high standard they have kept in The Architectural Forum, their other and widely known monthly. Vol. 1, no. 1, May, 1920, $2.00 a year.

These are the days of historical reviews, and a delightfully interesting one is the new series of the Review of historical publications relating to Canada, called The Canadian Historical Review, vol. 1, no. 1, March, 1920. It is a quarterly at $2.00 yearly. About half the issue is devoted to reviews of books. It will be added to our Magazine Subject-Index.

Engineering Production is a new British monthly published by Iliffe & Sons, Ltd., of London. Vol. 1, no. 1, was January, 1920. Quarto size, fully illustrated. We commend it to large American libraries.

The Family (vol. 1, no. 1, March, 1920) is the new charity organ of the now-called "American Association for Organizing Family Social Work." We wonder why all the associations and periodicals covering the field formerly called Charity are afraid longer to use that word in their titles. Charities became Survey several years ago. National Conference for Charities and Correction, is now National Conference for Social Work. Old associations are now known by new names! — the "Family Welfare Association" of Baltimore (Federated charities); "Bureau of Social Work," Hamilton, Ohio, (Federated charities); "Kenosha Service League" (Associated charities); "Community Service Association" of Lancaster, Pa. (Charity society); "Public Welfare Association" of Madison (Associated charities); "Social Service Bureau" of Muncie, Ind. (Associated charities); "Social Service Federation" of Toledo (Federation of charities").

Bowling Green, Ohio, is the recreative spot which gave birth to our latest historical magazine. Guess what mental process a would-be-historical-periodical-publisher goes through, or into, when deciding on a name that won't conflict with some other magazine's title. "Magazine of American History" was a good one, and caused the real successor to use "Magazine of History" as some outsider had grabbed the old title a few months too soon. "Journal of History," "Historical Magazine," and "American Historical Magazine" have been used, as well as "American Historical Review," and "American Historical Register." "The Magazine of Western History" became "National Magazine" before its ignominious death. "Historical Outlook" is a good name for the "History Teacher's Magazine." What did Bowling Green, Ohio, do? "The National Magazine of American History" is the all-inclusive name chosen. Vol. 1, no. 1, January, 1920. The contents cover short pieces under such heads as "Historical comment," and "Selections and writings on early American history."

Printer's Ink, that little pigmy of a weekly magazine, has a big overgrown illustrated brother, Printer's Ink Monthly, born December, 1919, and doing nicely; — so nicely that demands for early issues can't be filled any more. Only $2.00 a year, too. Such should be encouraged, even if the poor agents are allowed no commission on subscriptions to it.

The Red Flame that is Burning the Heart Out of North Dakota began its career in November, 1919, and is a vivid protest against the so-called "Farmer's movement" that has gained control of the State government for a few radicals. The name appeals to us. Why not change Harvey's Weekly to "The man that is spoiling the United States."

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

LOCKE, G. H. When Canada was new France. This delightful little history-book, intended for children, but enjoyable to any person no matter whether old or young, tells the vivid, wonderful history of Canada during the two hundred years when it was so closely connected with the France of Henry of Navarre, and England of the Tudors. It is illustrated with Indian pictures, — reproductions of the Iroquois Indian groups which form the Myron H. Clark Memorial in the Museum at Albany. The last two chapters are lists of stories and poems which illustrate references in the book.

Toronto. J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd. 154 pp. 1919. Cloth, $1.25.

JASTROW, MORRIS, JR. The Eastern Question and its Solution. A small volume by one whose knowledge of the East gives him a right to a careful hearing as he sets forth America's interest in the right settlement of the Eastern question. His chapters are entitled: The failure of European diplomacy in the Near East; The present situation; Mandates not a solution; Internationalism as a solution of the Eastern question.

Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott Co. 153 pp. and map. 1920. Cloth, $1.50.

CLELAND, ETHEL, compiler. Five hundred business books, with an introduction by John Cotton Dana. The remarkable growth in the number of books on business, and for business men, and about business methods is one of the noticeable developments in the publishers' lists of recent years. There are already several "lists" of these business books available. The one before us is divided into General business; Commerce; Finance; Bookkeeping, accounting, and auditing; Factory organization; Advertising; Office practice; Salesmanship; Retail trade; Insurance. It has at the end an author and subject index, and publishers' directory.

Oct. 1, 1919. Washington, D. C. American Library Association, Library War Service. 72 pp. Paper.

SAYERS, W. C. BERWICK. Manual of Library Economy, by the late James Duff Brown. Third and memorial edition revised and rewritten by W. C. Berwick Sayers. A most valuable treatise for the English librarian, revised by a competent hand. Of interest also to all American librarians for the great number of hints and descriptions of appliances it gives. The field is fully covered, from sites and plans, shelving and accessories, furniture, down through Book selection, Accessions, Classification schemes, Cataloguing, Book display, Filing and indexing, Binding, Issue methods, Book distribution. There are chapters on Reading room, Children's department, The library and the school, Rural libraries. Appendix II gives a list of books for The librarian's library or the required tools of the profession. It is unfortunately not entirely up-to-date, there being no mention of the Bulletin of Bibliography, which since 1897 has been full of material and reference lists of value to librarians and which is on the list of periodicals to be included in the Library Association "Index to Periodicals." Furthermore, the many publications of The Boston Book Co. on library economy are since 1918 issued under the imprint of The F. W. Faxon Co., and should have been so listed. G. O. Ward's book on "The practical use of books and libraries" is now in the third edition (1917), revised and enlarged, and Mr. Ward has issued in 1919 a new and companion book entitled "Suggestive outlines and methods for teaching the use of the library." Dr. A. E. Bostwick would hardly be recognized as "Bostock," and William Isaac Fletcher appears as W. J. Fletcher. A revised edition of Fay-Eaton, "Instruction in the use of books and libraries" was issued in 1919, superseding the one noted by Mr. Sayers. Under Periodical Indexes, Poole's Index seems still to be alive, tho' dead these 14 years, and no mention is made of Magazine Subject-Index, 1907 to date, or Reader's Guide Supplement, or Industrial Arts Index.

London, Grafton & Co., New York, H. W. Wilson Co. 1920. 519 pp. Cloth, $5.00 in America, 25 shillings in Great Britain.

GUTHRIE, ANNA L., compiler. Index to St. Nicholas, vols. 1-44, 1873-1918. The bringing up to date of the St. Nicholas index, in one alphabet, dictionary form, is a boon to all librarians, especially where work with children is done. A storehouse of information on all subjects is now easily accessible by the use of this book of 479 pages just issued by the H. W. Wilson Co. of New York. It is sold on the Wilson service plan, price according to the use made of it, small libraries getting it for less than large ones.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 479 pp. 1920. Cloth.

CUSHMAN, JOSEPHINE A. The Rubber Industry. A useful, 21-page pamphlet has just been issued by Josephine A. Cushman, associate librarian of the Municipal University of Akron (Ohio) entitled, "A special library for the rubber industry." It is the first of a series of "Faculty-studies" of this University, and is very timely in a city where so great a part of the business is devoted to rubber manufacture.

Akron, Ohio. The Municipal University of Akron. 21 pp. 1920.

From the press of H. W. Wilson Co., we note the following new books:

PHELPS, EDITH M., compiler. Selected articles on the American Merchant Marine. 2d and enlarged edition. (Debater's Handbook Series.)

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 344 pp. 1920. Cloth, $1.50.

JOHNSEN, JULIA E., compiler. Selected articles on the employment of women. Compiled by Edna D. Bullock, second and enlarged edition by Julia E. Johnsen. (Debater's Handbook Series.)

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 214 pp. 1920. Cloth, $1.25.

BACON CORINNE, compiler. Children's Catalog, Supplement, 1916-1919. This replaces the 1918 supplement, so that there will be but one place to refer to, after consulting the 1916 catalog, in order to be up-to-date. This new supplement covers 700 books, with analytical entries for 104 volumes. At the end of the volume will be found supplementary lists on: — Aids to story-telling, List of French books for boys and girls, Books on European War for high school boys and girls, and List of books analyzed.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 108 pp. 1919. Paper, 60c.

XXVI

RAYMOND CAZALLIS DAVIS, 1836-1919

BY W. W. BISHOP

To the older generation of librarians Raymond Davis of the University of Michigan was a familiar name and to many a warm friend. To a generation of students at Michigan he was both. His kindly presence, his modest ways, his friendly thought followed them long after they left the University and its library behind them. His was a life of service, unpretentious, devoted, steadfast. He lived in and for his library, and into it he built something of his rugged honesty, his rigid standards of excellence, his public spirit. He "kept the faith" amid difficulties and against odds. And on his foundation his successors have built large because of his labors.

The facts of his life are few and simple. Born the son of a sea captain in Maine, trained in rural "academies" of the severe New England type, gaining experience (and losing health) in a marvelous voyage around the world on his father's ship, educated at the University of Michigan (where he should have graduated with the class of 1859 but for illness which prevented), first assistant librarian and then (in 1877) librarian. A continuous service from that year until 1905, and a term as librarian emeritus until 1919. This is the record, the "short and simple annals" of a typical American scholar of his day.

He was too burdened with work and with precarious health to be a voluminous contributor to professional literature, but he found time to share in the compilation of Poole's Index and to write occasionally for the library press. He lectured in bibliography down until a few years before his death, and had ready for the press an extensive book in the history of the book-arts when the long and painful illness which finally caused his death stopped all literary work in 1917.

It is as a man that we who knew and loved him shall remember him. His friendship still counts in the lives of many librarians and of many more alumni of his college. He did his share of the world's work, but he was himself greater than any of his achievements.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY

READING ROOM FOR THE BLIND, DETROIT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Through the joint efforts of the Detroit Public Library and the Committee on the Handicapped, of the Detroit Community Union, more intensive and extensive library service for the Blind is being attempted.

Since the establishment of a special reading room for blind people at Lothrop Branch Library in May, 1919, the circulation of books among the Blind has almost doubled.

In the selection of books and in the fitting up of the reading-room, the special needs of the Blind have been well considered, so that the reading-room is becoming a real factor in their lives. As nearly as possible, they are given the same advantages of book service as are more fortunate people with eyesight.

The idea of the librarian in charge, a person who has been associated with the Blind since childhood, is that they should not be made objects of charity, but be given the chance to overcome their handicap so that they can live normal, busy, interested, independent lives. They are taught to read the blind type, furnished books so that they can follow up their special interests, helped in research work. Questions are looked up and answered as in any reference department, and telephone information service is given. The Committee on the Handicapped has supplied the room with typewriters and has conducted classes in typewriting; it has also furnished a teacher for those learning to read the blind type.

The reading-room has been fitted up with chairs, tables, and pictures to make it seem pleasant and familiar. A social evening is held once a week with tea talk and group reading. The Saturday evening gathering is quite popular and the reading aloud, usually something light or of general interest, and the discussion which feature the event, afford a good opportunity to introduce new books and new ideas.

In the selection of new books, the preference of the blind patrons is favored, a small committee from among them being asked to choose new titles.

Most of the books borrowed are asked for over the telephone and are sent out by parcel post, the mail carrier stopping at the library three times a week. The librarian has negotiated with the postal department for return parcel post service, i.e., for the carrier to stop at the homes of the blind for parcels of books to be returned to the library. This will be a special boon for that large percentage of the Blind who are timorous about venturing out in the streets as far as a parcel post station.

All privileges of interlibrary loans are available for the blind. If a blind person asks for a book which the Detroit Library cannot supply in blind type, the librarian arranges to borrow it from some other library. The request may be telephoned by the blind person to Lothrop Branch, and the book ordered from another library be delivered finally at the reader's door. For those who have not yet learned to read Braille or Point, the librarian is organizing a corps of readers to visit at their homes and read aloud. The blind person telephones the library and makes an appointment for some one to read to him, and one of the volunteer assistants keeps the appointment. This is the latest form of extension of library work for the Blind.

	Vols. 8-10, each . . . .	4.00
	Single numbers over two years old	.25

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths" in the periodical world. A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited; and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, 1921

Owing to the difficulties of issuing an unsubsidized journal, this number becomes our "Happy New Year" greeting to library friends. We wish all the best of all good things for 1921.

We hope to issue soon a helpful little book containing two bibliographies—one on Fiction pertaining to the Great War, the other, Personal narratives of the War. These two compilations seemed so nearly akin as to suggest their grouping in one book, a "useful reference" volume for libraries.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO MAGAZINES LIBRARY SERVICE

We have for twenty-one years specialized in periodicals, making up complete files and supplying missing parts to librarians' files. In 1918, believing that we could give a "library service" in "futures" as well as in back numbers, our subscription department was organized.

It has grown in two years and a half to rank among the larger agencies, but we still adhere to our early plans:—

Library subscriptions exclusively, booked with our knowledge of library needs.

Subscriptions placed direct with publishers, not through other agents, thus avoiding many chances of error.

The Loose title and index problem cared for, but not by the use of a rubber stamp.

Prices as low as possible to allow of "service."

An immense stock of back numbers available to replace missed or lost issues.

We are the only agency carrying any back numbers. This should be a special point with librarians. We necessarily have to "estimate" to get much of our business, but there are many ways we can be of assistance throughout the year to those who give us their subscription business "till forbidden." We then know in advance what to do, can take advantage of announced increases in price before the new rate is effective, withhold payment on doubtful magazines behind in issue, until they approach normal again, or die, leaving us with library money still available for refund.

We can, knowing we shall have your 1922 renewals, give you benefit of two-year rates, even though the library cannot pay for but a year at a time.

On one list we saved nearly twenty-five dollars by renewing periodicals ahead of time for 1921. Contrast this with the library whose list, put up for "bids" in late November, we lost to another agency by two dollars.

"The lowest responsible bidder, even to a cent, will get the contract. We play no favorites, so it is up to you,"—was the kindly way one list came to us, and we had no incentive to cut prices on that one. Again, on English and French subscriptions (we do not yet try to handle German) we have to quote or bill in advance on a rate of exchange which we believe will be sure to hold while we are paying our foreign bills. Then when all are paid we make a rebate adjustment to cover any gain made by rate of exchange, if it should remain below our estimate.

Here again the list we have without an estimate has the advantage. We bid on one English list last year and lost by five dollars, because the lowest bidder had to be chosen. Yet on a regular "till forbidden" list of foreign subscriptions we, in January, made refund amounting to over sixty dollars, and the small list we lost by five dollars would have received eleven back had it not been put out to bids.

"Bids" and "Service" are bad bedfellows. Service may cost more — on your bill, — but does it really?

OUR FRONTISPIECE

CAROLINE M. HEWINS OF HARTFORD

Among the librarians of the United States, Miss Hewins has for many years held an eminent position and been dearly beloved by all, both old and young. West Roxbury, now a part of Boston, was her birthplace, and very early, from a home where the best literature had been always ready for her reading, she found congenial place as assistant in the Boston Athenæum. This experience, and some years of teaching in private schools, laid the foundation of a library career in Hartford, where since 1875 she has been the head of the public library work of the city. From 1875 to 1892 she was librarian of the Hartford Library Association, which in 1892 became the Public Library, of which she has been the chief since its establishment.

Here fame came to her among our pioneer library workers, and especially did she succeed in her work for the children. Knowing the joy she had found as a girl in the best books, she labors with untiring zeal and great success to bring to other, less fortunate, children the blessings of contact with real books.

In 1879 she joined the American Library Association, of which she is now a life member and a past Vice-President. She has served as Councilor for many years, and has been for a long time secretary of the Connecticut Public Library Commission.

She is a member also of the American Library Institute. An authority always on children's books, she is the author of "Books for the Young" and "Books for Boys and Girls." It is probably true that no list or bibliography on Juvenile literature has been compiled during the last thirty years without the helpful advice of Miss Hewins, either in person or through her writings.

Hartford has been added to the library map of the world, largely through the reputation of its public librarian. Those of us who have been privileged to partake of afternoon tea in the spacious, yet cosy, homelike office of Miss Hewins have a memory to treasure always.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Since our last issue, there have been fewer changes in size and make-up among the periodicals than for a long time. Evidently our efforts in these columns are having a good effect on the publishers. But we have less to write about, so in the interest of future "copy" let us this time say but little.

Iowa Library Quarterly has a new and startling idea. Its April-May-June, 1920, quarterly issue was published in three "Part Numbers" as they are called, each entitled vol. 8, no. 14, but all three paged consecutively. Why not have called one "April," the next "May," and the third "June."

Journal of Religion is the new name, beginning in January, 1921, of the Biblical World, into which at the time of change of name the American Journal of Theology will be merged. We believe that is the best way to record the coming change to be made by the University of Chicago Press in two of its periodicals.

National Geographic Magazine has wobbled about a good bit in its subscription price of late. Formerly $2.50 ($2.00 to members and libraries), it went up like most of the rest, first to $3.00, then to $4.00, and then to $4.50. But before we had time to refund, or get the extra money from our subscribers, it announced a cut from $4.50 to $4.00. Those guys don't seem to care a heck how much billhead paper, envelopes, and bookkeeping we do for them free. $4.00 is the rate now. If you paid us more, we'll refund — on request. If you paid us less — never mind — it's a splendid day isn't it, so mild for this time of year.

The "Cosmopolitan group" so-called, of which most librarians know only Good Housekeeping, after raising prices to almost prohibitive heights, have announced a "club" plan by which two or more of 'em can be had ever-so-much less. Pictorial Review has joined this "club" family, too. Don't you believe they found the last raise had cut circulation too much. It looks sort o' so.

Texas Libraries has our humble apology for announcing its premature death with vol. 2, no. 4, July, 1917. It was not allowed to die as it had determined to do, for here before us is vol. 3, no. 3, January, 1920. It was resuscitated in July, 1919.

The Librarian and Book World has had a vacation or rather "holiday" and now comes back smiling to its labors — we fancy we should spell it "labours." Vol. 10, no. 1, was August-September, 1919; vol. 10, no. 2, is October, 1920.

The Army Quarterly, London, replaces the United Service Magazine of ancient lineage, which died in June, 1920. Just two years from that armistice which was to end war for all time and make armies obsolete, there comes forth a lusty infant which will devote its life to the interest of armies! 224 pages in vol. 1, no. 1 (Oct. 1920), is a good beginning.

Mother and Child, "a magazine concerned with their health," is the name of a new periodical (vol. 1, no. 1, June, 1920), published by the American Child Hygiene Association. It was started at $2.00 a year, 25 cents a number. With January, 1921, it becomes a monthly, at $5.00 a year. Free to members (whose dues are $5.00 a year).

The Park International is a newcomer of beautiful make-up which deals with the development and enjoyment of park areas, public and private. Vol. 1, no. 1, is July, 1920, and it is bi-monthly. The illustrations from all parts of the world, including, of course, Boston, are beautiful.

Independent. The power of library influence, when indignation is justly aroused, has been well shown in the matter of Independent's curious decision that all subscribers should pay fifty cents for its 1921 titles and indexes. Why?—Because certain binders had abused the free privilege by asking for hundreds of indexes, not needed. We had many of these circulars remailed to us by indignant subscribers and advised drastic action, such as a letter stating subscription was canceled unless title and index were furnished. It was not long before Independent issued another notice to the effect that they were surprised at the value placed on indexes, and that every subscriber should have them free provided notice of such desire was filed before January 15th, as only enough to meet such requests would be printed. We have sent in a list of all our subscribers, and also purchased some extra sets to protect future customers, but of course we shall have to charge for these extra copies.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

BAY, J. CHRISTIAN. Echoes of Robert Louis Stevenson. This little book of less than a hundred narrow pages gives the reader a new interest in Stevenson, the humanist. Mr. Bay shows by excerpt and quotation the clear, virile mind of the weary-of-body exile. Quotations from unpublished letters emphasize the grim determination of the man to live his life in his own way and, in spite of physical handicap, to support himself unaided.

The personal character of all Stevenson's writings is brought out; it is his voice speaking to our ears, not his pen writing that which our eyes may read.

The book closes with three appendices:—The cry of Mataafa; Three poems in memory of R. L. S.; and a Facsimile of Stevenson's letter in Latin, "Latine scribere mihi nunc jucundum est."

Chicago. Walter M. Hill. 98 pp., small octavo, 1920. 500 copies printed.

JASTROW, MORRIS. The Book of Job, its origin, growth, and interpretation, together with a new translation based on a revised text. This work, like the author's previous book noticed in these pages (The Gentle Cynic; the Book of Ecclesiatics), brings new light to bear on the so-called literary masterpieces of the Bible. Dr. Jastrow has for many years made a study of the sources of the story, and here gives a version deviating greatly from all former English translations. The first portion of this volume now before us is devoted to a discussion of the origin, growth, and interpretation of the Book of Job.

Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott Co. 369 pp. $4.00.

From the H. W. Wilson Co. we have received the following new books:

2,400 BUSINESS BOOKS AND GUIDE TO BUSINESS LITERATURE. Compiled by Linda H. Morley, and Adelaide C. Kight, under the direction of John Cotton Dana of the Newark Public Library.

This is much more than a third edition of "1,600 Business Books," as not only have 7,000 new entries been added, but analytical entries for different trades have been included. All material of value has been brought out under such headings as Encyclopedias and dictionaries; Tables, formulae, etc.; Sources of information; Prices; Index numbers, etc.

New York. 1920. H. W. Wilson Co. 456 pp. $5.00.

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR E. Library Essays: papers related to the work of public libraries.

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR E. A Librarian's Open Shelf: essays on various subjects.

These two goodly books will be welcomed by librarians everywhere. They represent the very active life of Dr. Bostwick—in one volume his papers bearing upon library work, in the companion volume his writings on matters outside the boundaries of a librarian's profession, yet many of these essays bear upon libraries, or books.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co., 1920. $3.00 each, or both for $5.00.

Bulletin of Bibliography

Edited by FREDERICK W. FAXON

Vol. 11	January-April, 1921	No. 4
$3.00 a year	Single Numbers, $1.00
Back Files— Complete sets , 10 vols., cloth . . . .	28.00
Bound volumes , Vols. 1-7, each . . .	3.00
Vols. 8-10, each . . .	4.00
Single numbers over two years old . . .	.25

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths" in the periodical world. A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited; and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

THE F. W. FAXON COMPANY,
83 Francis Street, Boston 17.

OUR SPRING PUBLICATIONS

We want to call special attention to our spring list of publications (as listed on pages 2 and 3 of cover), including those books formerly published by the Boston Book Co. which we have purchased from the receiver.

"Suggestions," by John Cotton Dana. (Useful Reference Series, no. 24.)

European War Fiction and Personal Narratives; a Bibliography. (Useful Reference Series, no. 25.) Cloth.

Index to Material for Picture Study, by Mary J. Booth. (Useful Reference Series, no. 26.) Pamphlet.

Index to Legal Periodical Literature. Three vols. covering all law periodicals from their beginning to 1907.

Statute Law Making in the United States, by C. L. Jones.

Commercial Laws of the World. Each volume in two languages—English and the language of the country covered.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

William Coolidge Lane, librarian of the Harvard College Library, was graduated from Harvard University in 1881, and in 1887 became assistant librarian there, becoming chief librarian in 1898. He has spent his whole library career in the Harvard Library except the years 1893 to 1898 when he was head of the Boston Athenæum Library. He is a careful and accurate bibliographer, as his work in the Harvard University bibliographical contributions has proved; a tireless worker in whatever field he enters. He was president of the American Library Association in 1898-9, and from 1886 to 1907 served as secretary, treasurer, and finally chairman of the A. L. A. Publishing Board, to the work of which he gave much of his time and strength. He has also been president of the Bibliographical Society of America, is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and member of Massachusetts Historical Society. We give an excellent likeness as the frontispiece of this issue, that the younger generation of library workers may be familiar with the countenance of one who has been an honored member of the library profession. To all who visit the new Widener Memorial Library of Harvard University a hearty and cordial welcome is assured from Mr. Lane.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

DANA, J. C. A Library Primer.

A new Library Primer by Mr. Dana, "the best known librarian in America," as he has recently been called, is an event in the library world.

In 1899, the first edition was published, being a compilation of material from many sources. A second edition, with slight changes, was printed in 1909, but this 1920 edition before us is all new. The contributions from others have been omitted, and the author has rewritten or dropped nearly all of his own work which appeared in the original book.

There are forty-five chapters covering briefly, yet to the point, the many phases of library work:—library beginnings, laws, and buildings; duties of trustees, librarian; book-selection, reference work, periodicals, accessioning, cataloging, classifying, charging, etc. There are illustrations to make the recommendations clearer. In the supplement at end of book are lists of dealers, of training classes, of library commissions, reference books for a small library, and things needed in library work.

Boston. The Library Bureau. 1920. xii, 263 pp. $3.00.

FRIEDEL, J. H. Training for Librarianship.

A setting forth of the many phases of library work, the many kinds of libraries, and the advantages of trained librarianship as a profession. The need of more librarians at the present time has called forth this volume in "Lippincott's Training Series." The author, experienced in the so-called "special library" field, attractively sets forth the pleasure and profit which are the librarian's, and the way to enter this new work. The volume has illustrations.

Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott Co. [1921.] 224 pp. $1.75.

HICKS, FREDERICK C. The New World Order; International Organization, International Law, International Co-operation.

This book has grown out of a course of lectures given by the author in the summer of 1919 in the Department of Public Law of Columbia University. We have a very thorough discussion of the League of Nations, — its inception, its duties, its limitations. The history of other similar international agreements, or treaties, is touched upon, and international law, national legislation, and all forms of co-operation between countries are considered.

Nearly two hundred pages at the end of the volume are given to appendices, which give the Treaty of Peace with Germany; The triple alliance; the Central American treaties of 1907; The Hague Conventions of 1907. Appendix number 8 is a full bibliography.

New York. Doubleday, Page & Co. 1920. viii, 496 pp. $3.00.

KOCH, T. W. Les Livres à la Guerre, with a preface by Marshall Foch, and introduction by Burton E. Stevenson.

Dr. Koch's "romance of library war service," Books in the War, has been translated into French and published in Paris (1920). Four hundred and eight pages of most interesting matter, profusely illustrated, make a book of a very unusual kind for France.

Paris. E. Champion. xx, 408 pp. Paper.

LAPP, J. A. Our America: The Elements of Civics.

The elementary facts of our government are set forth in this little book, and the reasons for our laws are plainly shown. Although frankly a school book, we should advise all our "new citizens" to read and ponder well what Mr. Lapp says. There are twenty-seven chapters, and an appendix outlining the powers and duties of Federal, State, and County officers.

Indianapolis. Bobbs-Merrill Co. 1920. ix, 399 pp. $1.50

MATERN, JOHANNES. The Employment of the Plebiscite in the Determination of Sovereignty.

This is a monograph in the Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science, Series 38, no. 3, by the assistant librarian of the university. The author shows the growth of the Plebiscite from ancient times to the present; its practical and theoretical aspects, and place in International and Constitutional Law.

Baltimore. Johns Hopkins Press. 1920. 214 pp., paper. $1.50.

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS. Story-telling Ballads.

Miss Olcott has added another volume to her delightful series of collections of stories for children. In this collection of ballads she has brought together the old favorites as well as many that are not so well known, and has put them in groups of two to ten of similar subjects. She has added an Appendix with suggestions for teachers and others, and an index. Several colored illustrations by Milo Winter are an addition to the book. Anyone with children clamoring for stories will want this volume where it will be easily accessible.

Boston. Houghton, Mifflin Co. 1920. 394 pp. $3.00.

PARROTT, RETTA. Library Windows.

Twenty-six sonnets showing the changes of each two weeks throughout the year, as seen from the windows of the City Library, Sacramento, California. It is a charming booklet in its make-up and binding. A real nature-lover is shown in the author of these sonnets. We quote one, "A Blue Dusk," in December:

"Sometimes a cloudy or a foggy day
Will bring at dusk those blue lights in the sky,
Looking, through windows, as if heaven were nigh;
Although without, the scene is dismal gray;
The cause must be refraction; or the way
The glow from buff electroliers on high
And warm tones of the wall, release the eye
So it seeks out the azure, there to stay.
This is a home for many; gathered here
Are those who eat at restaurants, and sleep,
Perchance in some cold room, devoid of cheer;
They smile when in this place, though there they weep.

Maybe in comfort to their bodies given
Their souls can catch a nearer view of heaven."

San Francisco. Harr Wagner Publishing Co. 1920. 62 pp.

PEARSON, E. L. Theodore Roosevelt, a brief biography.

"The librarian" has given us a brief and very readable story of Roosevelt, whom he, in common with so many other Americans, greatly admired. This book was perhaps meant for boys, but it will stand alongside the other biographies and be read with pleasure by those of all ages, and both sexes. The volume is one of the "True Stories of Great Americans," series, and has eight illustrations, showing President Roosevelt at various ages, from ten years to just before his death.

New York. The Macmillan Co. 1920. 159 pp. $1.75.

SEVERANCE, H. O. Guide to the Current Periodicals and Serials of the United States and Canada.

The new (4th) edition of Severance is just published, and is a book over twice as large as its predecessor.

The need of an alphabetical list of American and Canadian periodicals, with addresses, has been well met in this volume. Much hard work has been put upon it and, in a field where changes occur overnight, and every day, it is quite as accurate as one could hope. But the attempt to give subscription price was a risky thing to do. Many of the prices noted have been raised — so many in fact, that reliance should not be placed on this feature of the book. There is a good subject-index at the end, classifying the magazines — a most useful feature in choosing periodicals in a given field.

Ann Arbor, Mich. George Wahr. 1920. 564 pp. Cloth. $6.00 net.

WILSON, MARTHA. School Library Management.

This is a second revised edition of the work published in 1917 by the Minnesota Department of Education. It states the problem of the library in the school, and offers suggestions as to its equipment, organization, and administration.

New York. The H. W. Wilson Co. 1920. 142 pp., paper. 85c.

GUIDE TO THE USE OF LIBRARIES, a manual for students in the University of Illinois.

This paper book of 179 pages has been printed to make possible the proper use of the library facilities at the University of Illinois. It is more than that, it is a text-book on library practice for a course for college under classmen at Urbana, Illinois. The compilers are Margaret Hutchins, Alice B. Johnson, Margaret S. Williams, all of the University library staff, and lecturers in the Library School of the University of Illinois.

Urbana, Ill. Published by the authors. 1920. 179 pp. paper. $1.15.

DRAMATIC NOTE

DRURY, F. K. W. Plays of To-day. One hundred of the best modern dramas. A reading list for students.

A very useful little 35-page pamphlet — the size of a standard catalog card — has been issued by the Brown University library. It is annotated, and divided as follows: — Satires on high society; Criticisms of the social order; Consideration of social ethics; Family studies; Discussion of family affairs; Views on personal ethics and psychology; Poetic and fantastic plays. There is a title-index at the end. The plays included are all of interest to students of the drama, and have been successfully produced.

Union-List of Periodicals and Annuals taken by Eleven Special Libraries in Boston.

The Special Libraries Association of Boston has been a very live and useful branch organization of the Special Libraries Association. It has now rendered a service not only to its own members, but to many outside its circle by the printing of a quarto 16-page "union list," covering the periodicals received at eleven of the principal special libraries in Boston. We wish it might have been possible to include about twenty more libraries which would have been possible in about double the present space. The need of some automobile library in the list is especially apparent. Could the line of dots have been carried back from the tables to the end of the title of the magazine, the eye would more easily follow and locate in which library a given periodical was subscribed for.

Boston, March, 1921. 16 pp. Paper. 50c.

MAGAZINE NOTES

The Century really scared us a bit by a circular saying: "April, 1921, new form, new price, complete change." We were ready for another of those "new standard size" affairs so very common now, but hitherto not adopted by the "big four" standard magazines Atlantic, Harper's, Century, Scribner's. But now we have the good news. Century will keep the old and handy standard size — the book size, we might call it — but will, with the May, 1921, issue (vol. 102), raise its price to $5.00, following the lead of Atlantic and Harper's, appoint Mr. Glenn Frank as its new editor, increase its text pages to 160, use new type; new cover to remain the same from month to month (wonder how long this will be possible; we give them one year), and, perhaps most notable change of all, its illustrations entirely of the pen-drawn type. We congratulate the Century on its revivification, but are sorry it must raise its price that extra dollar. Less pages and the old price would be our advice, but we were not consulted. However, send us your renewal subscriptions for 1922 and 1923, and we will get you the old club rate, if you don't wait too long before you write us.

The Delineator for January, 1921, is a size smaller than recently, by nearly two inches in her height. Vol. 97 therefore, for those who still have the cash to bind their files, will be a peculiar one, five issues large, and the rest small.

Ladies' Home Journal has also shortened her skirts about two inches, beginning in January, 1921, but as this was the beginning of vol. 38, it is all perfectly proper.

International Studio needs a surgeon at once, and then it may be too late to avert a life-long deformity. Up to vol. 68 this beautiful periodical lived a normal life, being a simple reproduction of "Studio," London, with some American pages added [paged in roman figures], and the month date advanced one month, to make it look up-to-date on the American newsstands. Vol. 68 was the 77th English volume, and either edition could be used with the periodical indexes by adding 9 to the American volume or subtracting 9 from the English volume.

But in early 1920 there were printing difficulties in New York. The big strike had been called off and the great congestion of printing resulted in many periodicals issuing a "double number," or skipping a number. So International Studio issued one number for Jan.-Feb. 1920, and as the sheets from England formed the center of each issue — flanked by American pagination in roman — it was easy to insert two English numbers with only one section of American. The publisher called this issue Jan.-Feb., but gave it a single number (275), whereas it was really 275, 276. It looks as if the English editor had been warned of this doubling up, as he made his volume into five instead of four numbers [Studio, vol. 78, Oct. 1919, to Feb. 1920]. But alas the American office made its volume of International Studio end with Jan.-Feb., no. 275 [vol. 69], thus covering but three issues, Nov., Dec., Jan.-Feb., the equivalent, however, of four English numbers, and there the trouble began. England continues to run five months to a volume, and America but four. So we have a curious pagination for America:

Vol. 69, iii-cxviii, 1-170. Nov. 1919-Jan.-Feb. 1920.

Vol. 70, iii-lxxviii, 171-210, 1-120. Mch. to June, 1920.

Vol. 71, iii-lxxxvi, 121-200, 1-80.

Vol. 72, iii-lxxxvi, 81-206, 1-42.

Vol. 73, March, 1921, begins iii and 43, and the publisher promises to end it in June. The American index refers to these pages just as if they were in proper sequence, so there is but one thing for the binder to do, pull the numbers apart — bind the roman pages [American] in order of issue, but rearrange the arabic pages to make them go in sequence, even though this throws the order of month of issue out and leaves a gap in pagination.

In vol. 72, for example, the binding order is Nov. 1920, to Feb. 1921, for roman pages, and Feb. 1921, Nov. 1920, Dec. 1920, Jan. 1921, for arabic pagination. Only by this surgical operation, grafting the insides of Feb. 1921, into Nov. 1920's internals can the index provided in New York be used!! The same process with variations must be resorted to for vols. 70, 71, and 73. Vol. 74 will become normal again, but with five numbers to agree with the English pagination, and will correspond with Studio, vol. 82, making it necessary to add 8 instead of 9 to make English and American editions agree in future. We will wager, however, that Studio will make January to June, 1921, a six-number volume. Will New York see it in time?

It is part of the world war spirit, we suppose, to try all these inhuman experiments on the innocent binders, and they, sufferers from high wages and "unions," can't be expected to dissect a magazine in such an undreamed-of way. Certainly the grand prix, the Nobel prize, the Marathon laurels, are to John Lane of New York.

Iowa Library Quarterly having issued vol. 8, no. 14, in three parts, each called "vol. 8, no. 14, April-May-June, 1920," has completed its volume by an issue in four "separates" called vol. 14, no. 16, but a note on page 226 allays our doubts by saying that the volume as completed will be found to be paged consecutively throughout, although no. 13 was a part number, and no. 15 was omitted entire. Some record even for a magazine!

The Athenæum of London, born in 1828, has merged into The Nation of London, but, like Jonah inside the whale, still retains its identity. It has its own section of The Nation, and retains its staff of editors and writers. Feb. 11, 1921, was the last issue of Athenæum, but subscriptions will be filled by The Nation, so those who bind are supposed to bind up January issues of Athenæum and the first two numbers of February as the beginning of their volume of The Nation.

Granite State Magazine of Manchester, N. H., was an example of a "stuttering" periodical, repeating vol. 7, no. 1, some three or four times. Until Oct. 1911 (vol. 7, no. 1) this magazine had lived a happy normal existence. Heart trouble, or some affliction of the liver was apparent when Nov.-Dec. 1911 (vol. 7, nos. 2-3) appeared as a double issue, and then it died and was decently buried.

Its spirit, or wraith, was, however, seen in Jan. 1913, in Manchester, N. H., embodied as vol. 7, no. 1, of which only three copies are said to exist. Then in Oct. 1914, from Manchester, N. H., there appeared a vol. 7, no. 1 (contents identical with the Oct. 1911, issue), and only about a dozen of these were issued. In Dec. 1914, some 7,000 of a vol. 7, no. 3, appeared also from Manchester.

One more attempt to revive it was made when July-Sept. 1916, vol. 1, no. 1, of "The New Englander" appeared from Hillsboro, N. H. It purported to be a quarterly, and in contents was the same as vol. 7, no. 1, Oct. 1911, to which were added pages 53-84 from the Nov.-Dec. 1911, issue. Luckily the world war broke out then, and it is over four years now since a vol. 7, no. 1, has appeared, yet the publisher in his letter to us holds out "a flickering hope" that the magazine may again start up. Must we have another war?

SUBSCRIPTION NOTE

(Furnished by "The Faxon Library Service")

Economic Journal, London, recently raised its price from $5.00 to $9.00. The Faxon Subscription Agency, devoting its time exclusively to Library business, can supply subscriptions for $4.75, just about half price.

CARELESSNESS OR INEFFICIENCY?

What ails the magazine publishers this year? Well may we ask, for never, even during the war's darkest hours, when manager, chief clerk, and stenographers were "at the front" and little Bennie the elevator boy helped the janitor book the subscriptions, did such a series of stupid blunders occur or such failure to read plain instructions confront us.

Of course, our librarian friends very naturally think, "If your service is not improved we must recommend a change of agent." Other agents tell us the same sad story, so what we lose they gain, and what they lose will come to us. One of our good friends turned over his list to us last fall with a feeling of relief, which feeling as he read his mail — largely expiration notices from periodicals long since paid up by us — changed to consternation, and finally to resignation, with a mingled feeling of "wonder what would have become of us had we had one of the ordinary agents!" Yet our business is growing very rapidly and we encourage librarians to throw all their subscription trouble onto our shoulders. But we cannot refrain from writing this editorial letter to them, because the mistakes that are ours, as compared with those made by the magazine publishers, are as one to six-hundred. One of our clerks is busy most of her time filing apologies from publishers for errors they made, and only a few of the sinners apologize.

Is it carelessness or inefficiency? We send a duplicate subscription to Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, and mark the order "New," and "Copy No. 2." Publisher writes back and says, "You have already paid that subscription last December, shall we extend it another year?"

We sent an order to Administration for a second subscription, with check to pay it, having three weeks before placed the first one, with a check to pay that. Then our library customer gets a letter from the magazine asking why he has canceled his subscription, and hoping a perusal of the last issue will make him change this decision!

The poor, but honest, agent.

M. S. M. (irately): "Librarian says he paid you; why don't you turn over the money to us?"

P. B. H. A. (meekly): "We paid you by check for 1921 on Nov. 29, 1920.

M. S. M.: "We have no record of receiving your order."

P. B. H. A.: "We paid fifteen other subscriptions in same check, no other complaints have been received — (hesitatingly) yet, and our canceled check is back through the bank."

M. S. M.: "We have no record; may we see your canceled check."

P. B. H. A. (digs in his safe among some 7,000 checks, and produces the desired "scrap of paper"): "There!"

M. S. M.: "Evidently we did get it; give us a new list of those 15 subscribers or such of them as you find on enquiry have failed to get Jan., Feb., and March issues and we will at once book the orders. We'll give them full twelve months just the same "April, 1921, to March, 1922." Jan., Feb., and March are out of print." Exit M. S. M.

P. B. H. A. (calls stenographer and writes 15 letters to fifteen libraries, 5 letters to second-hand dealers for Jan., Feb., March issues, 10 letters to other subscribers who perhaps may have received by error duplicate Jan., Feb., March numbers (most of them have, but few have saved the duplicates), and one letter—a pleasant little one—to the M. S. M., asking refund on those subscriptions so all will still expire in December as ordered.) "Miss Hill, bring your supper again, we work late to-morrow. Ask Miss Young, Miss Snyder, and Miss Grandin to stay."

(Slow curtain as postman appears with three letters about System not being properly booked; and one saying four "Good Housekeepings" short, where five were paid for, three Literary Digest complaints, and about a dozen wrong bookings evenly divided between McGraw Hill Co., Doubleday, Page & Co., Review of Reviews, and Modern Priscilla.)

SELECT LIST OF REFERENCES ON PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Compiled by Florence C. Bell, Librarian of the U. S. Bureau of Efficiency

ABBREVIATIONS

A. J. I. L. — American Journal of International Law.

A dash (—) after date or volume number indicates that the title is still being published.

The titles marked with a star (*) are publications of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 2 Jackson Place, Washington, D. C. A large number of libraries are depositaries for all of the publications of the Endowment.

PART I

BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. Nijhoff, Martinus, comp. Selected list of books on public international law. The Hague, Nijhoff, [1913]. 66, 6 pp.

"This catalogue... does not constitute a bibliography of the subject but gives a list of the principal works published in old and recent times which should form the basis of an international-law library." Note by compiler.

2. Olivart, Ramón de Dalmau y de Olivart, marqués de. Bibliographie du droit international, catalogue d'une bibliothèque de droit international et sciences auxiliaires. 2 éd., rev., et mise à jour. Augm. de quatre tables (auteurs, anonymes, matières et états). Paris, A. Pedone, 1905-1910. 1278 pp.

This is the most comprehensive bibliography of international law. The material is arranged under four main divisions: public international law, collections and reviews of international law, private and penal international law, and a division devoted to miscellaneous works of a legal and non-legal character. Indexes are given of authors, titles, subjects, and countries.

3. U. S. Library of Congress. Division of bibliography. List of references on international arbitration, comp. under the direction of A. P. C. Griffin. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1908. 151 pp.

"The purpose of this list is to exhibit material dealing with international arbitration, and, further, particularly to show that on the conferences at the Hague. The question of the limitation of armaments and that of the collection of foreign debts having had special prominence at the Hague Conference of 1907, material dealing with these two topics is likewise given under separate heads. In addition there are listed references to discussions on the French occupation of Mexico, the Venezuela case, and the Santo Domingo question." Prefatory Note by A. P. C. Griffin.

4. U. S. Library of Congress. Division of bibliography. List of references on recognition in international law and practice, comp. under the direction of A. P. C. Griffin. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1904. 18 pp.

"This list comprises references to treatises on international law in which the theory and practice of recognition are discussed, to treatises on diplomatic history, and to essays on specific cases of recognition." Introduction, by A. P. C. Griffin.

5. U. S. Library of Congress. Division of bibliography. List of references on the treaty-making power, comp. under the direction of H. H. B. Meyer. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1920. 219 pp.

"The list here presented . . . begins with general discussions on treaty making as found largely in treatises of international law, followed by discussions of the practice in other countries. Then the United States is taken up and here the grouping is largely historical. First general discussions, then treaty making under the Confederation, discussions attending its disposition in the constitutional convention, and constitutional treatises, lastly a group of discussions of special treaties arranged chronologically from the beginning down to recent date." Prefatory Note, by H. H. B. Meyer.

6. U. S. Library of Congress. Law library. The bibliography of international law and continental law, by Edwin M. Borchard. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1913. 93 pp.

"The body of the work bears evidence of painstaking industry and discriminating judgment. The information compiled is increased in value by the form of presentation. It is not an annotated list of titles, but a critical text with references to footnotes giving author, title, publisher, and place and date of publication for each book. . . . The section relating to international law, public and private, fills sixteen pages, and includes general bibliographies, selected and subject lists, bibliographical periodicals, and concludes with the literature of the peace movement." Review, by F. C. Hicks, A. J. I. L., v. 9: 572-3, 1915.

GENERAL

7. Baty, Thomas. International law. N. Y., Longmans; London, J. Murray, 1909. 364 pp.

Contents: Arbitration; Penetration; Illustration; Territorialism; Stratification; Federation; The Association-State.

The author in the Preface states: "Since the Hague Conference of 1907 it has become increasingly evident that the nineteenth-century conceptions of international law must be revised. Independence is rivalled by interdependence. The process of change will need every care in adjustment if it is not to occasion bitterness. This small book is meant to contribute towards that end by elucidating the true extent to which interdependence has really established itself. It is meant further to indicate tentatively the lines on which change is proceeding."

8. Bluntschli, Johann Kaspar. Das moderne völkerrecht der civilisirten staten als rechtsbuch dargestellt. 3. mit rücksicht auf die neueren ereignisse bis 1877 ergänzte aufl. Nördlingen, C. H. Beck, 1878. 541 pp.

Some of the topics discussed are the meaning, scope, and progress of international law, the character and sovereignty of states, treaties, reparation, rights of war, and rights of neutrals.

This is one of the standard treatises on international law.

9. Bonfils, Henry. Manuel de droit international public. 7 éd. Paris, A. Rousseau, 1914. 1209 pp.

This is one of the best treatises on international law. It deals in detail with the subjects of states, rights, peaceful relations between states, international disputes and their solutions, the right of action—war. Many of the chapters are preceded by excellent bibliographies.

10. Bordwell, Percy. The law of war between belligerents. Chicago, Callaghan & Co., 1908. 374 pp.

"This work . . . is a history of war practice and of the development of a well-recognized body of law regulating it. It attempts to show how changes have come about in war practice and to show the historical position of the great Congresses and Conferences such as those of Paris, Geneva, and The Hague. Part II is intended to be a thorough commentary on war practice between belligerents. Particular emphasis is laid on the military as distinguished from the civil side of the laws of war." Preface.

11. Davis, George B. The elements of international law. 4th ed. N. Y., Harper, [c1916]. 668 pp.

The first edition of this work appeared in 1887; the second, in 1903; the third, in 1908; the fourth in 1916. Both the third and fourth editions have been criticized because they were not adequately brought up-to-date.

"General Davis's book has especial importance as it is the text in international law used at the United States Military Academy at West Point. . . . It is a limited handbook, quite elementary in its treatment, very general and miscellaneous in many of its citations, and 'was originally intended' for 'undergraduate students of American colleges and law schools.' It formulates the rules of law somewhat more positively perhaps, than the more ample and advanced works." Review, by C. N. Gregory, A. J. I. L., v. 3: 250-53, 1909.

12. Fiore, Pasquale. International law codified and its legal sanction; or, The legal organization of the society of states, trans. from the 5th Italian ed., with an introduction by Edwin M. Borchard. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1918. 750 pp.

"The book does not purport to be a code of existing international law, but rather a systematic body of rules evolved by the author out of his accurate knowledge of positive law and of the defects of the prevailing system and submitted for adoption to the nations of the world for the better legal regulation of their mutual interests and relations." Preface, by E. M. Borchard.

13. Gareis, Karl. Institutionen des völkerrechts; ein kurzgefasstes lehrbuch des positiven völkerrechts in seiner geschichtlichen entwicklung und heutigen gestaltung. 2. aufl., neu durchgearbeitet. Giessen, E. Roth, 1901. 319 pp.

Among the topics discussed are the sovereignty of states, the relation of the head of a state to international law, the rights and duties of diplomatic representatives, types of international administration, treaties, neutrality, the waging and termination of war.

14. Hall, William Edward. A treatise on international law, ed. by A. Pearce Higgins. 7th ed. Oxford: The Clarendon Press; London, N. Y., Milford, 1917. 864 pp.

"The last two editions of this work were undertaken by the late Mr. J. B. Atlay, who had assisted Mr. Hall in the preparation of the fourth edition, the last which was prepared for the press by the author. . . . With regard to the method on which I have proceeded in preparing this edition, I may note that I have restored the numbering of the sections as they appeared in the fourth edition. Mr. Hall's text has been left unaltered except in regard to the Geneva Conventions, where I have substituted the modern for the older conventions. . . . In the chapters which deal with questions of prize law and naval warfare, an endeavour has been made to incorporate the most important decisions of the British prize courts, and in regard to other matters, such as enemy character and the position of alien enemies in British courts, a similar attempt has been made to include the most important decisions of the British courts. New matter relating to international water-ways air-sovereignty, and wireless telegraphy has also been added, as well as a statement of all the cases decided by The Hague Arbitration Tribunal." Preface, by A. P. Higgins.

15. Halleck, Henry Wager. Halleck's international law or rules regulating the intercourse of states in peace and war. 4th ed., thoroughly revised and in many parts rewritten by Sir G. Sherston Baker, assisted by Maurice N. Druquer. London, Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., 1908. 2v.

The original work of General Halleck was particularly valued because of the detailed treatment it gave of the laws of war and the experience of the author in that field. The book gives a very full statement regarding naval salutes and etiquette, and a valuable description of consular courts in the east and of the mixed courts of Egypt.

16. Hershey, Amos Shartle. The essentials of international public law. N. Y., Macmillan, 1912. 558 pp.

"This work . . . aims to furnish the teacher and student with an up-to-date text adapted to the needs of the classroom, and also to present the specialist as well as the general public with a scientific treatise on the subject. . . . In the main, the work is based upon modern or contemporary, as distinguished from the older, sources and authorities. A special attempt has been made to review the more important of the many recent contributions to international law contained in monographs and periodicals—Continental as well as Anglo-American. In the parts dealing with the law of war and neutrality, the illustrations are drawn largely from recent wars." Preface.

"The work we are reviewing shows in every page . . . the most thorough scholarship and the widest research. The author's equipment is admirable and his care and industry obvious. Perhaps the most striking and interesting chapters are those devoted to a general view of the history and development of international law and the contributions of different periods and nations thereto." Review, by C. N. Gregory, A. J. I. L., v. 9: 272-6, 1915.

17. Lawrence, Thomas Joseph. Documents illustrative of international law. Boston, Heath, [c1914]. 351 pp.

"The book . . . is divided into four parts. The first deals with the nature, origin, and development of international law, the second with questions arising out of the peaceful relations of states, the third with belligerents, and the fourth with neutrality. . . . The student reads in his text-books that certain authors who wrote some three centuries ago made such a deep impression on the collective mind of Western Europe that the principles most of them advocated became the foundations of a science of international relations unlike anything that had gone before it. . . . I have given him extracts from some of the most distinguished of these writers. . . . He also reads that in modern times states have begun to settle for themselves by common agreement what they will obey in many departments of their mutual intercourse. I have placed before him all the great law-making documents in which these agreements are recorded. Further, he learns that in the interval between the great jurists who watched over and controlled the infancy of international law, and the great conferences which have moulded its newest activities, treaties, judgments of prize-courts and arbitral tribunals, state-papers of all kinds . . . influenced its development. . . . I have given him specimens of all these to study." Preface.

18. Lawrence, Thomas Joseph. The principles of international law. 6th ed. Boston, Heath, [1915]. 745 pp.

The latest edition of one of the standard texts on international law by one of the leading modern writers.

"It would be superfluous to speak of the literary style of Dr. Lawrence, of his analyses of subjects and logical deductions, of his lucidity of expression and attractive mode of presentation. The favor with which his earlier treatise was received bears witness to their excellence. The first edition of The Principles of International Law placed him in the foremost rank of writers upon international law." Review of the Fourth Edition, by Robert Lansing, A. J. I. L., v. 5: 1113-18, 1911.

19. Moore, John Bassett. A digest of international law. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1906. 8 v.

"The reviewer has . . . examined carefully every volume and at times this examination has been pushed . . . into minute details, with the invariable result that in no single instance has an inaccuracy of statement been discovered, although a few trifling misprints have occasionally met the eye. The literature on the subject has constantly been given by Professor Moore; the foreign relations, the opinions of attorneys-general; the decisions of courts; the opinions of secretaries of state and of American and foreign publicists, and the views of learned societies of international law have been found in their appropriate places. The impression borne in upon the reviewer, and which he means to convey, is that this monumental work of Professor Moore makes a reference to the volumes of Foreign Relations and to the sources quoted unnecessary in the vast majority of cases. The work is in the severest sense of the word a digest and treatise, and it is as accurate as it is full and detailed. It is a godsend to the man of affairs and it is a sure and safe guide to the student of international law." Review, by J. B. Scott, A. J. I. L., v. 1: 254-7, 1907.

In 1886 Francis Wharton published his "Digest of the international law of the United States." In 1887 a second edition was issued. Professor Moore's Digest is a revision of this second edition, bringing it up-to-date, and completing it.

20. Nys, Ernest. Le droit international. Brussels, M. Weissenbruch, 1912. 3 v.

An interesting discussion of international law by one of the foremost publicists of our time, a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration. In addition to detailed material on the history of international law, diplomatic and consular duties, laws and customs of war, international congresses, etc., the book contains chapters on the idea of the State, the theory of nationality, and the classification of States.

Back Files—Complete sets, 10 vols., cloth . . . .	28.00
Bound volumes, Vols. 1-7, each . .	3.00
Vols. 8-10, each .	4.00
Single numbers over two years old	.25

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World." A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited; and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Dear to the hearts of all librarians is genial Henry James Carr, ex-president of the American Library Association, and leading all other members of the association in the number of conferences attended;—37 out of 43 is his record, and only Mrs. Carr with 33 meetings is within sight on the honor roll.

Mr. Carr is a New Hampshire man, and began his career as an accountant and cashier in railroad offices, then studied law and was admitted to the bar in Michigan in 1879, but did not practice. Thus was laid the foundation for his success as a librarian—his notable care and attention to details, his businesslike administration of the three libraries he has conducted. He was librarian at Grand Rapids, 1886 to 1890, then organized the library at St. Joseph, Mo., in 1890-91, and has been at the head of Scranton Public Library since that time. He was treasurer, recorder, secretary, vice-president, and president of the A. L. A. in succession. He has also been president of the Keystone State Library Association. We are happy to include his photograph in this issue.

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS, 1922

THE FAXON SERVICE

THIS WE OFFER

Why have we the fastest growing agency in the country? We devote our department to library subscriptions exclusively. We are the only agency carrying back numbers and volumes. We endeavor to supply loose title-pages and indexes to our library subscribers, as well as attend to all other subscription troubles—and there can easily be many these days unless agents use great care and extreme diligence. We have had over thirty years' experience with magazines and library methods, and librarians know we do things their way.

THIS WE NOW ADVISE

Place your 1922 subscription orders early. October is better than November. It avoids the rush season when most publishers with their extra help make errors and have no time properly to rectify them.

Let Faxon estimate on your list, unless you are now getting satisfactory local service. We won't agree to "meet or beat" all comers; that can't always be done if you want "service." But we often do "beat" the best offer.

Decide on Faxon as your agent and give him a standing order to continue for a term of years. He can then watch prices for you and pay subscriptions in advance in some cases, to your saving.

Why not plan to change your expiration date from December to June or September! Many are, at our suggestion, doing this. It saves errors, by taking the off-times of the subscription season!

Pay your agent in advance so he can use your own money in paying your subscriptions. (Of course, you must first have confidence in your agent.) He can then avoid borrowing money and make you a better offer. He has to pay all in advance, you know, or you get no real service.

OUR NEW BOOKS

Miss Mary J. Booth's book, "Index to Material on Picture Study," is sure to be very valuable in schools and libraries where famous pictures are used. It gives, under the name of the artist, with cross reference from the title or titles of the picture, references to the description of the picture, and indicates where reproductions are to be found. We have now issued this book in cloth at $1.35. It may be had in paper for $1.00.

Mr. John Cotton Dana's "Suggestions" is a happy idea. He has gathered together here all his terse or pointed sayings on library matters: culled from his writings of thirty years, they are indeed interesting and will, as he says in his introduction, give beginners in library work a new point of view and added interest in their work. The little book is neatly bound in boards, $1.00.

"Bibliographies of the European war," covering fiction based on the war and personal narratives concerning the war, which we announced for May, has been delayed by printing and binding strikes. We hope to have the book ready in the early fall. Price in cloth, $1.75. Orders are now being booked for it.

The seventh volume of National Institute of Social Sciences, Journal is soon to be published. Its subject will be "International Obligations of the United States." Price in cloth, $2.25 (by error announced at $2.00 in our list of last April).

THE PEAK IS REACHED

Magazine prices will not again increase. The peak of high costs is past, and already indications point to a lower price of subscription. McClure's came first, and recently McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post, Atlantic, House Beautiful, and Living Age announced cuts. World's Work and Country Life are giving subscribers the benefit of a "club" rate again, equivalent to a 50c. reduction to all library subscribers. Everybody's returns to normalcy by appearing in the old "standard" octavo size. Motor Age goes back to $3.00, but will refuse to take library subscriptions at all, devoting itself to the automobile trade only.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Did this ever happen to you? You know what a lot of trouble publishers have made you on subscription entries that were wrong (perhaps you blamed it on your agent). Listen to this little story!

As a result of a letter to Garden Magazine written by Mr. Faxon on receipt of an expiration notice for his personal home copy, this reply, dated June 16, came to him:—

"In reply to your letter of the 14th would say that we find that we had the Garden subscription incorrectly entered for one year in place of two. We are now correcting our error and the subscription is correctly entered to expire with the July, 1922, issue."

Yours, etc.,

Subscription Dept.

That sounds good, doesn't it? Now, listen! Mr. Faxon got another letter dated July 12, 1921, almost a month later:—

"Your subscription to the Garden Magazine expires with the July, 1921, issue. . . . Your continued support in the form of a renewal is earnestly hoped for, and to make it convenient we are enclosing a renewal form."

Circulation Manager.

Faxon needed the "continued support" after he got that letter, but is now able to sit up again, and is only sorry his mother didn't teach him to swear when a boy.

The Biblio for July, 1921, is vol. 1, no. 1, of a new monthly for rare book collectors. We commend it as an interesting new-comer — at least the first issue is a good one, with articles on early book auctions, New York book shops in 1800, Eugene Field and Little Boy Blue, as well as notes on various "booky" matters. Edited by W. M. Clemens, $2.50 a year.

Bulletin of Bibliography. If a periodical started as a free house organ, and then "raised" to $1.00, to $2.00, and recently to $3.00, is to keep on in its mad flight, where will it land? Of course anyone knows that a bird that keeps on flying won't land at all, but perhaps some magazines are different from birds. We'll watch the Bulletin carefully and will notify you when there appears to be any indication of a descent from its present altitude. But there is Banker and Tradesman which went up — $5.00, $6.00, $7.00 — in three successive years. We think such a flight too "vertical."

The Commentator is published monthly by the Hungarian-American Federation, Youngstown, Ohio. Our attention was called to it on account of the varying sizes of some early issues, indicating clearly the state of unrest in Hungary. No. 3, June, 1920, is 10¾ x 8; no. 5, August, 1920, is 13¾ x 11; no. 6, September, 1920, is 12 x 9½; nos. 7-8, Oct.-Nov. 1920, a double issue, happens to be same size as no. 6, a most notable fact you must concede. We hope someone who has a file will tell us if nos. 1, 2, and 4 were also "variant."

Everybody's Magazine has come back to normalcy with July, 1921, vol. 45, no. 1. We again see the old standard size of 10 x 6¾ inches and we hasten to congratulate the publisher on his daring change. Another change which has gradually come over Everybody's is less satisfactory, — the making of the magazine an "all-fiction" publication. We believe this a mistake as thereby all library subscriptions will gradually fade away. Perhaps the publisher does not need them; we think they help him a lot.

The Journal of American History has issued vol. 14, 1920, in one cover, instead of four quarterly numbers, and so instead of being a year and five months behind is only five months in arrears. The "annual" number is divided into four quarter-parts inside though the whole is but little thicker than the single issues used to be. What of 1921 — an annual again perhaps? Anyhow, the joyful bills for 1921 subscriptions are mailed, but we hesitate to pay ours until the "first" issue of this year appears — safety first!

New Jersey Library Bulletin for February and May, 1921, is a double number called "vols. 9 and 10, nos. 4 and 1." Isn't that a cute way to do it? It certainly takes a librarian to show magazine publishers the possibilities of erratic issue. However, we have heard that Jersey mosquitoes are thick in May, so the matter is excused just this once. Use "Mosquito-Scout" Mr. Editor, next time.

School and Home Education has the colic and is all doubled up. Jan.-Feb., 1921, is vol. 40, no. 5, and the Editor says a special July issue will be gotten out early in June, evidently to compensate his disappointed readers. March and April were normal months, no colic, but another and worse attack in May-June, 1921 (vol. 40, nos. 8-10 on cover, but simply no. 8 inside). Of course, one's insides in such times are hardly to be reckoned with, but is that no. 10 noted on the cover really the extra July issue promised us?

Special Libraries' new editor takes all the blame for January, 1921, being paged in continuation of December, though beginning a new volume. We think even an apprentice printer ought to have caught this, and we hereby accuse the printer-man as the first and greatest offender. By the way, a title-page of vol. 11 is shut into Jan. 1921 (vol. 12, no. 1) loose. Where is the index?

The Pacific Review, published quarterly by the University of Washington Press in Seattle, began in June, 1920, and reminds one of the Yale Review in style and make-up. It is general in its scope, and $3.00 a year seems reasonable in these days of excessive printing costs.

Woman's Home Companion, following the lead of the Ladies' Home Journal, has adopted the short skirt at present in style. The May, 1921, issue is two inches shorter than March, and is vol. 48, no. 5, so when we come to bind up she will look like a woman in a new length skirt, but still wearing an old style petticoat! "Rather be ashamed than not up-to-date!"

MAGAZINES BY LIBRARIANS

Harvard Library Notes is an interesting little magazine edited by Mr. Winship for the purpose of informing those connected with the administration and the work of the library concerning its growth and various activities. Not an official publication of the University, and not for general distribution, but anyone interested may for one dollar subscribe to four issues at a time. Many libraries will, we think, be glad to have this on file at the librarian's office, as each issue (and we have seen three, June, October, 1920, and January, 1921) contains bibliographical material of general interest.

Library Book-Bits is edited by Mr. Willcox of the Holyoke (Mass.) public library, and issued by him to advertise to Holyoke readers a few of the library's worth-while new books which otherwise might not be generally found. No. 1 is dated December, 1920. It covers a dozen or more books in its 32 pages, the method being a catchy headline, and a virile paragraph or page or two quoted from each book.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

BOSTWICK, A. E., comp. The Library and Society reprints of papers and addresses.

This is a volume in the series, "Classics of American Librarianship," and contains about fifty articles, mostly by early librarians, grouped into general divisions entitled General Community Relations; Community's Service to the Library; Financial Support, Alternatives to Tax Support; Boards of Trustees; Library's Service to the Community; Provision of Books; Collection of Information; Control and Guidance of Reading; Community Center Service.

This collection of papers, reprinted from various sources, and by various prominent librarians of yesterday is interesting reading, and we owe the compiler and the publisher a debt of gratitude for such a book on library history. We could only wish the type were a larger size.

N. Y. City. The H. W. Wilson Co. 1921. 474 pp. $2.25.

BOOTH, MARY J. Index to Material on Picture Study.

The study of famous pictures in schools is widespread and Miss Booth has compiled a book that will be of great use as giving quick reference to a description of any desired picture. Entry is made under the artist with cross reference from the title or different titles of the picture. A star (*) indicates that a reproduction of the picture is given in the book referred to. A list of the books analyzed will be found at the end of the book.

Boston. F. W. Faxon Co. 1921. 92 pp. Paper, $1.00. Cloth, $1.35. (Useful reference series no. 26.)

BROWN, EDNA A. "Journey's End" and "That Affair at St. Peter's."

These two novels, one published in 1921, the other in 1920, will be found well worth reading. Journey's End, with its Quaker atmosphere, is a peaceful, quiet, pretty story that one is the better for knowing. That Affair at St. Peter's, is Edna Brown's first mystery story, and dealing with the disappearance of the silver belonging to a church, is cleverly worked out, and not the least improbable, though the reader is in doubt as to the solution until the very end.

Boston. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard. 1920. 1921. Each $1.75.

DANA, JOHN COTTON. Suggestions.

This little book is a mighty interesting collection of aphorisms from the writings of one of our most noted librarians. His introduction is the best notice we can give the book: "I have been a librarian for over thirty years. In that time I have written much on the subject of libraries. This book is made up of extracts from what I have written; though some, short as they are, were written as complete essays. I reprint these because they seem to be as true now as when I wrote them, and because I seem not able to say the same things again in any better way, and because I believe that much of what is here included can help the beginners in library work to look at their calling with fresh interest."

Boston. F. W. Faxon Co. 1921. 52 pp. Boards, $1.00.

DRURY, FRANCIS K. W., editor. Technical and Scientific serials in the libraries of Providence, 1920.

Another "Union list" has been added to our collection, and a very satisfactory one, too. Providence contains several important and large collections of books, and a list of the Scientific serials is fairly inclusive. Mr. Drury has given us a useful list, valuable anywhere for its bibliographic information, invaluable to Rhode Island and vicinity as showing where sets of these periodicals can be consulted, either current issues or any of the back volumes.

1921. Providence, R. I., Public Library. 63 pp. Paper, 60c.

GEROULD, J. T. Sources of English History of the 17th century, 1603-1689, in the University of Minnesota Library.

This large volume of 565 pages is no. 1 of the Bibliographical series of Research Publications of the University and was published in January, 1921, by the University of Minnesota. It is a compilation which will be of great value to investigators in this branch of history.

Minneapolis. University of Minnesota. 1921. 565 pp. Paper, $4.00.

SMITH, CHARLES W., comp. Pacific Northwest America. A checklist of books and pamphlets relating to the history of the Pacific Northwest.

This is a second edition of a union checklist published in 1909 by the Washington State library, and contains more than twice as much material. Fifteen libraries co-operated in the compilation, and the book, containing 329 pages, is a very complete catalog of books and pamphlets on the Pacific Northwest, including Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia, Alaska, and the Yukon. The arrangement is by author in one alphabet, and the right-hand half of each page is left blank for annotations and additions.

N. Y. City. The H. W. Wilson Co. 1921. Cloth. 329 pp. $4.00.

From the A. L. A. Publishing Board we have received:

THE BOOKLIST BOOKS, 1920, A SELECTION.

This makes a pamphlet of 64 pages and index, divided into General literature, fiction, children's books, and technical books. 35 cents.

THE COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY LIBRARY, by J. I. Wyer, Jr.

Second edition revised, preprint of Manual of Library Economy, Chapter 4. 15c.

TRAINING FOR LIBRARIANSHIP, by Mary W. Plummer.

Second edition revised by Frank K. Walter. Preprint of Chapter 13, Manual of Library Economy. 15c.

LIBRARY LEGISLATION, by Wm. F. Yust. Second edition revised. Preprint of Chapter 9, Manual of Library Economy. 15c.

From the H. W. Wilson Co., N. Y. City, we have received:

HENRIK IBSEN, a bibliography of criticism and biography, by Ina Ten Eyck Firkins, compiler.

This is a pamphlet of 80 pages, 12mo size, in the "Practical Bibliographies" series. 75c.

LISTS OF STORIES AND PROGRAMS FOR STORY HOURS, by Effie L. Power, editor.

Compiled by the staff of the Children's Department of the St. Louis Public Library. Revised edition, small 12mo, 110 pages. 40c. A little book which cannot fail to be of great help wherever work with children is understandingly carried on.

WHAT SHALL WE READ NOW?

Fourth edition, revised by Mildred Maynard of the East Orange Public Library. Four leaflets, each covering two grades, 1-2, 3-4, 5-6, 7-8.

CATALOG OF LITERATURE FOR ADVISERS OF YOUNG WOMEN AND GIRLS, compiled by Anna E. Pierce.

This is an annotated list of some 2,000 titles of books and periodical articles selected and most useful for all who have to do with the education of, or work for, young women and girls. 85 pages, paper cover, $1.00.

DRAMATIC NOTE

We have received "The Best Plays of 1919-20, and year book of the Drama in America," edited by Burns Mantle, dramatic critic of the New York Evening Mail.

This is a very comprehensive book, giving the story of nine prominent plays, including Abraham Lincoln, a forecast of plays to be presented during the season of 1920-21, casts of all the plays of the season, and the statistics of their runs, when and where prominent players were born, and a necrology.

Boston. Small, Maynard & Co. 1920. 477 pp. $2.00.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN LIBRARY EXTENSION SERVICE

By Edith Thomas, in Charge Library Extension Service, University of Michigan Library

The University of Michigan Library Extension Service was organized in August, Nineteen hundred and sixteen, for the purpose, primarily, of aiding the High Schools of the State in their work in public speaking and debating, and the general study of important problems of public interest. During the past five years, however, the Service has enlarged its scope to include the needs and interests of Parent-Teacher Associations, Granges, Rural Clubs, and other community organizations.

The working files of the Service comprise, at present, about fifty thousand pamphlets on current civic, economic, social, and general educational questions. This pamphlet material is obtained, to a great extent, without cost, from varied sources throughout the country, and sometimes even from abroad. Many of the sources are fixed and regular, such as Federal and State Department publications, University bulletins, Society reports, and the Educational matter sent out by large financial, industrial, and trade corporations.

The material which is available from time to time from occasional sources, fully equals in importance and quantity, however, that which comes from standardized sources. Special bulletins sent out by private organizations, or committees engaged in some special work of investigation or experimentation, together with reprints of magazine articles and the published addresses of persons of authority, furnish a constantly growing volume of data and opinion of much value in studies in the civic and educational field.

Pamphlets from fixed sources come automatically, of course, after the initial mailing list privilege or subscription has been established. The occasional and sporadic material has literally to be stalked and trapped. Magazines representing every branch of interest in current affairs are constantly and consistently watched for reviews and publisher's notices. Such periodicals as the American Magazine, the Survey, the New York Municipal Reference Library Notes, the magazine for public health nursing, the English Journal, the Historical Outlook, the American Child, and Drama, are only a few of those which serve this purpose. All available authoritative indexes and check lists, such as the P. A. I. S., the Superintendent of Documents' price lists, the Monthly Record of Educational Publications, and Publishers' Weekly, are also followed regularly.

The material gathered in this way forms a constantly renewed, changing, and increasing file of pamphlets, which are classified in a straight alphabetical subject file, rather loose in division than otherwise, for the sake of flexibility. As pamphlets become out of date or too much worn with use, they are discarded. A complete and formal reorganization of the subject file is made at least once a year, or oftener, if conditions demand it.

A clipping file is maintained as an adjunct to the pamphlet file. For this purpose the New York Times and one or two other metropolitan papers are clipped daily. The magazines used for locating pamphlet material are also clipped to supplement the matter available on questions still fluid in the press. The use of clippings, however, is negligible in comparison with that of pamphlets.

The Library Extension Service is particularly interested in developing and supplementing the work of local libraries. To this end bibliographies of magazine material are prepared upon request for use in the smaller libraries where special indexes and guides are not at hand. Other aid or information for the use of librarians in the State, that can be compiled from the larger resources and equipment of the University Library, is freely given.

The treatment of the material of the Service in organization and use is as direct and simple as possible. New material is stamped and subject headed as soon as it is received, indexed in a card index under the subject heading to which it has been assigned, and placed in the files.

When requests come in by mail, material for a package on the desired subject, say "Community Civics," is put together, placed in a manila envelope bearing the subject heading, the number of pamphlets being sent, and the package number. The package is then sent out by afternoon mail, and the daily charging slip filed by date. Each morning the daily charging slips of the day preceding are recorded both under subject and school. As each package is returned it is discharged simultaneously from subject and school charging cards, and the pamphlets distributed in the proper place in the files.

Because of the large number of duplicates of any given title necessary in the work of the department, vertical files for the keeping of the pamphlets have not been found practicable. Instead, a pigeon hole arrangement,  $11\frac{1}{2}$  by  $12\frac{1}{2}$  inches, inside measurement, having a hinged door, with automatic catch, built into the shelf space of the ordinary stack range, has been devised. This permits the pamphlets to be laid flat in such a way that the weight of pamphlets so piled, protects, rather than injures, the pamphlets underneath.

The following brief description taken, in part, from the Library Extension Service Announcement bulletin for 1920-21, showing the special subjects to which most particular attention is given in the development of the Service, may be of interest to those contemplating a similar work.

As an aftermath of the Great War, the Community Service organized for soldiers and war-workers is everywhere growing into a well-established and permanent activity. The effort toward a real and sincere Americanization of the foreign peoples who form so large a part of our population is realizing its best results through Community Centers, Community Clubs, and Open Forums. The Library Extension Service makes a point of collecting material that will fit the needs of such groups.

Much suggestive and pertinent matter is being published on the various problems of rural development, such as rural schools, and rural church and social needs. Material bearing upon these problems, as well as that upon general civic and economic questions is made available to Granges and rural clubs for study and discussion.

Throughout the country there is an awakening to the fact that one of the surest means of safeguarding the health and morals of the community is through well organized municipal playgrounds and recreation centers. The Playground and Recreation Association of America has experts working on this phase of community work, and all of their publications may be borrowed from the Library Extension Service. Lists of plays and pageants, suitable for production by community groups, both urban and rural, together with suggestions for special day programs, are also available.

Another important development in the direction of community welfare through community service is public health nursing. The Library Extension Service is the distributing center for Michigan, for the literature sent out by the National Organization for Public Health Nursing.

As was stated at the beginning, the fundamental purpose of this Service is to aid the high schools of the state. Consequently secondary school problems receive primary attention. Under the general head of Teaching Material, the Service collects and organizes special aids for teachers of English, History, and Civics, which may not be easily available in smaller towns. A collection of the best published reading lists in literature has been made; a carefully selected and authoritative list of plays for high school production is sent out upon request. Material for class use in the study of current affairs and special civic problems is available. Briefs for debate are furnished to teachers, if asked for, and the needs of members of the State High School Debating League are given particular emphasis and attention.

In response to the new demands made by the North Central Association upon high schools in regard to the maintenance of adequate libraries, the Library Extension Service is ready to send out the best published book lists for high school libraries, together with manuals of suggestion and instruction in matters of organization and management.

It is the aim of the Service to keep its resources in line with varied interests of the times. This means that new subjects and new material are constantly being added to our files. The lists published in our bulletin and sent out at the beginning of each school year furnishes, therefore, only an indication of the sort of material on hand. There is a steadily increasing reserve by means of which the Service attempts to anticipate any demand which may be made upon it.

SELECT LIST OF REFERENCES ON PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Compiled by Florence C. Bell, Librarian of the U. S. Bureau of Efficiency

ABBREVIATIONS

A. J. I. L. — American Journal of International Law.

A dash (—) after date or volume number indicates that the title is still being published.

The titles marked with a star (*) are publications of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 2 Jackson Place, Washington, D. C. A large number of libraries are depositaries for all of the publications of the Endowment.

PART II

21. Oppenheim, Lassa F. L. International law. 2d. ed. London, N. Y., Longmans, 1912. 2 v.

"Professor Oppenheim needs no introduction to American readers. The first edition of his work, published in 1905-1906, has been a familiar manual of reference not only for students, for whom the author says that the work is particularly intended, but for advanced scholars, and professors as well. The author admits that upon the publication of the first edition of the work he had received warnings that a comprehensive treatise in two volumes would never be read by young students. If the event has proved these warnings unfounded, we think it largely due to the fact that in the discussion of even the most complicated problems of international law the author has succeeded in giving the proper historical setting to each question, with the result that the principle involved is more easily discernible. . . . The final chapter of the volume [v. 1] which deals with important groups of treaties, will be especially valuable to students. The section of commercial treaties is new, and it is followed by a section describing Unions Concerning Common Non-Political Interests." Review of v. 1, by C. G. Fenwick, A. J. I. L., v. 6: 1054-5, 1912.

"The second edition of Professor Oppenheim's well-known work has already received a cordial welcome at the hands of those who have appreciated his thoughtful and scholarly treatise from the time of its first appearance in 1905-1906. . . . The chief merit of the present volume [v. 2] is the singular skill with which the author presents the results of the Second Hague Conference and of the Declaration of London." Review of v. 2, by C. G. Fenwick, A. J. I. L., v. 7: 439-41, 1913.

22. Phillimore, Robert Joseph. Commentaries upon international law. 3d. ed. London, Butterworths, 1879-89. 4 v.

Volume 4 has title: Commentaries upon international law. Private international law or comity.

"It is an endeavor, upon a larger scale than has hitherto been attempted in England, to reduce . . . to a system, the principles and precedents of international law." Preface to First Edition.

The plan of the work comprises an inquiry into the origin and nature of the laws which govern international relations; the subjects of these laws, which are the states considered in their corporate character; the objects of these laws; the duties and rights of the individuals who are said to represent a state; public international rights, public international law, and comity, or private international law.

23. Picciotto, Cyril M. The relation of international law to the law of England and of the United States of America. N. Y., McBride, 1915. 128 pp.

Contents: General notions; International law in courts of prize and admiralty; International law and acts of Parliament in ordinary courts; Treaties which require an act of Parliament for their enforcement; International law and the common law of England; International law and law of United States.

The introduction by Professor Oppenheim gives an interesting discussion of the relation between international law and municipal law.

24. Ralston, Jackson Harvey. International arbitral law and procedure. Boston, Ginn, 1910. 352 pp.

"It has been the effort in this book to include not alone decisions specially relating to arbitral law and procedure, but also the opinions, upon points of international law, of the gentlemen who have taken part in the settlement of disputes among nations. It has appeared to the author that such opinions are worthy of special respect as being the result of acute legal examination and discussion, and that in themselves they furnish as precedents an important basis for the international law of the future." Preface.

25. Root, Elihu. Addresses on international subjects. Cambridge, Harvard university press, 1916. 463 pp.

Among the subjects discussed are the need of popular understanding of international law, the real questions under the Japanese treaty and the San Francisco school board resolution, the sanction of international law, the relations between international tribunals of arbitration and the jurisdiction of national courts, the basis of protection to citizens residing abroad, the function of private codification in international law, the real significance of the Declaration of London, Francis Lieber, the real Monroe doctrine, the Hague peace conferences, the importance of judicial settlement, the ethics of the Panama question, the obligations of the United States as to Panama Canal tolls, the treaty of 1832 with Russia, the Ship Purchase Bill, the declaration of the rights and duties of nations of the American Institute of International Law.

26. Snow, Freeman. International law, ed. by Charles H. Stockton. 2d ed. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1898. 212 pp.

These lectures were prepared for the use of naval officers. The Appendix contains the following documents: Documents and papers carried by vessels of the United States; Papers carried by foreign vessels in evidence of their nationality, etc.; Instructions to blockading vessels and cruisers of the United States Navy — General Order 492, 1898; The additional articles of the Geneva Convention; Decree establishing regulations concerning French ports in time of war — Special Order No. 54 of 1896; Proclamation of President of the United States, April 26, 1898; Neutral vessels of war entering blockaded ports.

27. Stockton, Charles H. Outlines of international law. N. Y., Scribner, [c1914]. 616 pp.

A clear and concise exposition of the essentials of international law. The book discusses the scope and early history of international law, states in international law, intercourse of states in time of peace, war-relations of belligerents, relations between belligerents and neutrals. The Appendices contain the following: 1. The recognition of belligerency and of independence; 2. Convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes; 3. International prize-court convention signed at The Hague, October 18, 1907; 4. International Naval Conference signed at London, February 26, 1909; 5. Neutrality — Germany and Great Britain.

"The long and faithful service which Admiral Stockton has performed in the field of international law will guarantee to his latest work on the subject a cordial reception by the public. The present volume now supplants his earlier brief Manual of International Law, so well known in naval circles. As delegate to the London Naval Conference and as lecturer during many years at the George Washington University the author has had experience in constructive as well as in didactic work upon the problems of international law. He has not, however, sought to give us a treatise based upon individual research work in all of the many branches of a greatly ramified subject, but has rather chosen to collate from existing works, to rearrange, to present obscure questions in clearer form, to criticize and to comment." Review, by C. G. Fenwick, A. J. I. L., v. 10; 656-7, 1916.

28. Walker, Thomas Alfred. A history of the law of nations, vol. 1, From the earliest times to the Peace of Westphalia. Cambridge, The University press, 1899. 361 pp.

Gives an excellent account of the work of the early publicists.

29. Westlake, John. The collected papers of John Westlake on public international law, ed. by L. Oppenheim. Cambridge, The University press, 1914. 705 pp.

Contents: Part 1. Chapters on international law — International law in relation to law in general; Theory bearing on international law down to the renaissance; Ayala, Gentilis, Grotius; The Peace of Westphalia and Pufendorf; Bynkershoek, Wolff, Vattel; The principles of international law; The equality and independence of states; International rights of self-preservation; Territorial sovereignty, especially with relation to uncivilized regions; The Empire of India; War. Part 2. Miscellaneous papers.

"When, soon after the death of Professor Westlake, the first edition of his Chapters on the Principles of International Law was exhausted, the Syndics of the University Press resolved, instead of simply bringing out a second edition of this work, to publish a Collection of all the smaller contributions of Westlake to public international law and to embody therein a new edition of the Chapters on the Principles of International Law. . . Westlake was a most profound jurist and thinker, with a very wide range of interests. . . International law is, to a great extent, the product of the nineteenth century, and Westlake has assisted much in developing and shaping it. It was characteristic of him that he never evaded difficult problems, but sought them out, faced them, and, so to say, wrestled with them. It is for this reason that almost every page of his works is of importance; every writer on questions of international law must take into account the opinion of Westlake on the subject concerned. As an authority he was recognized all over the world, and his counsel was frequently sought by the British and by foreign Governments." Editor's Introduction.

30. Westlake, John. International law, 2d ed. Cambridge, The University press, 1910-13. 2v.

V. 1, Peace; v. 2, War.

Among the subjects discussed are the sources and principles of international law, the classification of states, the origin, continuity, and extinction of states, the title to state territory, minor territorial rights, rivers, the sea, territorial waters, nationality and alienage, national jurisdiction, diplomacy, the political action of states, the protection of subjects abroad, inter-oceanic ship canals, international arbitration, naval war as between belligerents, neutrality, Declaration of London and blockade, contraband of war, and the open questions of naval war.

"The aim has been to give a knowledge of the most important topics to English university students and average Englishmen interested in public affairs." Preface to the First Edition.

"This writer is constantly struck by the fullness of knowledge displayed in the thousands of illustrations introduced from actual practice where the incidents, poured in a steady stream of narrative from the well-filled mind of Professor Westlake, give a more complete understanding than standard works which have assumed to discuss the question at some length." Review of First Edition, by C. N. Gregory, A. J. I. L., v. 3: 247-50, 1909.

31. Wheaton, Henry. Elements of international law, with notes by Richard Henry Dana. 8th ed. Boston, Little Brown, 1866. 749 pp.

"This edition contains nothing but the text of Mr. Wheaton, according to his last revision, his notes, and the original matter contributed by the editor. . . The original contributions of the editor are all in the form of notes." Editor's Preface.

This is the best edition of this nineteenth-century classic of international law. In it the original section numbers are retained, and these have been referred to by many writers and judges.

32. Wheaton, Henry. History of the law of nations in Europe and America from the earliest times to the Treaty of Washington, 1842. N. Y., Gould, Banks & co., 1845. 797 pp.

This book contains a valuable introduction relating to the history of the European law of nations previous to the Peace of Westphalia, and gives a summary account of the international relations of the Ottoman Empire with the other European states, of the transactions relating to the interference of the great powers in the affairs of Greece and Egypt, and of the discussions between the United States and Great Britain, relating to the right of search as applicable to the African slave trade, terminated by the Treaty of Washington in 1842.

Bulletin of Bibliography

Edited by FREDERICK W. FAXON

Vol. 11      September - December, 1921      No. 6

$3.00 a year	Single Numbers, $1.00
Back Files— Complete sets , 10 vols., cloth . . . .	28.00
Bound volumes , Vols. 1-7, each . . .	3.00
Vols. 8-10, each . . .	4.00
Single numbers over two years old . . .	.25

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the records of "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World." A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired;

EDITORIAL COMMENT

In the stress of readjusting business, the printers seem to be holding back more than any other trade, insisting on the continuance of war conditions — high wages, and short hours — to their own great hurt, and to the continued demoralization of printing. The periodicals of the country have been hard hit, many have failed, more have been made irregular in issue, or size, or both, prices have almost without exception been raised. The printing of many of the metropolitan periodicals has been placed with out-of-town printers where the union rules were not as strong and better rates prevail.

In this printing crisis our ANNUAL MAGAZINE SUBJECT-INDEX and DRAMATIC INDEX was caught. Our printers of 1919 had a strike and had to start over with non-union help and inexperienced workers. They were unwilling to undertake again a difficult job like our indexes. We found that to print in Boston would double what was already an almost prohibitive cost of $15.00 a volume, so the 1920 indexes, delayed since March, are just now issued, having been printed up among the Vermont Hills at a cost one-third greater than in 1919. We have decided to take our loss this year rather than increase a price already too heavy.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

We give as frontispiece to this issue of the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY, a portrait of Clement Walker Andrews, librarian of the John Crerar Library, Chicago, since its formation in 1895. Dr. Andrews was born in Salem, Mass., and was graduated from Harvard University in the class of 1879, received his M. A. degree in 1880, and was instructor in chemistry from 1883 to 1895 in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston. He became librarian there in 1889, his library duties gradually growing to occupy the principal part of his time. When the John Crerar Library was organized in 1895, Dr. Andrews was called to Chicago to build up that great institution. His success has been notable, and this year he has had that satisfaction, which few librarians experience, of seeing his library established in its own building, planned and built according to his specifications.

In 1906-07, he was president of the American Library Association, and for years has been active in the councils of the Association. He was given the honorary degree of LL. D. by Northwestern University in 1911. He edited the Union List of Serials available in Chicago and vicinity, 1901, and its Supplement, 1906, both of which he was instrumental in having published by the John Crerar Library. He is now editor of the larger "Union List" being prepared to cover the whole Middle West.

We are glad to have this fine likeness of Dr. Andrews to add to our growing portrait gallery of notable librarians and bibliographers.

OUR NEW BOOKS

At this time we are issuing the long delayed Bibliographies of the fiction and personal narratives of the European war. This volume, covering the compilations of Miss Dawson and Miss Huntting, gives the best of the output during the years of war, and will make a good starting point on which to build by adding notable works issued since Armistice Day.

Miss Booths' "Index to Material on Picture Study" is selling well and should be in every library — and it will be when it is better known.

John Cotton Dana's "Suggestions" is an inspirational booklet of much merit. Let your staff read it; they will then better serve the public and take more interest in the library.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Mr. S. S. McClure, after ten years' vacation, has come to the rescue of his child, McClure's Magazine, and it is coming to life with March, 1922, after lying in a comatose condition for five months, October to February.

The Bookseller and Stationer ought to have more sense than to commit that blunder so stale now that it hasn't even the excuse of novelty. August 15, 1921, vol. 55, no. 4, is 10 x 7 inches; vol. 55, no. 5, September, 1, 1921, is 12 x 9 inches, and a difference of two inches each way makes some change in the appearance of a magazine — right in the middle of a volume!

Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology is the new name, since January, 1920, of Journal of Cutaneous Diseases. Vol. 38, January–June, 1920, was followed by vol. 2, July to December, 1920. Now if that isn't a skin game, or some other cutaneous disease, we are mistaken.

Geographical Society of Philadelphia Bulletin has discovered how a slow Philadelphian can come in on time at the end of the year. Vol. 19, nos. 2, 3, 4, April, July, October, 1921, come as one number — same size as all the rest — and so the publication is up-to-date again, saving the expense of two issues, by the simple addition of two figures and two month names on the cover.

International Studio. With no. 295, October, 1921, the connection of International Studio, with Studio, London, is severed, and November, 1921, appears as an American issue. Hitherto the English Studio has formed the nucleus of each issue of the International, being paged in Arabic, surrounded by the American pages in Roman figures. November, 1921, is all in Roman pagination, and bears no other mark of the change — not even an editorial note. John Lane evidently wants us to imagine that its status is unchanged.

The mix-up we referred to some months ago in the pagination is now over for all time. The subscribers in this country to International Studio must now add a new title to their lists — Studio, London. We can add that to any subscription list for 30 shillings, now about $6.00. Meanwhile International Studio will remain on nearly every subscription list for 1922, and time will tell whether it can hold its own in the competition with its English rival. Vol. 74 of the International Studio, instead of ending with the fourth number as usual, has proceeded to include November and December, 1921, as part of the volume, and let us hope that vol. 75 may begin with the New Year, and get back to normal again. Please, Mr. Editor, have two volumes of six issues each, in the year, instead of three volumes as hitherto.

School and Home Education begins vol. 41, no. 1, September, 1921, in a new small octavo size and brown cover, very neat in appearance, and we congratulate the publishers in being able to restrain that impulse to change size until the arrival of the opening of a new volume.

Illustrated Canadian Forestry Magazine is passing through that adolescent stage of unrest common to all growing youngsters. Until July, 1920, it was content to go about as Canadian Forestry Journal, but with August–September, 1920, it changes its name to Illustrated Canadian Forestry Magazine, publishes May, 1921, vol. 17, no. 5, as usual in octavo, then disappears in the big wood for June and July and comes back as a big quarto-size affair (12 x 9 inches) in August, 1921, with vol. 17, no. 6. When we changed from short pants to long trousers, we did it at home, instead of in the woods.

Theatre Magazine has established a new precedent for volume and number in the magazine world. June, 1921, is vol. XXXIII, no. 243; July, 1921, is vol. XXXIV, no. 244; August, 1921, is vol. XXXV, no. 245; September, 1921, is vol. XXXVI, no. 246. Isn't that a beautiful way of getting a large number of volumes quickly. However, October, 1921, is vol. XXXIV, no. 247, and vol. XXXIV is completed with the December number, so that we shall all live happily ever afterward.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

GAMBLE, WILLIAM BURT. The Development of Scenic Art and Stage Machinery, a list of references in the New York Public Library.

Mr. Gamble, who is chief of the science and technology department of the New York Public Library, has compiled a unique and most valuable book on the development of scenic art and on the "mechanics" of the stage. He has arranged his lists under these heads: General Works; Greek and Roman Stage, Mediaeval, English, Elizabethan, Post-Elizabethan, American, French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish, Oriental; Scenery and Stage Painting, Little Theaters, Marionettes, Lighting, Machinery, Open-air Theaters.

New York. The N. Y. Public Library. 1920. 128 pp. Paper. (Reprinted from the N. Y. Public Library Bulletin.) 40c.

HAZELTINE, ALICE I., compiler. Plays for Children, an Annotated Index.

This is a second edition of what originally appeared as the August, 1918, Bulletin of the St. Louis Public Library. It is revised, and has been enlarged by the inclusion of thirty-seven additional books of plays. There are now covered one hundred and thirty-four plays for children, and this index is preceded by lists of: Books of interest to those producing children's plays; Books about costume; Folk dances and singing games. At the end of the volume are: An author list of books indexed; Plays for special days; Other plays for special occasions; Special form.

Chicago. The A. L. A. 1921. 116 pp. Cloth. $1.50.

HICKS, FREDERICK C. Men and Books famous in the Law.

This book is an appeal to the human interest side of the law, an attempt to show in the lives of English and American law writers, that law need not be considered as dry and uninteresting, that law books are something more than mere tools of a profession.

How well Mr. Hicks has succeeded in accomplishing his purpose one can discover by a perusal of this very readable book. It is bibliography made human, biography linked to authorship of some of the world's famous books.

The chapters cover: 'The Human Appeal of Law Books'; Cowell's Interpreter; Lord Coke and The Reports; Littleton and Coke upon Littleton; Blackstone and his Commentaries; James Kent and his Commentaries; Edward Livingston and his System of Penal Law; Henry Wheaton.

There is an introduction by Harlan F. Stone, and an appendix entitled "Bibliographical Suggestions." Seven illustrations, portraits of the men described, are included.

Rochester, N. Y. The Lawyers' Co-operative Publishing Co. 1921. 259 pp.

HYDE, DORSEY W., JR., editor. Special Libraries Directory.

This is a distinct addition to the library literature. We now have a very full list of those newer creations, special libraries, that hitherto were supposed to exist in various places, but were very hard to locate unless the librarian happened to be a good advertiser. Now we have an annotated list, arranged first under general subject, and then by states and cities. An ingenious subject index is added, so that a searcher for a special library covering a special subject can easily find it.

Washington, D. C. Special Libraries Association. 1921. Paper. 123 pp.

MOORE, ANNIE CARROLL. Roads to Childhood. Miss Moore is supervisor of work with children in the New York Public Library. She has compiled an intensely readable book of "views and reviews" of children's books, dedicated to Miss Caroline M. Hewins of Hartford.

These are in this volume lists of books for children of different ages, and interesting comments on children's best reading.

New York. Geo. H. Doran Co. 1920. 240 pp. $1.50.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. The Year of Delight.

Here is a kind of wistful, gay love story of a young girl who fell heir to six million dollars over night, after being shut off from the kind of friends she craved and from the sort of life she desired until her twenty-first year. Did her new wealth bring her her heart's desire? That's what we read this story to find out.

New York. Harcourt, Brace & Howe. 1921. 311 pp. $1.90

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. I've Married Marjorie.

This story of our young authoress deals like so many recent novels with the European war. Marjorie is a war bride whose boy husband was whisked away to France two hours after the wedding. Having had but a month's acquaintance with her lover, Marjorie is beset with fears that on his return her love romance will be shattered. How he came back and she found her happiness is the pretty story before us.

New York. Harcourt, Brace & Howe. 1920. 258 pp. $1.75.

WROTH, LAWRENCE C. A History of Printing in Colonial Maryland, 1686-1776.

This is the typographical history of colonial Maryland, and the author has covered a period of forty years, about which little or nothing has hitherto been written in the history of the Press. The book is illustrated by the inclusion of various broadsides and title-pages; it contains a very valuable "list of books, newspapers, and broadsides printed in Maryland from 1689-1776.

The edition is limited to 500 copies at $7.50, and to such de luxe copies at $30 as were ordered before the book went to press.

Baltimore. The Typothetae of Baltimore. 1921.

From the American Library Association we have received:

TAPPERT, KATHERINE. Viewpoints in Biography; an arrangement of books according to their essential interest.

This pamphlet gives a new angle to biography in that it classifies the books listed by their subject of interest, instead of by names of people. Thus material can be found on such matters as music, Orient, Conquerors, Art, Religious experiences, and many others.

69 pp. with an author and a subject index. 1921. Paper.

HOWE, HARRIET E. The Catalog, a preprint of chapter 19, Manual of Library Economy.

23 pp. Paper. 20c.

HYDE, DORSEY W., JR. Workshops for assembling business facts.

24 pp. Paper. 20c.

From the H. W. Wilson Company we have received:

BACON, CORINNE, AND MERTICE JAMES. Children's Catalog Supplement, 1921, a guide to the best reading for boys and girls. 950 books chosen from those published from June, 1916, to July 1, 1921, arranged by author, title, and subject, with analytical entries for 116 volumes.

128 pp. 75c. (Additional copies on thin paper in lots of ten or more, 15c. each.)

PLAYS FOR AMATEURS, a selected list prepared by the Little Theater department of the N. Y. Drama League. 24 pp. Paper. 1921. 60c.

We call attention here to a mimeographed Table of Contents and Alphabetical Index (price 10c.) which has been compiled by Mrs. Jessie Luther of the Kellogg Library, Kansas State Normal School. It covers Burns Mantle's "Best Plays of 1919-20, published in 1920 by Small, Maynard, & Co.

SELECT LIST OF REFERENCES ON PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Compiled by Florence C. Bell, Librarian of the U. S. Bureau of Efficiency

ABBREVIATIONS

A. J. I. L. — American Journal of International Law.

A dash (—) after date or volume number indicates that the title is still being published.

The titles marked with a star (*) are publications of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 2 Jackson Place, Washington, D. C. A large number of libraries are depositaries for all of the publications of the Endowment.

PART III

33. Wilson, George Grafton, and George Fox Tucker International law. Boston, Silver, Burdett and co., [c1915]. 505 pp.

Contents of the Appendices are as follows: Instructions for the government of armies of the United States in the field; Declaration of Paris; Convention for the amelioration of the condition of the wounded in armies in the field, Geneva, July 6, 1906; Convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes; Convention with respect to the laws and customs of war on land; Convention respecting the rights and duties of neutral powers and persons in case of war on land; Convention relative to the status of enemy merchant-ships at the outbreak of hostilities; Convention for the adaptation to naval war of the principles of the Geneva convention; Convention with regard to the exercise of the right of capture in naval war; Convention relative to the creation of an international prize court; Convention concerning the rights and duties of neutral powers in naval war; Declaration of London; United States neutrality laws; Procedure in prize court.

"It is clear, logical, well proportioned, accurate. . . There is probably no book of like compass which gives so comprehensive a view of the subject." Review, by J. H. Latané, A. J. I. L., v. 4: 772-3, 1910.

DISCUSSIONS REGARDING PARTICULAR WARS

4. Baty, Thomas. International law in South Africa. London, Stevens and Haynes, 1900. 127 pp.

Contents: Contraband for neutral ports; The suzerainty; Passage of troops over neutral territory; Conduct of warfare; Annexation; Limited companies in the war; Comparative summary of the Transvaal conventions of 1881 and 1884.

5. Benton, Elbert Jay. International law and diplomacy of the Spanish-American war. Baltimore, Johns Hopkins press, 1908. 300 pp.

"This work is intended as a study of the relations of the United States with Spain during the late Cuban insurrection and the resultant Spanish war. The history of the conduct of the belligerents from the standpoint of international law has been emphasized." Preface.

6. Garner, James Wilford. International law and the world war. N. Y., Longmans, 1920. 2v.

The author discusses the status of international law at the outbreak of the war; treatment of enemy diplomatic and consular representatives; the policy of the more important belligerent powers in respect to alien enemies, enemy merchant vessels in port at the outbreak of the war, transfers of flag, and trade with the enemy; forbidden weapons and instrumentalities; treatment of hostages; devastation; submarines and war zones; submarine warfare; the status of armed merchant vessels; bombardments; destruction of historic monuments; aerial warfare; violations of the Geneva convention; treatment of prisoners; military government in Belgium; contributions and requisitions; collective fines; deportation of civilians; the invasion of Belgium and Luxemburg; the Anglo-French occupation of Greece; destruction of neutral merchant vessels; contraband and right of search; blockade; interference with mails on neutral vessels; exportation of arms and munitions to belligerents; miscellaneous questions of neutrality; effect of the war on international law, etc.

The purpose of this treatise is "to review the conduct of the belligerents in respect to their interpretation and application of the rules of international law, compare it with the opinion of the authorities and the practice in former wars and wherever infractions appeared, to endeavor to determine the responsibility and to place it where it properly belonged." Preface.

37. Hershey, Amos Shartle. The international law and diplomacy of the Russo-Japanese war. N. Y., London, Macmillan, 1906. 394 pp.

"In view of the importance of the issues involved and the general interest manifested in the subject, perhaps no apology is needed for the appearance of a volume which aims to be a fairly complete history, from the point of view of international law and diplomacy, of the Russo-Japanese War. This great conflict not only aided in the solution of many disputed questions in international law, but it also gave rise to a number of new precedents and controversies which will materially affect the future conduct of international affairs. It furnished a particularly interesting and important field for the application of those principles governing the rights and duties of neutrals, which are of comparatively recent origin, and to the growth of which the United States has largely contributed." Preface.

38. Takahashi, Sakuyei. International law applied to the Russo-Japanese war. N. Y., Banks law publishing co., 1908. 805 pp.

"The Russo-Japanese War is significant as one of the most important events the world ever witnessed. Especially is it an epoch-making event in the evolution of international law. This war, in fact, has afforded innumerable cases that illustrate almost every article of the Geneva and the Hague Conventions relating to laws and customs of land and naval warfare. . . . In the present volume I have included all matters, both naval and military, which occurred during the late war, for my official position enabled me to study both branches. Now I am permitted to publish what I believe will be a material aid to the study of diplomacy and international law." Preface.

CASES

39. Bentwich, Norman. Students' leading cases and statutes on international law. London, Sweet & Maxwell, 1913. 247 pp.

"This book is primarily designed for students who are starting on the study of international law. . . . No attempt has been made to render it sufficient in itself, or to link up the leading cases with such an amount of commentary as would render the use of a text-book unnecessary. In this respect, the collection of cases differs from that made by Mr. Pitt-Cobbett, and it differs also in that it gives the ipsissima verba of the judges, in place of a digest or summary of their judgments. . . . It is very desirable that the student . . . should study not only the results of the cases but the methods by which the results are reached. There exists already a well-known selection of international law cases in English, based on this principle. It is that originally made by Professor Snow and subsequently edited and enlarged by Professor J. B. Scott. . . . I have . . . made my selection as far as possible from the English cases, and I have used American cases only to supplement the English or to fill a gap in the chain of English authority." Preface.

40. Cobbett, Pitt. Cases and opinions on international law, and various points of English law connected therewith. Collected and digested from English and foreign reports, official documents, and other sources. With notes containing the views of the text-writers on the topics referred to, supplementary cases, treaties, and statutes. 3d ed. London, Stevens and Haynes, 1909-1913. 2v.

"This selection of illustrative cases was originally designed mainly as a kind of adjunct or companion volume to existing text-books; and this character it in some measure still retains. But in the present edition, with a view to insuring a greater continuity of treatment, and a fuller consideration of the many recent changes both in the subject-matter and literature of international law, systematic notes have been added. . . . The cases selected are, indeed, largely of English or American origin." Preface to Third Edition.

41. Evans, Lawrence Boyd. Leading cases on international law. Chicago, Callaghan & co., 1917. 477 pp.

"The present collection of cases was intended to be a brief one and in such form as to make it useful to students. Therefore 'it is confined to decisions from British and American jurisdiction.' . . . The new work cannot well replace the more extended collection of Dr. James Brown Scott (founded on that of Dr. Snow) covering nearly 1,000 pages, especially if the older compilation is brought to date, as is purposed, by a new edition. Dr. Evans' volume, however, has a distinct advantage in its condensation, its modernity, and its extended reference to authoritative periodical monographs, often so difficult to discover and yet so illuminating and convincing when found. In these points the new work must prove of especial convenience and value." Review, by C. N. Gregory, A. J. I. L., v. 12: 220-22, 1918.

42. Scott, James Brown, ed. Cases on international law. St. Paul, West, 1906. 961 pp.

"The present book was intended to be a revision of the late Dr. Snow's Cases and Opinions on International Law, published in 1893. The changes made in the course of revision were, however, so many and so radical that it seemed advisable to the publisher to issue it as an independent work, and it so appears. The arrangement closely follows Dr. Snow's; in fact, it is identical with it in most respects. His text has been utilized so far as possible; his notes have generally been retained and enlarged, and the syllabus has been thoroughly revised and remade. Much of the merit — if any there be — justly belongs to Dr. Snow, but the present editor is responsible for the undertaking as a whole." Preface.

This is one of the best compilations of cases on international law.

43. *Scott, James Brown. Judicial settlement of controversies between states of the American union; an analysis of cases decided in the Supreme Court of the United States. Oxford, The Clarendon Press, 1919. 548 pp.

"The experience of the Union of American States shows that a court of justice can be created for the Society of Nations, occupying a like position and rendering equal, if not greater services, applying to the solution of controversies between its members 'Federal law, state law and international law, as the exigencies of the particular case may demand.'

"The undersigned has, in addition to the publication of the eighty decrees of the Supreme Court in controversies between states, prepared this analysis of the controversies and of the decrees of the court, eliminating matter which might be deemed irrelevant to the present purpose, disregarding or explaining technicalities which would confuse the layman, but otherwise allowing each case and each decree to tell its story in the language of the court and of the judge delivering its opinion." Prefatory Note by J. B. Scott.

(See also item No. 46.)

44. Stowell, Ellery C., and Henry F. Munroe. International cases. Boston, Houghton, Mifflin co. [c1916]. 2v.

"In addition to the main purpose of furnishing a book of cases for classroom study, this collection is intended to present a concise account of some of the most important arbitrations. . . . The selection of the cases in this volume from the mass of material and the hundreds of cases examined has been determined by the effort to give due weight to the relative importance of the following desiderata — 1. The most important arbitrations; 2. The most important diplomatic incidents discussed between the governments of the principal states; 3. A large proportion of recent material; 4. Cases which are authoritative and which have been important in the formation of international law; 5. Striking cases of dramatic human interest; 6. Cases sufficiently simple to be easily comprehended, yet complex enough to be representative and to challenge attention." Preface by E. C. Stowell.

45. Takahashi, Sakuyei. Cases on international law during the Chino-Japanese war. Cambridge, The University press, 1899. 219 pp.

"During the Chino-Japanese war of 1894-95 Japan acted consistently with the law of nations in carrying on hostilities, in maintaining her own rights and in discharging her duties toward neutrals. . . . The arrangement adopted in the book is as follows: In Part I the author has treated the affairs which relate to visit search and detention — in short prize affairs, and in Part II he has described and discussed miscellaneous affairs which have a bearing upon the naval operations of Japan." Author's Preface.

"Mr. Takahashi has exceptional claims to speak with authority upon the subject of which he treats. . . . Mr. Takahashi's narrative is always clear, and his arguments are, as a rule, convincing. The value of the work is greatly increased by the official documents — proclamations, reports, opinions, conventions and regulations with which its statements are copiously illustrated." Preface by T. E. Holland.

46. *U. S. Supreme Court. Judicial settlement of controversies between states of the American union cases decided in the Supreme Court of the United States, ed. by J. B. Scott, N. Y., London, Oxford university press, 1918-19. 2v.

"The Supreme Court of the United States is in its origin, and in fact, an international tribunal. . . . In a little over a century . . . some eighty odd controversies between the states have been argued, debated and decided by the tribunal. As the result of argument, debate and decision, practice has been settled, and procedure adopted in the light of experience a applicable to states of the society of nations, as to states of the American Union." Prefatory Note, by J. B. Scott.

CLASSICS

47. *Grotius, Hugo. The freedom of the seas; or, The right which belongs to the Dutch to take part in the East Indian trade; a dissertation by Hugo Grotius, tr. with a revision of the Latin text of 1633 by Ralph Van Deman Magoffin, ed. by J. B. Scott. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1916. 83 pp.

"The title of the little book, first published, anonymously, in November, 1608, explains the reason for its composition. . . . It was an open secret that it was written by the young Dutch scholar and lawyer, Hugo Grotius. It was a secret and remained a secret until 1868 that the Mare Liberum was none other than Chapter XII of the treatise De Jure Praedae, written by Grotius in the winter of 1604-5, which first came to light in 1864 and was given to the world four years later. The publication of the treatise on the law of prize is important as showing that the author of the Mare Liberum was already an accomplished international lawyer, and it proves beyond peradventure that the masterpiece of 1625 on the "Law of War and Peace" was not a hurried production, but the culmination of study and reflection extending over twenty years and more." Introductory Note, by J. B. Scott.

48. Grotius, Hugo. Hugonis Grotii De jure belli et pacis libri tres, accompanied by an abridged translation by William Whewell. London, J. W. Parker, 1853. 3v.

"It is acknowledged by every one," says Mr. Hallam, "that the publication of this treatise made an epoch in the philosophical, and we might almost say in the political history of Europe." This opinion of the importance of Grotius's work De Jure Belli et Pacis, prevailed from the time of its first appearance. . . . Nor has it, at this day, ceased to be a book of the first rate importance in this science. . . . A knowledge of it is taken for granted in the discussions of questions belonging to that subject; and it is quoted among the cardinal authorities on such questions. And treating, as it does, of the fundamental points of philosophical ethics, as well as of their application in the laws of nations, it has, in that department also, been always regarded as a primary work." Editor's Preface.

49. Selden, John. Mare clausum: the right and the dominion of the sea in two books. Written at first in Latin by . . . John Selden . . . Formerly tr. into English, and now perfected and restored by J. H. London, Printed for A. Kembe and E. Thomas, 1663. 500 pp.

"Additional evidences concerning the right of sovereignty and dominion of the kings of Great Britain in the sea. Collected out of certain public papers, relating to the reigns of King James and King Charls," is included.

With this is bound: Dominium maris . . . 1663. "When [in 1608] Spain was proposing to Holland terms which included the abandonment by the republic of the commerce of the Indies, he [Grotius] published the twelfth chapter of the De Jure Praedae under the title of Mare Liberum, in order to animate his countrymen to refuse such an accommodation; and this work became famous at a somewhat later date, when Selden, in order to maintain the sovereignty of England over the narrow seas, published in answer to it the equally famous Mare Clausum." Collected Papers of John Westlake, p. 38, 1914.

50. Vattel, Emmerich de. Le droit des gens; ou, Principes de la loi naturelle appliqués à la conduite et aux affaires des nations et des souverains, par M. de Vattel, with an introduction by Albert de Lapradelle. Washington, Carnegie institution of Washington, 1916. 3v.

Title of v. 3 is in English: The law of nations; or, The principles of natural law applied to the conduct and to the affairs of nations and of sovereigns.

Contents: v. 1. Reproduction of books I and II of edition of 1758; v. 2. Reproduction of books III and IV of edition of 1758; v. 3. Translation of the edition of 1758, by Charles G. Fenwick, with an introduction by Albert de Lapradelle.

"Le droit des gens. Bibliographie des ses différentes éditions"; v. 1, p. lvi-lix.

"Vattel's treatise dropped from his hands a classic, and classic it has remained ever since. . . . Two works appeared within a decade of one another, to which the United States is profoundly indebted. The first was Sir William Blackstone's Commentaries upon the Laws of England. . . . The second was Vattel's Droit des Gens. . . (1758). From the Commentaries . . . the statesmen of the American Colonies derived their knowledge of the common law of England . . . and from Vattel's Droit des Gens the same statesmen derived their knowledge of the law of nations, which they were to apply and which they did actually apply on the war with Great Britain which made us a nation." Preface to v. 1, by J. B. Scott.

CONFERENCES

51. Conference on international relations, Ithaca, N. Y., 1915. Proceedings of the Conference on international relations, held at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., June 15-30, 1915. Boston, World peace foundation, 1916. 418 pp.

Contains papers and discussions by leading internationalists on international subjects, among them being Pan-American relations, America's Asiatic problem, armaments, a league of peace, and economic aspects of war.

"The Conference on international relations . . . was an attempt to apply rational and scientific methods to some of the great outstanding problems of war and peace. . . . Because of the complete freedom of discussion which prevailed in the conference, the World Peace Foundation cannot be understood as endorsing all the views contained in the addresses of this volume. On the contrary, a large part of the value of the conference and its proceedings lies in the fact that so many points of view are represented." Preface by George W. Nasmyth.

52. International American conference. 1st, Washington, D. C., 1889-1900. Reports and recommendations. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1890. 434 pp.

Contents: Plan of arbitration; Reciprocity treaties; Inter-continental railway; Steam-ship communication; Sanitary regulations; Customs regulations; Common silver coin; Patents and trade-marks; Weights and measures; Port dues; International law; Extradition treaties; International bank; Memorial tablet; Columbian exposition.

This is a collection of Senate executive documents giving the report and recommendations concerning a plan of arbitration for the settlement of disputes between the American republics adopted by the International American conference.

53. *Pan-American scientific congress. 2d, Washington, D. C., 1915-1916. Recommendations on international law and official commentary thereon of the second Pan American scientific congress, held in Washington December 27, 1915—January 8, 1916; ed. by J. B. Scott. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1916. 53 pp.

"The present little volume contains recommendations of the second Pan American scientific congress relating to international law, as they appear in the final act of the congress, and they are accompanied by that part of the official report, prepared by the undersigned, explaining, interpreting, and justifying them, if perchance they need justification." Prefatory Note by J. B. Scott.

HAGUE PEACE CONFERENCES AND REPORTS

54. *Hague. International peace conference, 1899. The Hague conventions and declarations of 1899 and 1907, accompanied by tables of signatures, ratifications and adhesions of the various powers and texts of reservations; ed. by J. B. Scott, 3d ed. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1915. 303 pp.

The arrangement is excellent, the text of action taken on each convention by the conferences of 1899 and 1907 being given in parallel columns.

55. *Hague. Permanent court of arbitration. The Hague court reports, comprising the awards, accompanied by syllabi, the agreements for arbitration, and other documents in each case submitted to the Permanent court of arbitration and to commissions of inquiry under the provisions of the conventions of 1899 and 1907, for the pacific settlement of international disputes; ed. by J. B. Scott. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1916. 664 pp.

Contents: Arbitrations before the Hague Tribunals—The Pious Fund case, the Venezuelan Preferential case, The Japanese house tax case, The Muscat dhows case, The Casablanca case, The Grisbadarna case, The North Atlantic coast fisheries case, The Orinoco steamship company case, The Savarkar case, The Canavaro case, The Russian indemnity case, The Carthage case, The Manouba case, The Island of Timor case; Reports of the Hague Commissions of Inquiry—The North Sea or Dogger Bank case, The Tavignano, Camouna and Gaulois cases.

"It was the purpose in preparing and publishing this volume to meet the numerous requests received by the Division of International Law of the Endowment for accurate information respecting the various cases which have come before tribunals of the Permanent court or before commissions of inquiry under the provisions of the above-named [i.e. Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907] conventions."

The introduction gives an interesting sketch of the development of the use of arbitration to decide international disputes from the time of John Jay to 1916.

56. Higgins, Alexander Pearce. The Hague peace conferences and other international conferences concerning the laws and usages of war. Cambridge, The University press, 1909. 632 pp.

"Dr. A. Pearce Higgins is the author of what is, in my opinion, by far the most instructive and valuable work that has been written on the Hague Conferences and the London Naval Conference of 1909. His account of these conferences is equally clear and accurate, and his criticism of the work achieved by them is remarkable for its great ability and perfect impartiality. He does not belong to those writers who eulogize everything done at the Hague or in London; on the contrary he proves in several cases that the terms of the Conventions are so vague and uncertain and contain so many conditions and qualifications, that they will be found to be of little or no value. But whilst he does not allow his judgment to be blinded by the humanitarian principles so profusely expressed in the recitals and preambles of the Conventions and in the speeches of the delegates, Dr. Higgins does not fail to recognize the valuable results which have been actually attained." Introductory Note by Arthur Cohen in Higgins, A. P. War and the Private Citizen.

57. Holls, Frederick William. The peace conference at The Hague. N. Y., London, Macmillan, 1900. 572 pp.

"In this book the aim has been to tell what took place, with sufficient fulness for the student of international law, but without making the book too technical for the general reader. The present writer frankly avows his conviction that the Peace Conference accomplished a great and glorious result, not only in the humanizing of warfare and the codification of the laws of war, but, above all, in the promulgation of the Magna Charta of international law, the binding together of the civilized powers in a federation for justice, and the establishment of a permanent International Court of Arbitration. As this book is written primarily for American and English readers, particular attention has been paid to the action of the American and British governments. . . . It is believed, however, that nothing of importance, bearing upon the attitude and actions of the other Powers, has been omitted." Preface.

The author was a member of the conference from the United States of America.

(Lettered on cover: The work of the Hague, v. 1. Carnegie endowment for international peace.)

"After a careful discussion of the nature of the conference, the services which it has rendered . . . the author proposes that the third conference adopt a convention defining the aim and purpose of the conference, the period at which it shall meet, the procedure to be followed by it in the conduct of its business, and the details necessary to perfect its organization." Introductory Note, by J. B. Scott.

"The first three chapters are in the nature of an introduction to the conferences and give a survey of their positive results. The fourth chapter states the composition and personnel of the delegations and seeks to show the influence exercised by the delegations and important delegates. The subsequent chapters analyze the various conventions, declarations, resolutions and voeux of the conferences generally in the order of the final acts. The second volume contains the instructions to the American delegations, their official reports, the diplomatic correspondence preceding the conferences and the texts which, matured at the conferences and ratified by the participating powers, have become international law." Preface.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

This is the spring issue of the Bulletin of Bibliography and contains much of use to librarians, and offers in its cover advertising pages an unusual selection of Periodical Sets, as well as notices of new books.

The problem of library subscriptions has received careful study by our Subscription Department, and suggestions toward the improvement of service will be cheerfully made to any librarian contemplating a change in expiration date from December to a less congested time. Many are already shifting to June or September. For a college library there seems to be an especially good reason for subscriptions to commence with the college year. Write us about it. Our subscription service is for libraries exclusively, and no other agent carries back numbers in stock.

OUR FRONTISPICE

There are very few librarians who can point to a record of service in one library for thirty years. Such, however, is the record of Bernard C. Steiner, librarian of the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore since 1892. He is a native of Connecticut, and was graduated from Yale University in 1888, won his Doctor of Philosophy degree at Johns Hopkins in 1891, and was given his LL.B. by the University of Maryland in 1894. He was instructor in history at Williams College in 1891-2. During his long term as head of the Public Library of Baltimore he has found time to serve as instructor in history at Johns Hopkins, as dean and professor of constitutional law in Baltimore University, and as dean and professor of public law in the Baltimore Law School.

He has also been active in the Maryland Historical Society and in many civic associations of Baltimore. He is the author of many books, and has been contributor to various historical and genealogical periodicals. A member of the American Library Association since 1893, he has served on many committees, and attended twenty-five A. L. A. conferences. We are glad to add his portrait to our gallery of librarians.

PLAYS OF 1921

We have just published a very timely and useful pamphlet entitled "Index to Plays (in English) published during 1921." It is arranged by titles and by authors, and was compiled by J. Bentley Mulford of the Library of Congress.

Every librarian will want this, as it will be invaluable for those people who enjoy reading dramatic literature, for those who wish to read a play because they expect to see it on stage or screen, and for those who would read of what they have seen in the theater.

Price $1.00 in paper.

TAGORE

We have just issued a reprint, in handy pamphlet form, of Dr. Kitch's "Bibliography of Tagore." This is No. 26 in Bulletin of Bibliography Pamphlets, and may be had for 25c. postpaid.

SERIES AND SEQUELS FOR JUVENILE READERS

Our little booklet bearing the above title has been found very useful wherever children's work is done. It is out-of-print, but we shall issue a new and revised edition next fall. Suggestions as to new entries or omissions will be very welcome to the compiler and may be sent to the Bulletin editor.

COMMERCIAL LAW

We call special attention to the notice in the advertising pages of the last chance to get complete sets of "The Commercial Laws of the World," a monumental work, which the business men of all cities will find a valuable aid in handling foreign contracts.

MAGAZINES UNKNOWN TO LIBRARIES

All the "domesticated" periodicals can be consulted in almost any library of size, and there are general indexes to guide the reader to what he wishes. Do you know how many "wild" magazines are to-day crouching on every news stand ready to spring at the unwary reader. They have no general subject-indexes to hold them in leash, but each is its own best index, for what the cover picture does not tell, the name, in nearly every case, indicates. And all these untamed youngsters or vamps are fiction, fiction only, not one article on any informing topic, only stories, and then more stories. Listen while we call the roll: Ace-High Stories, Action Stories, Adventure, Ainslee's Magazine, Argosy-All Story Weekly, Black Cat, Black Mask, Blue Book, Breezy Stories, Brief Stories, Clever Stories, Detective Stories, Everybody's, Fascinating Fiction, I Confess, Live Stories, Love Story Magazine, Munsey's, Mystery Magazine, People's Story Magazine, Popular Magazine, Saucy Stories, Sea Stories, Short Stories, Smart Set, Snappy Stories, Telling Tales, Ten-Story Book, Top-Notch Magazine, True Story Magazine, Wayside Tales, Western Story Magazine, World Fiction, Young's Magazine. Isn't that quite some bunch—thirty-four of 'em; and for good measure let us add All Fiction Quarterly, Blue Moon, Droll Stories, Pepper Pot, Spice Box, and The Thriller, which are quarterly issues of some of the others, selling the same fiction over again three months later.

A close second to these wild animals at large are those in captivity—the movie herd—let us look behind the screen and see:—Dramatic Mirror and Screen, Film Fun, Film Play, Film Stories Magazine, Motion Picture Classic, Motion Picture Magazine, Movie Digest, Movie Weekly, Moving Picture Stories, Pantomime, Picture Play Magazine, Photo Drama Magazine, Photoplay, Screenland, Shadowland.

Fifteen more, most of them stories only, and the great majority illustrated. The high cost of printing seems not to have troubled all this news stand progeny.

RADIO

The latest craze is Radio Telephony and already there are magazines devoted to this newest of inventions:

Popular Radio, New York. Vol. 1, no. 1, May, 1922.

Q. S. T., Hartford, Conn. Vol. 5, no. 9, April, 1922.

Radio, San Francisco. Vol. 4, no. 5, May, 1922.

Radio Age, Chicago. Vol. 1, no. 1, May, 1922.
Radio Broadcast, New York. Vol. 1, no. 1, May, 1922.

Radio Digest, Chicago. Vol. 1, no. 1, May, 1922.
Radio Digest Illustrated, Chicago. Vol. 1, no. 1, April 15, 1922.

Radio News, New York. Vol. 3, nos. 10-11, April-May, 1922.

Radio Service Bulletin, Washington.
Radio Topics. Oak Park, Ill. Vol. 2, no. 3, April, 1922.

Radio World, New York. Vol. 1, no. 1, April 1, 1922.

Wireless Age, New York. Vol. 9, no. 7, April, 1922.

Wireless World and Radio Review, London. Vol. 10, no. 1, April 1, 1922.

These are a few we have noted on news stands in April, 1922.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Dramatic Mirror, after 2,247 weekly issues, has blossomed into a monthly. January 7 was last weekly issue of vol. lxxxv (sic), and March 22, 1922, is no. 2,248, the first monthly issue. By the way, when Mr. Wyckoff prints his volume number as lxxxv he means vol. 85. We called at his office last winter and he wouldn't see us—extra cross, we'll say he is—and this volume number shows him right up, doesn't it. With April, 1922, it died.

Leslie's Weekly, the "oldest weekly illustrated newspaper in the United States" has adopted an 11 $\frac{1}{8}$  x 8 $\frac{1}{4}$  little dinky size, with a pretty colored cover and some "insides" which would be much increased in attractiveness could a better paper be used for the illustrations and a larger type for our eyes. The new size came on May 21, 1921. Each issue is paged separately!

Survey Graphic, vol. 1, no. 1, November, 1921, made its bow to the subscribing public, and—my word! It was a real surprise, and struck a new note in magazine publishing. For it is really only an enlarged, illustrated number of the weekly Survey, and we all get it with our regular subscriptions to the weekly, into which it is paged. In fact vol. 1, no. 1, is paged from 131 to 194. If you don't want the weekly you can get the Survey Graphic for $3.00, twelve issues. And the issue which goes to the weekly subscribers is called "Survey, Graphic Edition," and is dated vol. 47, no. 5, October 29, 1921, and the monthly subscription gets the same thing called Survey Graphic, vol. 1, no. 1, November, 1921. "Mike and Ike, they look alike."

"System," a little farce in three acts. Time, spring of 1922.

March 7. Act I. Publisher of System:—Dear Sir:—We are informed by Adelbert College Library that there is some irregularity in the receipt of numbers of System, for which we paid you.

The F. W. F. Co.

March 14. Act II. Adelbert College Library—Gentlemen:—The Faxon Company writes us that you are having some trouble with your subscription to System. We find it correctly entered and will not expire until December, 1922.

Collection Manager System.

March 18. Act III: Adelbert College Library:—Sirs:—We have your signed order for a renewal subscription to System. Frankly, what did you mean by signing such an order, and then refusing to pay, even after three bills are sent you!

Collection Manager System.

Other libraries desiring to receive a special three-act skit, need not write — just wait — you will get yours soon.

Tennessee Historical Magazine. Vol. 6, no. 4, January, 1921 [issued December, 1921] is the legend on the front cover, and inside we find it called vol. 6, no. 3, October, 1920. This last is simply a misprint, but we note it as a matter of record, while sending our best wishes to the editor, who is willing to give, where all may see it, the record of his slowness. Future bibliographers will bless him for those words.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

JASTROW, MORRIS, JR. The Song of Songs. This book completes the trilogy that Morris Jastrow planned, studied for, and published, though he did not live to see this third book in completed form. We have already noticed his "Gentle Cynic" and "Book of Job." This, the new interpretation of "The Song of Songs," is, as its sub-title states, "a collection of love lyrics of Ancient Palestine." The songs are profusely annotated and the author makes them show their real beauty and irresistible appeal. The "Song of Solomon" of our Old Testament becomes disclosed as a series of beautiful love songs of long ago.

Phila. J. B. Lippincott Co. 1921. 246 pp. $3.00.

KRAUSE, LOUISE B. Better Business Libraries. A book of 128 pages, being a series of articles reprinted from "Trained Men," after revision and being brought up to date.

Chicago. $1.30.

From the American Library Association we have received the following:

THE UNITED STATES, a short reading list of popular books on American history, government, ideals, and literature. This pamphlet was originally issued by the Buffalo public library, and compiled by Mrs. Theresa Elmendorf.

Chicago, 1922. 20 pp.

BOOKLIST BOOKS, 1921. A selection. In a pamphlet of seventy-six pages the best books of the year are selected, arranged by divisions: General literature, fiction, children's books, technical books, and at the end an author-subject index.

Chicago. 1922. 76 pp. 25c.

From the H. W. Wilson Co. we have received the following:

DISARMAMENT: selected articles, compiled by Mary K. Reely. This is one of the "Handbook Series," and contains a collection of the more desirable recent articles on this subject, a summary of congressional action, intimation of what war will be like in future. There is a selected bibliography and list of organizations working for and against disarmament.

New York. 1921. 320 pp. $2.25.

INDEPENDENCE FOR THE PHILIPPINES, selected articles on. Compiled by Julia E. Johnsen. A pamphlet in the "Abridged Debater's Handbook Series."

1921. 86 pp. 75c.

ON BUYING AND USING PRINT, practical suggestions from a librarian to the business man, by John Cotton Dana.

60 pages, paper. 50c.

DIRECTIONS FOR THE LIBRARIAN OF A SMALL LIBRARY, by Zaidee Brown, a new edition revised by Anna G. Hall.

Autographed Books of the Grosvenor Library

By George Hibbard, Assistant Librarian

How the Grosvenor Library, Buffalo, New York, first came to collect autographed books is lost in the dim and distant mists of five years ago. Whether the practice came about through accident or whether it was formally adopted has now been forgotten. Anyhow the library has for some time been gathering together volumes of contemporary writers in which they have inscribed their names. As to autographed books of the past, no attempt has been made to obtain them. A "presentation copy" with the name of some famous writer of other days, the library is certainly glad to have. Still, in regard to its acquisition, the price would be a "fancy one," and out of all proportion to the usefulness such a volume would have for the library. If such a book is presented, as has been the case, the Grosvenor is, of course, delighted to receive it and add it to its other literary rarities. On the other hand, with the autographs of living writers which the library seeks to get, there are not the same drawbacks. These in turn are really presentation copies to the library and are the generous gifts of the authors.

Not that the way of the library is to ask the authors for their books. That would be too much like urging a willing horse, and all the writers have always been very willing in their kindness in giving autographs. Some book is taken, or some books are taken, already in the library, for inscription with the author's name. Neither does the library send books out of town. The method of procedure is to wait until the celebrity comes to the city and then approach him or her and obtain the desired signature.

Buffalo has become so large, and its relations with the rest of the country and the world have become so extended, that famous men and women are constantly coming to it. They come as speakers for some cause. They come as lecturers on some particular subject. They come as the friends of Buf-falonians. Whatever brings them, the library is on the lookout, and, if possible, no one whose name is well known is allowed to escape without an autograph.

Fortunately those who are called upon to take this trouble do not seem displeased and are always very genial about it. This is proved by the fact that for the most part they very kindly go out of their way to write a little more than the mere signature. A good wish and expression of opinion or a quotation is frequently added. They do not seem to mind doing what is asked of them, and indeed the library does not feel that it is asking too much. To dash off a signed line or two does not take long, and then the library has a book for all time which has a greatly enhanced interest for the reader of the present and for the reader of the years to come. In fact, as a city institution, it is adding in a small way to the city's literary possessions. In all the auction sales the fact that a book is auto-graphed increases its auction value; and the greater the writer, the greater the increased value of the book. Not that the money value of a book is really of any great importance to a public library, which never expects to sell the book and never will sell it. Indeed something of an anomaly, if not a paradox, may be found in connection with the money value of books in regard to a public library. The fact is that as soon as a book is placed on the shelves, it absolutely loses its money value. It is always going to stay there and in a money and mercantile way a thing is only valuable because it will sell. If a thing is never going to be sold, as a public library book, then in this way it has no value.

Still, after a fashion, a book's value is to be considered by a library, for it would not be more valuable without some real reason. The worth of an autographed book really comes from the fact that the signature seems to place it more closely in connection with the author, and therefore bring the reader nearer to him. That the book one is holding in one's hand and reading has been held by its writer gives that something which editors call "human nature interest." Moreover, if the writer is a very great one, there is a certain satisfaction—such is human nature—in doing this. There is a distinct pleasure, unconsciously felt, even in this very slight association with the great. In addition, when the handwriting of the author has never been seen, there is a wish to know what it is like. As there is a latent bit of the detective in everyone, there is also in almost everyone something of the student of handwriting. Nearly everybody feels a certain ability to tell something about an individual from the handwriting—or guess at it—and one always has a curiosity which leads one to look at the chirography of an author in whose work one is interested.

There are other motives which the Grosvenor has in collecting these signatures of present-day authors in the books which it has. The number of those so inscribed is increasing, and the intention is very shortly to hold an exhibition of them. This will be an advantage to the library in the way of publicity. It will enable it to make use of another means of interesting the public and drawing the readers within its doors, which it is always seeking. Therefore the library believes that this autograph seeking is a good thing. It enhances not only the meaning, but the worth of a quantity of books in its collection and supplies it with a means of calling the attention of the public to it in a manner that it would not otherwise have.

The ways in which the autographs are obtained are many and various. In fact there is a good deal of the sporting quality in the business. There is the element of chance, and certainly an earnest effort to take advantage of all possible chances. As has been said, the personage whose signature is sought frequently comes as a lecturer in a club. Then there is nearly always someone of the staff who is a member of the club, or who can ask a member to take the library book and have the celebrity write the autograph. When the speaker is at a theater or a hall there is more difficulty. Still the distinguished stranger is nearly always the friend of someone who is a friend of the library and can be reached in that way.

The library is not really over-audacious in this holding up of the traveling lion. It does not waylay complete strangers, or rather those with whom there is no natural or easy way of communication. It does not break into the hotel suites of literary people of fame, demanding their signatures for their life. Only when the means of obtaining an autograph are easy and simple, does it seek them. The astonishing matter is that in such way the library should have acquired such numerous signatures and such distinguished and valuable ones.

Perhaps the signature most prized of the collection is that of Cardinal Mercier. When in Buffalo, the famous Belgian cardinal was so good as to place his signature on a reproduction of the well-known war poster which represented him standing in protection of Belgium. This had been printed in the Grosvenor Bulletin and to have the signature was something which the library appreciated exceedingly and for which it is very grateful.

When one looks over the signed books, one is astonished to find the number of eminent people who have visited the city in a comparatively short time. The most of the signers are prominent, of course, strictly in a literary way. For instance Hugh Walpole and John Masefield, who were kind enough to inscribe their books while in Buffalo, are typical. There are others who are notable for other things and who have also written books: Sir Harry Lauder, for example, who recently autographed his book "A Minstrel in France." Maeterlinck, when in Buffalo, wrote a very graceful inscription in the library's translation of "The Bluebird." It was: "A la belle ville de Buffalo. Bien cordial hommage. Maeterlinck. 11 Feb. 1920." A volume which the Grosvenor is very glad to have is a copy of "Abraham Lincoln," in which John Drinkwater was so good as to place his autograph.

All which inspires interest in a library, both in the public and in the workers in the library, is for good, and this gathering of autographs serves both purposes.

PSYCHOANALYSIS

An annotated list of eight non-technical books for the layman on the various phases of the subject; with lists of other non-technical books for further reading, and a list of the more technical treatises

BY JACKSON EDMUND TOWNE, A. M.

(Author of "Scepticism as a Freudian 'defense-reaction,'" The Psychoanalytic Review, vol. 7, no. 2; and "A psychoanalytic study of Shakespeare's 'Coriolanus,'" The Psychoanalytic Review, vol. 8, no. 1)

"The idea has gone abroad that the term 'Freudian' is somewhat synonymous with 'sexual' . . . this talk . . . in connection with Freud is merely another instance of that infallible instinct of the cheap press and the vulgar mind to seize on unessentials, whether for praise or for blame, and to leave the main fabric unscanned." — E. B. Holt.

"We are what we are because we have been what we have been, and what is needed for solving the problem of human life and motives is not moral estimates but more knowledge." — Sigmund Freud.

INTRODUCTION

"In 1900, Freud published his great work on the "Interpretation of Dreams," and there was opened up a new field of investigation of the unconscious in both normal and abnormal conditions. Nervous patients frequently related strange dreams to him and it was found that each dream possessed a profound personal significance for the dreamer; in fact, it was the outgrowth, sometimes literal, sometimes symbolic, of the individual's unconscious mental life. It was definitely proven that every dream was the fulfillment of repressed wishes. Dream analysis revealed the mechanism of delusions, morbid fears, hysteria, fixed ideas, and compulsive thinking and at the same time it provided neurology the most potent instrument for the removal of these abnormal symptoms in the form of what became known as the psychoanalytic treatment." I. H. Coriat, What is psychoanalysis?

The following list has been compiled on the assumption that once having acquainted himself with the basic principles of psychoanalysis as applied in the special field of psychology, the average lay reader will then find his chief interest in the more general application of psychoanalysis to the problems of everyday life, and to the study of literature, the social sciences and philosophy.

Four books—one primer, and one more comprehensive treatment of psychoanalytic theory in general, one book on the psychoanalytic theory of dreams, and one on childhood from a psychoanalytic viewpoint—will, in the compiler's opinion, be more than enough to acquaint the average lay reader with the basic principles of psychoanalysis as applied in the special field of psychology. The other four books, then, will not be concerned with the purely scientific import of psychoanalysis.

Each of the eight annotated books in this list has been selected from a number of similar books because it seemed the best example of a treatment which was at once popular and authoritative.

In each case, books of value of a similar nature to the one annotated are also listed. At the back is a list of the more technical treatises arranged under the same headings used for the popular works. Under each of the headings used, the compiler undertakes some introductory comments of his own on the treatment accorded the various phases of psychoanalysis by the books listed.

Urbana, Illinois. 1921.

THE A-B-C OF PSYCHOANALYSIS

There are two excellent "primer" treatments, one English and one American, each offering in condensed form a comprehensive and scholarly summary of psychoanalytic theory, each carefully phrased so as to be entirely understandable to the layman. Perhaps Dr. Coriat's little book is a shade better suited than Barbara Low's for the average American reader.

Coriat, I. H.

What is psychoanalysis? New York, Moffat, 1917. 127 p. Bibliography: pp. 121-24.

In the form of questions and answers. Can be read at a single sitting. Brief and clear answers to such general questions as: What is psychoanalysis? Where and under what conditions did it originate? Can psychoanalysis be harmful? What is the cause of certain failures in psychoanalysis?

Dr. Coriat is First Assistant Visiting Physician for Diseases of the Nervous System, Boston City Hospital; and the author of a standard text on "Abnormal Psychology" and of a number of other books on psychoanalytic subjects.

Low, Barbara.

Psycho-analysis: a brief account of the Freudian theory, with an introduction by Ernest Jones, 2d ed. London, Allen, 1921. Bibliography.

A GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO PSYCHOANALYSIS

Books which fall under this heading have unfortunately either been written with such an effort at popularity that they lack scientific accuracy (as is the case with the books by O'Higgins and Tridon) or they have been made so comprehensive that they will inevitably fatigue the average lay reader (as is the case with the books by Brill and Freud himself).

Bradby, M. H.

Psycho-analysis, and its place in life. London, Frowde, 1919. 266 pp.

"This book aims at four things. It attempts an answer to the increasing number of people who want to know something about psychoanalysis and who find the existing literature some of it too brief and some of it too difficult. It discusses certain questions raised in the mind of the ordinary educated man or woman who has begun to study psychoanalysis and is puzzled; such questions for instance as 'where does it lead?' 'how does it fit in with the desire to be a moral human being, and with the ideas entertained by modern scientists?' It supplies the reader with some notion of how to arrive at the meaning of his own dreams, and, lastly, it hopes to induce psychoanalysts and psychologists to study each other's works." (From Introduction.)

Included here, among other reasons, because it gives one of the simplest accounts of the split between Freud and his distinguished follower, Jung: a split resulting in Jung's ponderous book, "The Psychology of the Unconscious," a no less monumental but far less significant work than Freud's great "Interpretation of Dreams."

Miss Bradby took the Mental and Moral Science Tripos at Cambridge, England.

THE PSYCHOANALYTIC THEORY OF DREAMS

There are a number of modern books on dreams which present theories somewhat different from the psychoanalytic, notably:

Bergson, H. L.

Dreams. New York, Huebsch, 1914.

Ellis, Havelock.

The World of Dreams. London, Constable, 1911.

Walsh, W. S.

The psychology of dreams. New York, Dodd, 1920.

Some of the above might be read in contrast to the following:

Coriat, I. H.

The meaning of dreams. Boston, Little, 1915. 100 pp., diags.

A non-technical exposition of the psychoanalytic theory of dreams, omitting many of the features of Freud's own monumental book which make it of use only to special students. Many examples of the mechanism of the dream process that are analyzed and explained are taken from cases that came under the author's personal observation.

Nicoll, Maurice.

CHILDHOOD FROM A PSYCHOANALYTIC VIEWPOINT

The compiler had to make a difficult choice here from three very good books: one by Wilfrid Lay; one by Miss Phyllis Blanchard, vouched for in a preface by Dr. G. Stanley Hall; and one by Miss Elida Evans, vouched for in an introduction by none other than Freud's most brilliant but dissenting disciple, Dr. Jung.

Evans, Elida.

The problem of the nervous child, introduction by C. G. Jung. New York, Dodd, 1920. 296 pp.

"I have aimed, not at adding another to the already long list of textbooks explaining psychoanalytical treatment for nervous troubles, but only at providing a simple introduction to the subject from the special point of view of the relation between parent and child. My attempt to present so large a subject in so small a compass will require me to make statements in seemingly dogmatic manner, without supporting them with proofs, which I should, but for lack of space, be most happy to give. With few exceptions, I have avoided the use of technical terms, which are almost necessarily used in describing the ideas fundamental to psychoanalysis." (From Chapter I.)

Miss Evans then treats of such topics as: "The development of repression," "The parent complex," "Teaching of right and wrong," and so on. Dr. Jung's stamp of approval is all that is needed to assure us that Miss Evans' handling of her subject has been competent.

Blanchard, Phyllis.

The adolescent girl, a study from the psychoanalytic viewpoint, with a preface by Dr. G. Stanley Hall. New York, Moffat, 1920. 242 pp. Bibliography after each chapter.

Lay, Wilfrid.

The child's unconscious mind; the relations of psychoanalysis to education: a book for teachers and parents. New York, Dodd, 1919. 329 pp.

White, W. A.

The mental hygiene of childhood. Boston, Little, 1919. 193 pp.

PSYCHOANALYSIS IN EVERYDAY LIFE

Here the best book is by Freud himself. In this connection, the reader will do well to look over "Suppressed Desires," in a book of "Plays" by Susan Glaspell (published in Boston by Small, 1920). Miss Glaspell's little play is a very understanding and most amusing, but nevertheless somewhat too hostile, satire on amateur adherence to psychoanalysis.

Freud, Sigmund.

Psychopathology of everyday life. Authorized English ed. with introd. by A. A. Brill. New York, 1919. 341 pp.

There are chapters on the forgetting of proper names, forewords, impressions, and resolutions; on mistakes in speech, reading, and writing; on erroneously carried out, symptomatic chance, and faulty actions, and so on.

Dr. A. A. Brill, the author of the introduction, is Chief of Clinic of Psychiatry, Columbia University; Chief of the Neurological Department, Bronx Hospital and Dispensary; and former Assistant Physician in the Central Islip State Hospital, and in the Clinic of Psychiatry, Zurich.

Freud, Sigmund.

Wit and its relation to the unconscious. Authorized English ed., with introd. by A. A. Brill. New York, Moffat, 1916. 388 pp.

PSYCHOANALYSIS APPLIED TO LITERATURE

Here the field is practically limitless for the critic of art as well as literature. Freud himself first broke the ground with his study in "Delusion and dream; an interpretation in the light of psychoanalysis of Gradiva, novel by Wilhelm Jensen." Let the reader watch out for books advertised as psychoanalysis applied to literature which are not that at all. A recent book so advertised, "The Story of a Style," by William Bayard Hale, contains practically no psychoanalysis whatever.

Tordell, Albert.

The erotic motive in literature. New York, Boni, 1919. 250 pp.

Equipped with a fair knowledge of psychoanalysis, the author boldly enters the field of literature and lunges at one great river after another with his new critical spear. The book has been too hastily written, and many of its conclusions are questionable. But despite this fact it is a stimulating work, worthy at least some consideration from even the most serious student of literature. It is surely destined to be followed by more carefully written studies by more scholarly authors.

In addition to special chapters on Keats, Shelley, Poe, and Alcázar Hearn, a host of other writers are psychoanalyzed.

Anthony, Katherine.

Margaret Fuller, a psychological biography. New York, Harcourt, 1921.

Soriat, I. H.

The Hysteria of Lady Macbeth. Boston, Four Seas Co., 1920. 94 pp. Bibliography, pp. 93-94.

Freud, Sigmund.

Leonardo da Vinci; a psychosexual study of an infantile reminiscence, tr. by A. A. Brill. New York, Moffat, 1916. 130 pp., illus.

PSYCHOANALYSIS APPLIED TO SOCIOLOGY

Under this heading Freudians have written a number of rather technical studies (both articles and entire books) treating of primitive states of society. The book we chose to annotate here, however, deals with modern civilized woman.

Myerson, Abraham.

The nervous housewife. Boston, Little, 1921.

Dr. Myerson, who is Visiting Physician, Nervous Department, Boston City Hospital and Beth Israel Hospital, and Assistant Professor of Neurology, Tufts College Medical School, aims to show how modern life, by changing the position of woman, has increased the difficulties of the housewife. "To her natural burdens there have been added a divided loyalty and a restless dissatisfaction with her lot." Out of this comes the nervousness of the housewife, "a disease of occupation." This book "psychoanalyzes" the sources of the housewife's difficulties and traces their effect in her moods and changed emotions. "It aims to discover the housewife to herself," to give her husband understanding and sympathy, and to teach the physician and society how to help her. Unfortunately Dr. Myerson is too much of a materialist, too cynical, and so seriously neglects the spiritual possibilities of sublimation in psychoanalysis.

Freud, Sigmund.

Reflections on war and death; tr. by A. A. Brill and A. B. Kuttner. New York, Moffat, 1918. 72 pp.

Martin, E. D.

The behavior of crowds. New York, Harper, 1920.

PSYCHOANALYSIS APPLIED TO PHILOSOPHY

There is no reason why a psychoanalytic interpretation of human motives cannot also be turned in the direction of getting at a whole theory of knowledge, and be used as a means of solving many of the most knotty problems in philosophy.

Holt, E. B.

The Freudian wish and its place in ethics. New York, Holt, 1916. 212 pp.

This brilliant little book is one of the most remarkable on our list. Though brief and popular in form, it represents at the same time a most weighty contribution to philosophical thought viewed from a psychoanalytic standpoint. By reason of its subject-matter it is particularly free from those unpleasant details of which all books on psychoanalysis per se must inevitably treat. The detailed consideration of ethics answers those critics of psychoanalysis who condemn it as an altogether materialistic theory. The author was assistant professor of psychology at Harvard University when the book was first published.

SELECT LIST OF REFERENCES ON PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Compiled by Florence C. Bell, Librarian of the U. S. Bureau of Efficiency

ABBREVIATIONS

A. J. I. L. — American Journal of International Law.

A dash (—) after date or volume number indicates that the title is still being published.

The titles marked with a star (*) are publications of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 2 Jackson Place, Washington, D. C. A large number of libraries are depositaries for all of the publications of the Endowment.

PART IV

DICTIONARIES AND YEAR BOOKS

61. The British yearbook of international law, 1920-21. London, Frowde, Oxford University press. 1920-. 292 pp.

"This year book of international law has been established because its promoters feel that a wider knowledge and comprehension of the subject is essential at the present time, and that a British periodical devoted to international law would help to this end." Introduction.

The purpose of the year book is to provide scope for well-informed and careful contributions to the science of international law. The articles are selected by an unofficial editorial committee. Some of the subjects discussed are the British prize courts and the war, the legal administration of Palestine under the British military occupation, submarine warfare, and international labour conventions.

62. Calvo, Carlos. Dictionnaire de droit international public et privé. Berlin, Puttkammer & Mühlbrecht, 1885. 2 v.

A dictionary, with definitions in French, of persons, treaties, terms, etc., of importance in the field of international law.

63. Grotius. International jaarboek. 1913-'s-Gravenhage, M. Nijhoff, 1913-.

The second and succeeding volumes of this annual (1914-) have been published in French under the title: Grotius: Annuaire international pour l'année. . .

"This useful little book . . . is the first volume of an international year book which is henceforth to be published annually. There has been a distinct demand for such a publication and the present volume is intended to furnish Dutch readers with information concerning the international activities of the year. It does not, however, pretend to compete with the monumental Jahrbuch des Völkerrechts edited by Niemeyer and Strupp." Review, by A. Van H. Engert, A. J. I. L., v. 8: 414-15, 1914.

Some of the volumes contain a list of the members of the Permanent Court of Arbitration, a list of official and unofficial international organizations whose headquarters are in the Netherlands. Particular emphasis is put upon the affairs of the Netherlands and decisions are given for many Dutch prize cases of the world war.

A volume has been published for each year from 1913-1918 inclusive.

64. Jahrbuch des völkerrechts. 1 bd.—München und Leipzig, Duncker & Humblot, 1913-.

"The first issue of the Jahrbuch des Völkerrechts is a formidable, though not a forbidding volume; but it is one which no person interested in international law and international relations can afford to overlook. It has a separate and distinct place on the table of the man of affairs, as well as of the expert, because it gives a survey of international development from September, 1911, to August, 1912. It does not compete with journals of international law, nor with accounts of the year's happenings in so far as they concern international relations to be found in encyclopedias. It gives the texts of the most important documents bearing upon international relations, using for this purpose the language of the original document, be it in French, German, Italian, Spanish, or English. This alone would make the work valuable as a book of reference, but its usefulness does not stop here. It has separate articles and reports on the important events and questions of the year written by persons who can justly be called specialists on the different subjects, reports upon the events which have taken place in the individual countries, and reports on congresses and conferences. It has a section devoted to the signing and ratification of international agreements, a section devoted to subjects such as the proposed Academy at The Hague, the preparations for the Third Hague Conference and the Pan-American movement, to mention only a few subjects which may be considered to be timely or to have a general interest. It has a bibliography and it ends with an index. The question must be unimportant which this volume does not discuss, and no well-informed reader can consult it without finding what he seeks, unless the subject is beyond the scope of the volume. In a word, the work is indispensable, and Messrs. Niemeyer and Strupp are to be congratulated upon having conceived the idea and upon their patience and industry in adequately carrying it out." Review, by J. B. Scott, A. J. I. L., v. 8: 180-82, 1914.

The following volumes have been published: v. 1-5, and v. 7. Volume 6 is in course of preparation.

PERIODICALS

65. The American journal of international law. 1907- Issued quarterly.

Volumes 1-10 were published for the American Society of International Law by Baker, Voorhis & co. Volumes 11 to date have been published by the Oxford university press, New York City.

Each number contains articles on international questions by prominent international thinkers, editorial comment, chronicle of international events, public documents relating to international law, judicial decisions involving questions of international law, book reviews, references to periodical literature on international law, etc.

A supplement to each number gives the text of official documents of an international character.

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the record of "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World." A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited, and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS

Fall is almost here again and we want to urge our library friends to make ready and place their orders early for magazine subscription renewals. For the best service, whether through THE FAXON COMPANY or any other agency, the early placing of lists expiring in December is very important. October first is none too early to place your order and pay your agent, if you can so arrange matters.

Why not let Mr. Faxon "even up" your list? Perhaps you can this year choose some date other than December for its expiration. Many libraries are changing. Pay us fifteen months for a March expiration, or renew for six or nine months to make your list end in June or September, 1923. The so-called "last chance" period featured by magazine publishers does not effect any saving except on personal or single subscriptions. Library lists are our exclusive care and we know our service will please you.

For personally conducted magazine subscription lists "ask Mr. Faxon"!

OUR FRONTISPIECE

In this issue we are very glad to give a portrait of Miss Gratia A. Countryman of Minneapolis. On her graduation from the University of Minnesota in 1889 she entered the service of the Minneapolis Public Library, when Dr. Herbert Putnam was librarian, and she gradually rose until in 1908 she was chosen its chief, on the retirement of Dr. Hosmer. Under her fine executive guidance the library has increased in influence and usefulness, until its collection of books, and its work for the citizens of the city are known throughout the Northwest. Miss Countryman joined the American Library Association in 1898 and has served as vice-president in 1908 and 1914. She is at present a member of the executive board. She is very active in the civic and women's club work of her city, and is now planning a new public library and art building soon to be erected.

INTERNATIONAL LAW

The Select List of References on Public International Law for College Students, which we have been printing during the past year, will be concluded in our next issue. We were obliged to omit it from this number.

NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

The National Institute of Social Sciences will start this summer a second series of publications, to be called "Proceedings," and No. 1 will shortly be sent to members, and to subscribers to the "Journal." The subject of "Proceedings" No. 1 is "Results of the Conference on Limitation of Armaments." The regular annual volume of the Journal for 1922 (vol. 8), will be issued probably in December next or early in 1923.

MAGAZINE NOTES

American Journal of International Law, having survived that period when there seemed to be no such thing as international law, has doubled up vol. 14, nos. 1 and 2, and also doubled up the supplement numbers of same dates (Jan.-April, 1920). Beginning with July, 1920 (vol. 14, no. 3) the "Supplement" after thirteen years' existence as a separate becomes a part of the Journal, though still separately paged.

Candy and Ice-cream is lower. We can all indulge now! From $3.00 to $1.00 is a good saving — provided, of course you really want candy and ice-cream.

Collector's Digest (monthly) for March, 1922, is "vol. 4, no. 3, whole number 6." Problem — how many numbers were in vol. 1, vol. 2, vol. 3? We asked the publisher, but he hasn't been able to figure it out yet for us. Will not some owner of a "set" relieve our suspense?

Hearst's International (Hearst's Magazine, World To-day, Current Encyclopedia to give its pedigree or descent) has with June, 1922, adopted the  $11\frac{3}{4} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$  "standard size" now becoming so common. The change came with vol. 41, no. 6, — the middle of a volume, but it isn't worth binding or indexing, so what does it matter! — the King of France we believe set the style with his army of marching up the hill and then down again. The periodicals all went up from octavo to folio, and now down they come again, part way at least.

Illustrated Canadian Forestry Magazine (formerly Canadian Forestry Journal) changed from 10 x 7 inch size, vol. 17, no. 5, May, 1920, to 12 x 9 inches in August, 1920 (vol. 17, no. 6).

Industrial Education Magazine is the new name of our old friend Manual Training. Vol. 24, no. 1, July, 1922, is the initial number; 12 x 9 inches is the size, where it was formerly 10 x 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ . "Some goes up and some goes down" as Br'er Rabbit remarked after his "fishing" trip in the well.

Industrial Management (formerly Engineering Magazine) in October, 1920, with vol. 60, no. 4, began a double issue, section one the regular, and section two "Illustrated Section." With January, 1921, the "section idea" developed into a "regular" number, January 1st (vol. 61, no. 1), and a "Pictorial Edition," January 15th (vol. 61, no. 2), each paged separately. May 15th was the final mid-month or pictorial number, and with October, 1921, its place was taken by a separate periodical called Industry Illustrated.

Journal of the Illinois Historical Society runs something like the proverbial cold molasses. July, 1920, arrived in February, 1922; October, 1920, was published in April, 1922; and January, 1921, came along in July last. History is slow in the making.

Leslie's Weekly tried a reducer, and like many another seeker after a more "compact" form, died under treatment. Funeral was June 24, 1922. Judge is the residuary legatee, and is filling Leslie's place as well as an humorous judge could be expected to do. Who is now the oldest living weekly illustrated? Saturday Evening Post is barred from the competition.

Literary Review of the New York Evening Post is rapidly gaining in favor among librarians, and is ably edited. But a circular giving librarians' commendations was sent out, in which some new library chiefs were created. We find there letters signed

W. Samson Johnston of St. Paul, F. K. Walton of University of Michigan, Harrison W. Cravers of New York City.

Metropolitan Magazine, "the liveliest fiction magazine in America," started volume 55, Feb. 1922, in the big folio 14-inch size, which it has been pleased to use since 1911, then, without warning, vol. 55, no. 2, for March, appeared  $11\frac{3}{4} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$  inches,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches narrower, and  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches shorter, but with 116 pages in place of 68, which February carried. It certainly is poor business these days for a book-binder to attempt a grouping of periodicals by their sizes, each one would belong to several groups. We might as well try to remember which magazines are indexed this month in "Readers' Guide," and which in "International Index," as to guess the present size of a popular periodical.

Motion-Picture Classic says February to August, 1922, should be called vol. 13, no. 6, vol. 9, nos. 1, 2, 3, vol. 10, no. 4, vol. 14, no. 5, vol. 9, no. 6 respectively. Curious phenomena those! Its brother, Motion-Picture Magazine, calls July, 1922, vol. 23, no. 6, and August vol. 24, no. 7! "Scrambled dates" expresses this peculiar movie condition very well we think.

Motor Age has decided to receive no subscriptions except from those engaged in the automotive business, and will cancel all library subscriptions on expiration. The reason given for this drastic course is that some outsider might read a number, and so fool the advertisers, who have been guaranteed that the periodical goes only to the trade. Why then is it on sale on newsstands? Be consistent, brother! Your brakes need relining.

National Marine. There's an old saying, "Tell it to the marines," so we will. Recently we wanted an index to vol. 17 (1921), and when it came there was absolutely no clue anywhere on it to show that it was National Marine any more than English Horse Guards.

National School Digest had one bright idea to insure its index from loss. They print it as a part of the first issue of the next volume, printed on the backs of two pages regularly paged as part of the second volume. Problem — separate the index from the following volume, without having to reprint or rewrite two whole pages.

The Organiser of London in September, 1920, was a fine large magazine,  $12\frac{1}{4} \times 8\frac{3}{4}$ , when vol. 17, no. 3, was issued, but look at October, 1920, new series, vol. 1, no. 1 — you will need your glasses to find it, —  $8\frac{5}{8} \times 5\frac{3}{4}$  inches. This notice is rather belated, but we put it in just to show that American publishers do not have a monopoly on size-changes.

Overland Monthly omitted July, 1921, vol. 78, no. 1. Reason "labor troubles, and to get up-to-date." It sure is right up to the minute to skip an issue now and then.

Here is the way some magazines assume that they are giving us "entire satisfaction."

Physical Culture failed to book a subscription, and told our library that money had not been paid. We wrote the magazine giving date on which we paid it. We, at their request, told them our check had come back through the bank, showing they had received our money and the order. Then they asked to see the canceled check, and having gazed upon it, sent it back to us. "On receipt of your check we have finally [satisfied accent 'thank goodness that bother is over'] located subscription to Physical Culture for Omaha, which was overlooked, due to a careless error on the part of one of our clerks [why wish it on the clerks, the firm is responsible?] and the order had gone to file without being attended to [why not in such cases casually look in the file before making us write the third letter, and then spend time to dig out a canceled check?] However, ["what a bother some people do make us"] we are adjusting the matter to your entire satisfaction [italics ours] and entering the subscription for one year, beginning with current (July) issue, which is being mailed and no doubt [calm assurance and confidence in all things human, including their clerks and the post-office] will arrive promptly. Regretting the inconvenience and delay you have experienced and assuring you will have no further cause for complaint, etc."

Meantime our customer has failed to get numbers from November, 1920, to June, 1921, but, on the drug clerk plan, will receive others "just as good," and be "entirely satisfied(?)."

The Playground has been enlarged, so we can all have room to play. Vol. 15 ended the small octavo form; vol. 16, no. 1, April, 1922, is 8 x 11 inches.

Print Connoisseur ought to know better than "page in" loose pictures. Its bad enough to leave them unattached to battle with a grim, cold, world, but to saddle them with page numbers is enough to discourage them from ever trying to get back into place. In vol. 2, no. 2, pp. 185-6, 187-8, 191-2, 195-6 are all loose portraits, and no clue on the picture to show what periodical it belongs to.

Scientific American (weekly), our old-time friend, grown hoary with age, but still vigorous, ceased with the issue of October 15, 1921, and in its place we have a new Scientific American, monthly, (vol. 125A, no. 17, November, 1921). This is the same size as our old weekly friend, but with more pages. Vol. 126 is complete in six numbers, January to June, 1922. The Scientific American Monthly, born from Scientific American Supplement and the printers' strike of 1919 (mismatched parents) is also dead with vol. 4, no. 4, October, 1921, having been merged into the new Scientific American.

In other words to put it the way the publishers do, the monthly merged in the weekly, and the weekly became a monthly—that makes it very clear.

Survey, vol. 48, no. 7, May 20, 1922, is followed without break by vol. 48, no. 9, May 27, 1922. Please don't ask us for no. 8.

Theatre Magazine, N. Y., had a lapse of something last year, when July was vol. 34, no. 244; August was called vol. 35, no. 245; September, vol. 36, no. 246. Easy isn't it, when once you start the idea?

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

LOCKE, GLADYS E. The red cavalier or The twin turrets mystery. Those who like a good mystery story will get full measure in Miss Locke's book recently published. As a novelist she ought to make her mark.

Boston, The Page Company, 1922. 372 pages. $1.90.

BARR, JOHN, chief librarian of the City of Auckland, N. Z., has written a history of his city covering 1840-1920.

BLANCHARD, GRACE. The island cure. A bright little book, embodying glimpses of certain well-known island resorts on the New England coast, with a love story lightly stringing the islands together. A joyous "fairy story," for everything comes out just as we hoped it would. We recommend the volume to vacationists, and those who kept at home by duties long for a breath of the sea.

Boston, Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co. 186 pages, illustrated. $1.50.

STEINER, BERNARD C. Life of Roger Brooke Taney. Chief Justice Taney was an important figure in United States history, and until now no complete life has been available. Dr. Steiner's book brings out many interesting points in Taney's career; his early legal practice at the Frederick bar for nearly twenty-five years, his great success as an attorney after his removal to Baltimore. He was attorney-general and Secretary of the Treasury, and had a large part in the financial policy of President Jackson. No such exhaustive study of the Dred Scott Case has hitherto been made, as will be found in this volume.

Baltimore, Williams & Wilkins Co. 553 pages. Cloth, $6.00 net.

HORTON, MARION. Viewpoints in essays. An arrangement of books according to their essential interest. Miss Horton has added, in this the third volume of the Viewpoints series, a very useful list of essays, annotated and grouped according to their subjects. All the books mentioned are "in print."

Chicago. The A. L. A. 67 pages. Paper, 60c.

GRADED LIST OF BOOKS FOR CHILDREN. Prepared by the Elementary School Library Committee of the N. E. A. A list of some thousand or more titles, annotated and compiled with the idea of providing a buying guide for the first nine grades. The needs of both teacher and librarian are kept in mind. The books included are for general and home reading, no text-books being admitted.

Chicago, The A. L. A. 235 pages. $1.25.

DORRANCE, FRANCES. English translation of Soraner's "Manual of Plant Diseases," vol. 1 (non-parasitic diseases). We are including a notice of this translation here, because it seems a work comparable in many ways to compilations and other such valuable work that librarians are finding time to carry on. Many will be glad to know this English version of an important work is now available.

Frances Dorrance, Dorranceton via Kingston, Pa. 10 parts and index. 924 pages. 208 illustrations in text. $8.50.

From the H. W. Wilson Co. we have received the following:

OGLEBAY, KATE. Plays for children, a selected list. Revised edition. A revised list, with about one-third of the titles new. Classified under Reference books, Costume and scenery, Story-telling, Readings and recitations, Plays for Christmas and other holidays.

New York, 1922. H. W. Wilson Co. 21 pages. Paper, 50c.

WILSON, MARTHA. School library management. Third edition revised. The book consists of three parts: Library in the school, Organization, and Administration.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 1922. 150 pages. 12 mo. Paper, 85c.

SCHROEDER, THEODORE. Free speech bibliography. "This bibliography includes every discovered attitude toward the problem covering every method of transmitting ideas and of abridging their promulgation upon every subject-matter." The above description quoted from the author gives a good idea of what this work covers.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 1922. 247 pages. Cloth.

FELLOWS, DORCAS. Cataloging rules with explanations and illustrations. Second edition, revised and enlarged. Primarily a text-book for class use in library schools, the needs of those who must work out their problems alone have been constantly kept in mind. A feature of the work is the photographic reproduction of over three hundred sample cards.

New York. H. W. Wilson Co. 1922. 303 pages. Cloth, $4.00

Local War Records in the Public Library of Cincinnati

By Mary J. Hirst

Writing the story of the part his community played in the war will be the privilege of some citizen of each and every city of our country. In order that the future historian of Cincinnati and Hamilton County may not find his task too difficult, the Public Library of Cincinnati has gathered not only books and pamphlets for its local war collection but has tried also to put together in usable form the raw source material. This material consists of clippings from papers and magazines, a list on cards of the men and women in the service from Cincinnati and Hamilton County, and the records of the men who gave their lives.

The collection began with clippings from the newspapers concerning the local regiment of the national guard and also individual men. When the draft came, the items were kept each day and the draft lists indexed. As the war went on, pictures and accounts of local men were published in business and fraternal papers, too, and these were procured as far as possible. With the home-coming of the men the amount of material became formidable and the sorting of it was necessary. Cincinnati furnished many men for the 37th, 42d, and 83d divisions and equipped a base hospital, so the clippings concerning these organizations grouped themselves easily. Liberty loan material and the draft formed individual scrapbooks, while miscellaneous activities of the city formed a book by themselves. There are also three general scrapbooks concerning men in divisions other than those mentioned above. The clippings were mounted on a thin but tough manila paper and bound in twelve volumes. Each bound volume is indexed.

After the armistice many requests were received for the number and names of men furnished by Cincinnati in all branches of the service. It was impossible to obtain this information anywhere, so the Library decided to compile such a list if possible. The list was begun in May, 1919. It is on cards and the names were obtained at first by sending the cards to all the schools in Hamilton County. The children were asked to get the records of men in their immediate neighborhood, and bring in the cards as part of the Memorial Day exercises in their respective rooms. In this way a beginning was made. Later, records were obtained at an American Legion circus and at the War Exposition, where the Library had a booth, and also from former service men who came to the Library. We were fortunate also in getting copies of the discharge lists from Camp Sherman. These, however, gave only the name and address of the soldier. The card list contains about twenty thousand names. It is not yet entirely complete, of course, but it has been used enough to justify the effort expended upon it. The local Army recruiting office used it as a mailing list when the government was trying to persuade the men to apply for their Victory medals. Many men visiting the city have been able to locate buddies they knew lived in Cincinnati. The Red Cross has found it useful in locating and identifying. It has even been called into service in straightening out a divorce tangle.

The gathering of the records of the gold star men has been a difficult task. The names were first listed as they appeared in the newspapers and later the government searched for men having a Cincinnati address. The burial permits in the Health Office gave us the names of a number of men who died in camps in this country and whose names were not in the Official Bulletin. Special blanks were sent to the next-of-kin of all these men to be filled out and returned to us. Many responded promptly. The blanks as filled in by the families are mounted in large scrapbooks with the photograph of the soldier, sailor, or marine on the page opposite the record. By means of this record we were able to give to the American Legion for Memorial Day this year the section and lot number of the grave of each gold star man buried in Hamilton County.

ABBEY'S ILLUSTRATIONS OF SHAKESPEARE'S COMEDIES

By Annette P. Ward, Alma College Library

Alma, Michigan

May, 1922

In Harper's Magazine, vols. 80 through 91, December, 1889, to August, 1895, appeared a series of essays on the Comedies of Shakespeare, by Andrew Lang. These were illustrated by Edwin A. Abbey. Abbey's work as an illustrator has been so universally admired, both for execution and intelligent interpretation of the text, that his series of pictures in Harper's Magazine are much sought for reference use. The following index to them is printed with the thought that it will aid in finding desired illustrations, as a file of Harper's Magazine is always available in practically every American library.—[Ed.]

RECENT BOOKS OF THE DRAMA: A READING LIST

Compiled by Beatrice Goldsmith, Williamsburgh Branch, Brooklyn Public Library

This list merely suggests some of the interesting and informing books about the drama, published within the last three years. The titles have been selected with a view to stimulating an intelligent appreciation of the many phases of modern dramatic and theatrical production, and while it does not aim to be inclusive or adequate, the list will afford the reader a working knowledge of the theatre craft of to-day as well as infinite enjoyment.

PLAY PRODUCTION AND THE ONE-ACT PLAY
Stratton, Clarence.

Producing in little theatres. Illus. Holt & Co. 1921.

An excellent discussion of the practical problems confronting the amateur and repertory producer. Though not at all in text book form, it would be a helpful handbook for all dramatic associations. Gives specimen programs of varied types, and has a good chapter on educational dramatics written in an interesting and readable style.

The author has added a list of one hundred long and one hundred one-act plays suitable for production in little theatres. This list is annotated, giving type of play, stage requirements, and whether desirable for beginners or experienced actors.

Ferris, Helen.

Producing amateur entertainments. Dutton. c1921.

Programs and directions for "stunts" and short numbers for varied kinds of entertainment. A useful list is added which gives sources of help and information for the amateur, including organizations, publishing houses and a bibliography of books essential to the inexperienced dramatic producer.

Cohen, Helen, ed.

One-act plays by modern authors. Harcourt, Brace & Co. 1921.

Sixteen plays by Galsworthy, Maeterlinck, Milne, Lady Gregory, Dunsany, Tarkington, and others. A well chosen collection including brief prefatory notes, both critical and biographical to each play. The editor has written an excellent introduction that well summarizes the newer tendencies in the theatre.

Shay, Frank and Loving, Pierre.

Fifty contemporary one-act plays. Stewart and Kidd Co. c1920.

Selected with the viewpoint of "a playhouse perfectly equipped, infinitely adaptable . . . managed by Arthur Hopkins, George Cram Cooke, Granville Barker . . . the seats filled with the usual gallery hunters of New York theatres, and the play-reading committee to consist of Ludwig Lewisohn, Barrett Clark . . .

George Nathan and Francis Hackett." The result is an interesting collection of short plays by writers of sixteen nationalities. Most of the fifty plays (the United States is represented by twenty-two) are not included in other anthologies. It is illuminating to read straight through the book to get orientated in the trend of the modern one-act play. A comprehensive, though unfortunately undated bibliography is included.

O'Neill, Eugene.

Moon of the Caribees, and six other plays of the sea. Boni and Liveright. 1919.

Considered by some critics O'Neill's best work. He creates a picture in each play that is true to reality and makes an unforgettable impression. Like all of his plays too realistic to be "pleasant" but the stuff of real drama is in them and his treatment is masterly.

Walker, Stuart.

Portmanteau adaptations. Illus. Stewart Kidd Co. 1921.

The third volume of plays used by Mr. Walker's repertory company which is one of the best and most permanent of the many little theatre organizations so characteristic of the theatre of to-day in the United States. These four plays, Gammer Gurton's needle, Birthday of the Infanta, Sir David wears a crown, and Nelljumbo are fanciful and charming, full of the child's "Let's pretend." Edward Hale Bierstadt has written a short introduction to acquaint us with the method and achievement of the Portmanteau Theatre.

TWO TYPES OF TWENTIETH CENTURY COMEDY*Phelps, William Lyon.

Essays on modern dramatists. Macmillan. 1921.

Critical appreciations of Barrie, Galsworthy, Clyde Fitch, Maeterlinck and Rostand. Written with a friendly attitude of mind that delights those who are familiar with the plays of these writers, and sure to stimulate an interest and curiosity in the uninitiated.

Davies, Hubert Henry.

Plays. 2 v. introd. by Hugh Walpole. Chatto (London). 1921.

A charming edition of eight of Davies's best comedies, worth reading for the sheer delight of the kindly humour that reminds of Jane Austen. I am tempted to call such plays as Cousin Kate, the Mollusk, and Captain Drews' Leave, English comedy of manners at its best. Walpole's short and sympathetic introduction makes us appreciate the lovable personality of Davies as well as his work. T. H. Dickinson has said of him; "The author of very few plays, he is the creator of solid comedy. He is that most unusual thing in the theatre, a writer of scholarly mind who conceals resolute thinking under flexible artistry."

Shaw, George Bernard.

Back to Methuselah. Brentano. 1921.

"A history of biological theory from which Mr. Shaw develops what he regards as the sound scientific religion of the future, man's need to live indefinitely to fulfill the purpose of the life-force." In a brilliant introduction and five short plays Mr. Shaw proves his thesis that in spite of man's weaknesses and imbecilities, the human race can do what it will.

LYRIC DRAMA OF SIX HUNDRED YEARS AGO*Waley, Arthur.

The No plays of Japan. Allen (London). 1921.

These translations have caught the spirit of mysticism and much of the poetic beauty of the original.

CRITICISM AND STAGECRAFT OF TO-DAY*Lewisohn, Ludwig.

Drama and the stage. Harcourt, Brace & Co. 1922.

Critical studies of drama, acting and some modern playwrights, of which Mr. Lewisohn's articles in the Nation form a nucleus. These essays are penetrating and constructive, and are a distinct addition to his earlier book on the "Modern theatre." (Huebsch, 1915.)

MacGowan, Kenneth.

Theatre of to-morrow. Boni and Liveright, 1922. illus.

An enthusiastic discussion of the new tendencies of the theatre of to-day and speculation for to-morrow. A critical and historical analysis of modern stagecraft in Europe and the United States written with rare charm of thought and phrase. A book that is informing and above all inspiring.

Joseph, Helen.

Book of the marionette. Huebsch, c1920.

A very complete description of the puppet show as developed in all countries throughout the ages. Written with the whimsical charm and lightness of the dolls themselves. The illustrations are chosen with admirable discrimination and taste. Bibliography complete though undated, appended.

Hornblow, Arthur.

History of the theatre in America from its beginnings to the present time. 2 v. illus. Lippincott, 1919.

Extensive in scope and well carried out. Valuable in forming a background for the modern theatre. The book abounds in interesting anecdote of people of the stage. Well written, although somewhat too chronological in form. The author makes a plea for the non-commercial theatre, and the re-establishment of the stock company which will promote the true art of acting.

Nathan, George Jean.

Theatre, the drama, the girls. Knopf, 1921.

Critical skits on all and sundry phases of dramatic and theatrical art. Written with Nathan's usual clever and cynical egotism, often diverting and keen in perception, but tinged with vulgarity.

Nathan, George Jean.

Critic and the drama. Knopf. 1922.

Six essays on drama and criticism as an art in itself. They are seriously written and redeem Nathan's earlier and flippant work. His analysis is keen and original, his thought a stimulating challenge to the cut and dried ideas of the average theatre goer. This book decidedly places the author among the young "intellectuals."

Craig, Edward Gordon.

Theatre advancing. Little, Brown & Co., 1919.

Odds and ends of theory of one of the three great inspirers of the modern theatre who aims to make his work with the theatre something that endures. This book is mere jottings while Craig was travelling on the continent from 1910-1918. Interesting in that they reveal the writer's sensitive personality, his beliefs, aspirations and consummate artistry.

Saylor, Oliver M.

Russian theatre under the revolution. Little, Brown & Co. 1920.

An account of Russian theatrical art as developed during the last twenty years in Petrograd and Moscow. Valuable for its wealth of information. Much of it is personal impressions gained during the winter of 1917-1918, distinctly human in appeal. A chapter on theories of the theatre goes far to explain why Russia has so greatly influenced modern stage production in all countries.

Jameson, Storm.

Modern drama in Europe. Harcourt, Brace and Howe, 1920.

"An attempt to reconstruct the dramatic progress of the last half century amply fulfilled in this comprehensive and penetrating study which traces the reactions of the drama from the inanities of the Victorian society plays through the naturalism and realism of Zola, Becque and Brieux to Ibsen, Strindberg and Chekhov, realists with a vision. Miss Jameson's judgments are original and based on wide reading and are sure to create differences of opinion in her readers. A book for the serious student and not apt to become popular.

Hamilton, Clayton.

Seen on the stage. Holt, 1920.

Short essays about modern plays and playwrights of all countries. Written to supplement his three earlier books on the theatre.

Vols. 8-10, each . . . 4.00
Single numbers over two years old .25

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy" and the quarterly "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the record of "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World." A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited, and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES has started a new series of publications called Proceedings, of which No. 1, published in September, 1922, covers the subject, "Results of the Conference on Limitation of Armaments," being the proceedings of the ninth annual meeting of the Institute, February 9, 1922. It is expected that the annual volume of the "Journal," of which series vol. 9 is the next, will be issued early in 1923.

Thus the "Proceedings" becomes a sort of supplement to, or midyear issue of, the "Journal" containing the same sort of material, and essential to the completeness of a subscriber's file.

Boston. The F. W. Faxon Co., 1922. 100 pp. paper. $1.50.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Mr. Hiller Crowell Wellman, librarian of the Springfield, Massachusetts, City Library since 1902, has brought his library to a very high standard of efficiency, and we are privileged to use his photograph as our frontispiece, hoping thereby to acquaint the younger generation of librarians with one whose modest ways and absorption in home duties have prevented his excellent work from being more widely known during recent years.

Graduated from Harvard University in 1894, a Phi Beta Kappa member, he became an assistant in the Boston Athenaeum for three years, then was appointed supervisor of branches of the Boston Public Library, which position he resigned in 1898 to become head of the Brookline Public Library. Thus trained he was chosen in 1902 as head of the City Library Association of Springfield, Massachusetts, where his work, including the planning of the new library building, one of the best in the country, has been so notably successful.

He served as president of the American Library Association in 1914-15, presiding at the Berkeley, California, conference. He was president of the Massachusetts Library Club in 1901, and has been of great help to the library profession as a member of the Massachusetts Library Commission, and on various committees of the American Library Association. He is also a member of the American Library Institute, and has contributed articles on library problems to various periodicals.

MAGAZINE NOTES

We always half suspected it, now we know it's true. Periodicals are entirely paid for by their advertisers. Prove it? A periodical has just sent a circular to its subscribers stating that as it costs no more to book a two-year subscription than a one-year, all will be extended for a two-year period for $5.00, which has hitherto been the price of one year. "We prefer to pass on the saving to our subscribers." Well, well! Book us for a life term. It can't cost any more to book "till death do us part" than for one small twelve-month period. g. e. d.

Another periodical says to its agent, "Get foremen and heads of departments to subscribe at the special rate of $1.00 and keep the dollar for your commission." Now wouldn't the millenium be here for the agents if the magazines would all do that — and as the only cost is the booking, we don't see why they all can't do it now that we have made the suggestion.

Associated Advertising has become "disassociated" in that vol. 13, no. 8, August, 1922, is 12 x 9, and vol. 13, no. 9, September, 1922, is 10 x 7. How come! Is this a form of advertising, or just a happy idea of the publishers?

Classic is now the entirely non-descriptive title of what was properly called Motion Picture Classic until September, 1922. The change is made with vol. 15, no. 1, but, as we showed in our last issue, dates are all that mean anything to movie people. This Classic nondescript is called vol. 10 by its fond parents, the Brewsters.

Foreign Affairs is a new American quarterly, at $5.00 a year, which started with September 15, 1922. It absorbs "Journal of International Relations." The new review is published by the Council on Foreign Relations, of which Elihu Root is honorary president, and edited by Archibald Cary Coolidge.

Fortnightly Review, London, our staid English friend, has been caught nodding. Vol. 109, new series (old series, vol. 115) was January to June, 1921; but July to December, 1921, is called vol. 110, new series (old series 115); and the error is continued, as January to June, 1922, is vol. 111 (old series 116). The Reader's Guide indexes these volumes as 115, 116, 117, respectively, and libraries should warn their binders about lettering the volume number "correctly."

Journal of Social Forces is a new periodical of note, which started with November, 1922, published by the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. It will be published five times a year: September, November, January, March, and May. $2.50 a year.

Reference Shelf is a new periodical composed of monograph numbers, irregular in periodicity, but at least ten issued in a year's time. No. 1 of vol. 1 covers "Cancellation of the Allied War Debt." The subscription price to vol. 1 is $4.50, though the separate issues, if bought as published, will amount to about $7.00. Price of no. 1 is 75c, ten copies one-third off. The H. W. Wilson Co. is the publisher of this unique periodical.

Standard Catalog Bi-monthly has issued as vol. 1, no. 5, July, 1922, the first annual cumulation of the most worthwhile books for libraries published from March, 1921, to July, 1922. This publication takes its place with the other indexes issued by H. W. Wilson Co., except that the price is only $1.00 a year, to cover in future six issues including the annual cumulation.

The Ukiyoye No Kenkyu is a new quarterly devoted to the Ukiyoye arts and artists. Vol. 1, no. 1, was October, 1921. Published by the Ukiyoye Society of Japan, 68 Haramachi-Nichome, Ushigome-Ku, Tokyo. We mention this because vol. 1, no. 2, is also October, 1921, and vol. 1, no. 3, is October, 1921. No more than these three issues have come to us, so we cannot say how long the various quarterly issues will continue to appear as of October, 1921. Japan is sometimes called an imitator of Western ways, surely this method of dating a magazine is real Japanese.

Twelve radio magazines were listed in our January-April, 1922, issue. Here are some others we have seen referred to: —

- American Radio Journal.*
- Amateur Wireless*, Hartford.
- Antenna.*
- Denverado Broadcast Program Magazine*, Denver.
- E-Z Radio.*
- National Radio Review*, Kansas City.
- Radio Amplifier*, Seattle.
- Radio and Model Engineering*, New York.
- Radio Broadcasting News.*
- Radio Flash.*
- Radio Globe*, New York.
- Radio Instructor* (new name of Radio Digest, Chicago).
- Radio Journal*, Los Angeles.
- Radio Journal*, New York.
- Radio Merchandising*, New York.
- Radio News in Canada.*
- Radio Service Bulletin*, Washington, D. C.
- Radio Waves*, Portland, Oregon.
- Radio World of Chicago.*
- Radioist*, Omaha (discontinued).
- Radiohone Weekly*, New York.
- Southern Radio Journal.*
- Western Radio News*, Denver.

Will any librarian having a knowledge of others help us to make complete the list of radio periodicals, our latest magazine craze?

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

JEFFERS, LEROY. The call of the mountains. Rambles among the mountains and canyons of the United States and Canada.

This book by an active librarian is one of the notable publications of the year. It will rank with the best mountaineering literature and its pictures are wonderfully good. How one man could in a short lifetime cover so much territory and find time to be head of a busy library department, and also write a book like this, is a mystery to us. We have always been thrilled by mountain scenery, and such a volume as Mr. Jeffers has issued will be a joy to all lovers of mountains, and we hope it will be the means of making other enthusiasts. Nothing in this world can so uplift a man as communion with nature, on her mountain peaks, and in her glorious valleys.

Mr. Jeffers covers Canada and the Northwest, Colorado, California, Utah, and Arizona, and touches on the Kentucky caves, the Eastern scenic regions, including mention of our Massachusetts rugged and beautiful coast.

While the mountaineer will keenly appreciate such a book, and immediately add it to his library, we believe the people who do not climb, and cannot travel, will find most interesting reading here, and so get acquainted with the wonderful scenery of our country.

New York, Dodd, Mead & Co., 1922. 282 pages, illustrated. $5.00.

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS. Good stories for great birthdays. One of Miss Olcott's incomparable collections of stories, a companion volume for "Good Stories for Great Holidays." This new book contains two hundred stories about twenty-three famous people, arranged especially for story-telling or reading aloud to children, either in school, library, or home, all the stories being historical and of educational value. In the Appendix are a "Programme of Stories from the History of the United States," and "Story Programme of South America's Struggle for Independence," and there is a full subject-index. A book to be highly recommended to those who have children under their care.

Boston, Houghton, Mifflin Co. 483 pages, illustrated. Cloth. $3.00.

SHAW, CHARLES B. A reading list on biographies. This pamphlet presents a list of biographies chosen, not as usual on account of the person written about, but arranged in groups according to the motive of the person's life. There are eighteen sections or subjects. Some of the divisions are:—Nature Lovers, Self-made Men, Adventurers, The Sea, The Stage, Music, Art, Education, Statesmanship, Royalty.

The publication forms vol. 1, no. 2, of the North Carolina College for Women Extension Bulletin, dated June, 1922, Greensboro, North Carolina.

SMITH, ELVA S. More mystery tales for boys and girls. A companion volume to her "Mystery Tales," in which are collected twenty-nine stories of "ghosts and wizards, of hidden treasure and strange enchantments" by well-known authors. These are all stories that "every child should know," and the book should be in every children's department of public libraries, as well as in homes.

Boston, Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co. 392 pages, illustrated. Cloth. $2.00.

STEARNS, LUTIE E. Essentials in library administration. Third edition revised and enlarged by Ethel F. McCollough. This pamphlet aims to give to the small community, and to the untrained librarian, necessary and essential help in carrying on the library as well as the urgent reasons for its whole-hearted support by its community.

Chicago, A. L. A. Library Handbook Series. 1922. 87 pages.

STEVENSON, BURTON E. The Kingmakers. Another novel by Stevenson is an awaited occurrence. Here we have his latest, a tense story of international intrigue, with a Monte-Carlo setting. Romance, action, adventure; an exiled king, beautiful women, diplomats, and an American heiress, with an American newspaper correspondent in the center of it all.

New York, 1922. Dodd, Mead & Co. 314 pages. $1.90.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. The Boardwalk. We noticed this book in its first edition when it bore the imprint of another publisher. The fact that a new edition has been published at a popular low price shows the continuing popularity of the book. It is a series of short stories with Atlantic City as the setting, — interesting, well told, and true to the rather complex life which such a resort offers to its permanent residents.

New York. A. L. Burt Co. 241 pp. Cloth.

WIDDEMER MARGARET. A minister of grace. We have here a series of stories, rather than a novel, each story bringing out the traits of the old lovable minister, Uncle Andrew Blanton, who can deal wisely, yet kindly, with the knotty problems which beset society.

1922, New York, Harcourt, Brace & Co. 286 pages. $1.75.

WIDDEMER MARGARET. A tree with a bird in it. A little book of parodies in which the versatile author "takes off" in a deliciously humorous vein, fifty-six contemporary poets, showing how they would write of her grackle in the pear tree outside her window. Anyone fond of modern poetry will find this book a joy.

New York, 1922. Harcourt, Brace & Co. 102 pages. $1.50.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. Winona on her own. Another volume in the Camp Fire Girl Series will be welcome to all those who have followed Winona Merriam in her career. After working as counsellor in a girls' camp, we find her in a settlement house in New York City. Girls will find as much interest as ever in following Winona and her friends.

Philadelphia, 1922, J. B. Lippincott Co. 307 pages. $1.75.

GUIDE TO THE USE OF LIBRARIES. A MANUAL FOR COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY STUDENTS, by Margaret Hutchins, Alice S. Johnson, and Margaret S. Williams.

This book is designed as a text-book for college courses in the use of libraries and books. It is a second edition of a manual published in 1920 for the students in the University of Illinois.

There are chapters on general library practice, annotated lists on basic reference works, suggestions on the use of books.

New York, H. W. Wilson Co., 1922. 227 pages. $1.25.

ONE-ACT PLAYS

(A Bibliography)

Compiled by Lester Raines, Assistant Professor of Public Speaking, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, formerly Director of the Pitt Players, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania

This list was first prepared in mimeograph form for my classes in Play Production at the University of Pittsburgh and Iowa State College and was completed during the summer of 1922 in the University of Illinois Library. Miss Anne Boyd of the University of Illinois Library School faculty first suggested the compilation of such a list for general use. The list which follows is not intended to be select, but complete, with the exception of paper-bound plays handled by such play publishers as Samuel French and Walter H. Baker. The cheapest and best edition is listed in all cases where there are more than one edition of the same collection. Only those longer plays which chance to be included in the volumes of one-act plays are included. All plays are in one act unless otherwise indicated. The prices given are taken from publishers' catalogs. The numbers after each title indicate the number of characters: (m—male; f—female; j—juvenile; b—boy, and g—girl).

SELECT LIST OF REFERENCES ON PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Compiled by Florence C. Bell, Librarian of the U. S. Bureau of Efficiency PART V

SOCIETIES

66. American society of international law. Conference of American teachers of international law, held at Washington, D. C., April 23-25, 1914. Washington, B. S. Adams, 1914. 83 pp.
The Preface states, "The conference of teachers was held . . . in order to consider what measures, if any, could properly be taken to arouse a greater interest in international law where taught in American institutions of learning; to secure its introduction in American institutions of learning where it is not taught; to call attention to its importance to lawyers in the practice of their profession; and to suggest the advisability of a knowledge of its principles for admission to the bar; and to show, finally, the necessity of an understanding of the subject by the public at large, which in a democracy such as ours determines in the ultimate resort the foreign policy of the United States."
67. American society of international law. Proceedings. v. 1-. 1907-.
This society was organized June 2, 1905. Its constitution was adopted January 12, 1906. Article II of the Constitution declares, "The object of this society is to foster the study of international law and promote the establishment of international relations on the basis of law and justice. For this purpose it will co-operate with other societies in this and other countries having the same object." A sketch of the history of the organization of the society is given in the proceedings of the first annual meeting, April 19 and 20, 1907.
Annual meetings have been held in Washington, D. C., from the year 1907 through 1917. Among the subjects discussed at the eleventh annual meeting in 1917 were: The effect of democracy on international law; The status of armed merchantmen; Some economic considerations of international organizations;—International organization—Constitution of a legislative body; International organization—Judicial; International organization—Executive and administrative.
The Proceedings are now published for the American Society of International Law by the Oxford university press, New York City.
68. *Carnegie endowment for international peace. Year book. 1911-.
This association was founded December 14, 1910. The year book for 1911 includes statement of organization and work of the Division of Inter-course and Education, Division of Economics and History, and Division of International Law. The following numbers have been published: 1911, 1912, 1913-1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919.
69. *Institute of international law. Resolutions of the Institute of international law dealing with the law of nations, with an historical introduction and explanatory notes; collected and translated under the supervision of, and edited by, J. B. Scott. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1916, 265 pp.
"The Institute of International Law is an exclusively scientific association without official character. Its object is to aid the growth of international law." Constitution of the Institute, Article I. "The first meeting of the Institute was held in Ghent in 1873, eleven founders were present, twenty-three others could not come to the meeting but adhered to the project . . . and were declared to be members." Introduction.
- "The compilation contains, in addition to an historical introduction . . . the constitution and by-laws of the Institute, a list of members and associates thereof, past and present, and the several resolutions of the Institute dealing with the law of nations. . . . Preliminary to the text of each resolution, the editor has given a brief but useful sketch of the history thereof in the various sessions of the Institute, with full references to the Annuaire." Review, by C. C. Hyde, A. J. I. L., v. 11: 900-901, 1917.
70. International law association. Report of the 28th conference, held in Madrid, October 1-6, 1913. London, Richard Flint & co., 1914. 668 pp.
A sketch of the International Law Association, its object, origin, and work, and the Constitution are included in this report of the association. It was organized in 1873 as the Association for the Reform and Codification of the law of nations. In 1895 the name was changed to International Law Association. The first conference was held in Brussels in 1873. Since that time conferences have been held in various cities. The headquarters of the association is in London.
71. Scott, James Brown. The American institute of international law, its declaration of the rights and duties of nations. Washington, American institute of international law, 1916. 125 pp.
The American Institute of International Law was founded October 12, 1912; inaugurated December 29, 1915; and held its first session in the City of Washington, January 6, 1916.
"The American Institute of International Law is an unofficial scientific association. It proposes: 1. To give precision to the general principles of international law as they now exist; 2. To study questions of international law . . . ; 3. To discover a method of codifying the general or specific principles of international law . . . ; 4. To aid in bringing about the triumph of the principles of justice and of humanity which should govern the relations between peoples . . . ; 5. To organize the study of international law along truly scientific and practical lines . . . ; 6. To contribute . . . toward the maintenance of peace . . . ; 7. To increase the sentiment of fraternity among the Republics of the American Continent." Constitution, Article II.
"The American Institute of International Law, which met at Washington in connection with and under the auspices of the Second Pan American Scientific Congress, adopted on January 6, 1916, a Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Nations. The declaration differs from other projects of a like kind in that it is not based . . . upon philosophical principles, but is based exclusively upon decisions of the Supreme court of the United States." Foreword.

TREATIES

72. Butler, Charles Henry. The treaty-making power of the United States. N. Y., Banks law publishing co., 1902. 2 v.
Contains an exhaustive discussion of the treaty-making power of the United States as a nation, an historical review of the treaty-making power of the United States, and the judicial decisions affecting the treaty-making power of the United States, its extent and application.
A complete collection of the treaties and conventions, and reciprocal regulations at present subsisting between Great Britain and foreign powers; and of the laws, decrees, orders in council, etc., concerning the same; so far as they relate to commerce and navigation, the slave trade, postoffice communications, copyright, etc.; and to the privileges and interests of the subjects of the high contracting parties. Compiled from authentic documents. London, 1840—.

The latest volume published is v. 27, 1917.

The first volume of this collection was compiled by Lewis Hertslet. The cover title of the set is: Hertslet's Commercial Treaties.

73. Crandall, Samuel Benjamin. Treaties, their making and enforcement. 2d ed. Washington, Byrne, 1916. 663 pp.

Discusses treaty making in the United States prior to the Constitution, the making and execution of treaties under the Constitution, the treaty making of foreign states, and the operation of treaties as between states. Appendix I gives a digest of decisions of American courts construing treaties, arranged by countries and treaties. Appendix II gives the following forms: The United States—Full power to sign a treaty, Resolution of the Senate advising and consenting to the ratification, Ratification by the President, Protocol of Exchange of ratifications, Proclamation by the President; Great Britain—Ratification by the King; France—Ratification by the President.

74. Gt. Brit. Foreign office. British and foreign state papers. 1841—.

The latest volume published is v. 110, 1916.

This compilation contains decrees, notifications, treaties, etc., relating to the foreign affairs of all nations. It is now published annually. The first volume covers the years 1812-1814.

"This publication is intended to comprise the principal documents which have been made public, relating to the political and commercial affairs of nations, and to their relations with each other, from the termination of the war in 1814 to the latest period." Advertisement in volume one.

75. Oakes, Augustus Henry, and Robert B. Mowat, eds. The great European treaties of the nineteenth century, with an introduction by Sir H. Erle Richards. Oxford, The Clarendon press, 1918. 403 pp.

Contents: The restoration of Europe; The independence of Greece; The kingdom of Belgium; Turkey and the Powers of Europe; The Danish Duchies; The union of Italy; Austria and Prussia; The Grand Duchy of Luxemburg; The Franco-German war; Turkey, Russia, and the Balkan States; The Triple Alliance.

"The scope of the book is limited... to treaties between the nations of Europe, and to treaties between those nations from 1815 onwards. . . . The aim of the authors is to present an historical summary of the international position at the time of each treaty; to state the points at issue and the contentions of the parties; and so to make readily accessible the materials on which international lawyers have to work. For this reason the pure law-making treaties have been omitted; the Hague conventions, for instance, speak for themselves, and in their construction the jurist needs little help from general history. A special chapter has been written on diplomatic forms and procedure with regard to treaties, and this must take rank as a high authority on these points." Introduction.

76. Phillipson, Coleman. Termination of war and treaties of peace. N. Y., Dutton, 1916. 486 pp.

"The work is, on the one hand, a comparative and analytical study, based for the most part on original documents, and accompanied throughout by critical observations founded on what I conceive to be the fundamental principles of international law and general jurisprudence; and, on the other hand, a synthetic presentation of conclusions derived from such analysis and application of first principles." Preface.

77. U. S. Treaties, etc. Treaties, conventions, international acts, protocols and agreements between the United States of America and other powers, 1776-1909, comp. by William M. Malloy. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1910. 2 v.

"This compilation . . . contains treaties, conventions, international acts, important protocols and agreements by exchange of notes, whether in force or not, to which the United States has been a party from 1776 to and including the year 1909, together with other material pertaining to treaties, a chronological list of treaties by countries, etc." Preface.

- Supplement, 1913, comp. by Garfield Charles. v. 3. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1913.

"This compilation . . . embraces the treaties conventions, international acts, protocols, and agreements to which the United States has been a party since January 1, 1910, down to and including the session of Congress ending March 4, 1913." Preface.

78. U. S. Dept. of state. Catalogue of treaties, 1814-1918. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1919. 716 pp.

"The catalogue cannot claim to be complete either in regard to the treaties listed or to the text references. But a special effort has been made to emphasize the period after 1900.

"The treaties from 1814 to 1918 are arranged in a chronological list with information as to the time and place of signature and of ratification, the signatory powers, the treaty collections where the text may be found, with the language of the text, as well as cross-references to later treaties which abrogate, modify, or supersede the treaty in question. The text references for treaties since 1914 are necessarily very incomplete.

"The appendix contains a few of the most important treaties before 1914, as well as the early treaties referred to in the main list. The index consists of two parts, an index by countries and an index of agreements of a general international character. . . . There is a separate list of general inter-American agreements." Preface.

79. U. S. Dept. of state. Papers relating to the foreign relations of the United States, with the annual message of the President. Washington, Govt. print. off. 1862—.

The latest volume published contains the address of the President of December 2, 1913.

This is an official compilation, arranged alphabetically by name of country. A list of papers, in chronological order, with subjects of correspondence, and an alphabetical index are given.

The cover title is: Foreign relations of the United States.

SPECIAL TOPICS

80. Atherley-Jones, Llewellyn Archer. Commerce in war. London, Methuen, [1907]. 654 pp.

Contents: Contraband; Blockade; Continuous voyage; Carriage of property at sea; Right of search; Formalities of visit and search; Capture and condemnation; Formalities of capture; Recapture and rescue.

"The purpose of this work is to provide a full exposition of the rules of international law which govern the commercial relations of the subjects of neutral and belligerent states." Preface.

81. Bentwich, Norman. The Declaration of London. London, E. Wilson, Sweet & Maxwell, 1911. 179 pp.

Contents: Introduction; Commentary on the Declaration of London — Blocade, Contraband, Unneutral service, Destruction of neutral prizes, Transfer to neutral flag, Enemy character, Convoy, Resistance to search, Compensation, Final provisions. Appendices: A. Text of the Declaration in French and English; B. Text of the Hague Convention for the Establishment of an International Prize Court; C. Text of the Declaration of Paris; D. Text of the Naval Prize Bill, 1910, Parts I-III.

"In this edition of the Declaration I have endeavoured to explain its contents as a whole and in detail, and to correct some erroneous opinions about the changes which it would introduce into our prize law." Preface.

- 82.*Fenwick, Charles G. The neutrality laws of the United States. Washington, Carnegie endowment for international peace, 1913. 201 pp.

"The present study of the neutrality laws of the United States has a threefold object in view: to show the traditional policy of the United States with respect to neutrality laws, to state the precise scope of those laws, and to criticise them according to the standard of international law." Preface.

83. Foster, John W. A century of American diplomacy. Boston, Houghton, Mifflin co., [c1900]. 497 pp.

An excellent brief description of the foreign relations of the United States, 1776-1876. The appendix gives a list of the Secretaries of State and dates each held office.

84. Higgins, Alexander Pearce. Defensively-armed merchant ships and submarine warfare. London, Stevens and sons, 1917. 56 pp.

The Appendices contain The United States' first Memorandum on the status of armed merchant vessels of 19th September, 1914; The United States' Second Memorandum of 25th March, 1916; and The British Admiralty Instructions to captains of defensively-armed merchant ships.

85. Higgins, Alexander Pearce. War and the private citizen. London, P. S. King & son, 1912. 200 pp.

Contents: The laws of war in relation to the private citizen; Hospital ships and the carriage of passengers and crews of destroyed prizes; Newspaper correspondents in naval warfare; The conversion of merchant-ships into warships; The opening by belligerents to neutrals of closed trade.

"It is therefore of great importance that the many important questions of international law which are left undecided should be carefully studied and investigated before the meeting of the next Hague Conference, and one main object of these studies to which I am writing this introductory note, is to examine some of these questions and to set forth the arguments on both sides." Introductory Note, by Arthur Cohen.

86. Hodges, Henry Green. The doctrine of intervention. Princeton, The Banner press, 1915. 288 pp.

Traces the development of the doctrine of intervention and includes a discussion of intervention in Mexico and interventions in the European war.

"There is probably no other department of international law in which the uncertainty of principles is as marked or, the differences of opinion amongst commentators as great, as in the questions relating to the doctrine of intervention. . . . Mr. Hodges has done a real service in undertaking a careful historical analysis of the question, and in combining therewith a critical discussion of the legal principles involved." Foreword, by L. S. Rowe.

87. Hogan, Albert Edmond. Pacific blockade. Oxford, The Clarendon press, 1908. 183 pp.

Gives a general discussion of pacific blockade and historical accounts of the various blockades.

88. Latif, Almá. Effects of war on property, with a note on belligerent rights at sea by John Westlake. London, Macmillan, 1909. 152 pp.

"The present volume . . . is a careful and thoughtful examination of the effects of war on property whether it be real, personal, mixed; whether it belong to the enemy or be neutral; whether it be situated upon land or upon the high seas. The view-point of the author is that of Anglo-American jurisprudence. . . . The work is handled clearly, carefully, in the light of principle and authority, adjudged cases are very frequently quoted, and there are numerous references to the works of authority." Review, by J. B. Scott, A. J. I. L., v. 3: 521-2, 1909.

89. Loreburn, Robert T. R. Capture at sea. London, Methuen, [1913?] 179 pp.

Contents: Laws of the sea; Enemy capture; Blockade; Contraband; Mines.

"My endeavour has been to show that commerce must necessarily suffer greatly in time of war under the present confusion and unreasonableness of the law, and that the dangers to commerce will neither prevent wars nor bring them to an end. On the contrary, they will only tend to extend the area of future wars by provoking nations which desire to be neutral." Preface.

90. Moore, John Bassett. History and digest of the international arbitrations to which the United States has been a party. Washington, Govt. print. off., 1898. 6 v.

A valuable compilation. The appendices contain the treaties relating to the arbitrations, and historical and legal notes. Volume 6 contains maps.

91. Moore, John Bassett. The principles of American diplomacy. N. Y., Harper, [c1918]. 477 pp.

Contents: Introduction; The beginnings; Freedom of the seas; Fisheries questions; The contest with commercial restrictions; Non-intervention and the Monroe doctrine; The doctrine of expatriation; International arbitration; The territorial expansion of the United States; Pan Americanism; Influence and tendencies.

An interesting discussion of the fundamental principles by which the diplomacy of the United States has been governed.

92. Moore, John Bassett. A treatise on extradition and interstate rendition. Boston, Boston book co., 1891. 2 v.

"It is one of the objects of the present work, by the presentation of judicially approved forms as well as by the exposition of what the courts have decided in respect to particular questions, to minimize the chances of error in technical matters. At the same time, it is believed that general principles of constitutional and of international law have not been neglected; and an effort has been made to trace their evolution and to illustrate their meaning and application by a laborious investigation of original records from the time of the Revolution. In this way much new historical matter has been obtained, which the author ventures to hope may prove both interesting and instructive. The law in foreign countries has been set forth with as great fulness as was thought desirable in a treatise written with especial reference to the United States. In accordance, however, with the practical design of the work, a chapter of considerable length has been devoted to the law in Canada, in which country, as in the United States, the investigation of the question of criminality is committed to judicial magistrates." Preface.

- 93 Phillipson, Coleman. The international law and custom of ancient Greece and Rome. London, Macmillan, 1911. 2 v.

An interesting discussion of the concept and practice of international law by the Greeks and the Romans. Among the subjects treated are the Greek city-state system, the treatment of foreigners, naturalization, ambassadors, treaties, colonies and their relationship to the mother-country, and rules governing the waging of war.

"It has . . . been my constant aim . . . to bring out the juridical side of the subject, rather than to trace elaborately its historical development." Preface.

94. Reinsch, Paul S. Public international unions. Boston, Ginn, 1911. 191 pp.

Contents: The new internationalism; The development and organization of international unions — Communication, Economic interests, Sanitation and prison reform, Police powers, Scientific purposes; Special and local purposes; The international union of American republics; The administrative law of the Hague tribunal; International administrative law and national sovereignty; International unions and war.

"The relations between independent states have been, during recent times, assuming such a character that our traditional ideas of international law are in need of revision; or it might be better to say that we are witnessing processes and developments in international life which are adding new areas to the domain of international law. Such, for instance, is the rapid growth of international procedure in extradition, in the presentation of claims, and especially in arbitration. Another important new phase of the subject is the organization and administration of public unions in which certain economic, social, or scientific interests are dealt with on the basis of world-wide relations. The technical and industrial advance which characterizes our era has already brought about an internationalism, which is slowly and carefully being embodied in the forms of political organization. It is the latter subject to which the present volume is intended to afford an introduction." Preface.

95. Roxburgh, Ronald Francis. International conventions and third states. London, N. Y., Longmans, 1917. 119 pp.

"The present monograph on international conventions and third states deals with an important problem which hitherto has nowhere been made the subject of thorough research. And there is no agreement among those writers on international law who have given their attention to the matter at all. A number of them, in forming their opinion, are influenced by the municipal law under which they live and work. . . . Under these circumstances the method which Mr. Roxburgh had to pursue in his research was a foregone conclusion. He had, in the first instance, to give a very brief outline of the several municipal laws, in so far as they deal with the question of contracts and third parties. He had, in the second instance, to give a critical summary of the opinions of those writers who have previously dealt with the problem of international conventions and third states." Editorial Introduction, by L. Oppenheim.

96. Satow, Ernest M. A guide to diplomatic practice. London, Longmans, 1917. 2 v.

Contents: v. 1, Diplomacy; Immunities of the head of a foreign state; The minister for foreign affairs; Precedence among states and similar matters; Titles and precedence among sovereigns; Maritime honours; The language of diplomatic intercourse, and forms of documents; Credentials and full-powers; Counsels to diplomatists; Latin and French phrases; of diplomatic agents in general; The right of legation; The selection of diplomatic agents; Persona grata; Diplomatic agent proceeding to his post;

Classification of diplomatic agents; Extra-territoriality; Immunities of diplomatic agents; Exemption from taxation; Immunities of the residence of a diplomatic agent; Right of diplomatic agent to the exercise of his religion; Position of diplomatic agent in regard to third states; The diplomatic body; Termination of a mission.

v. 2, Congresses; Conferences; Treaties and other international compacts; Good offices; Mediation; Arbitration.

"The intention was to produce a work which would be of service alike to the international lawyer, the diplomatist, and the student of history. For this reason not only the legal side of diplomacy, but also its practical side had constantly to be kept in view, an outline of all the important congresses and conferences had to be included, and the different kinds of international compacts had to be treated in some detail." Preface, by L. Oppenheim.

97. Sayre, Francis Bowes. Experiments in international administration. N. Y., Harper, [c1919]. 201 pp.

Three types of international organs are discussed: international organs with little or no power, such as the Universal Postal Union; international organs with power of control over local situations, such as the European Danube Commission, the Suez Canal Commission, etc.; international organs with power of control over the member states, such as the International Sugar Commission and the International River Commissions.

- 98.* Scott, James Brown. An international court of justice. N. Y., Oxford university press. 1916. 108 pp.

The prefatory note states: "This little volume . . . is intended to show the progress already made in creating the international tribunal."

"This might be called a companion volume to the author's The Status of the International Court of Justice. It is a reprint of a letter and memorandum prepared and submitted by Dr. Scott on January 12, 1914, to the Netherland Minister for Foreign Affairs, which, recognizing the great difficulties in the way of establishing a court for all the nations of the world, propose the constitution of the court by a limited number of Powers as a first step toward a world court." Review, A. J. I. L., v. 11: 915, 1917.

- 99.* Scott, James Brown. The status of the international court of justice, with an appendix of addresses and official documents. N. Y., Oxford university press, 1916. 93 pp.

The Preface states: "It seems to the officers of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes that the time has come for a somewhat elaborate account of the present status of the proposal, so that the partisans of judicial settlement shall be informed not only as to the original proposition, but as to the steps which have been taken to realize it."

100. Smith, Frederic Edwin. The destruction of merchant ships under international law. London, J. M. Dent & sons, [1917]. 110 pp.

Contents: Enemy merchantmen — Visit and search, and resistance thereto; The relation of seizure to ownership, The destruction of enemy merchantmen; Neutral merchantmen — Under the customary law, Under the Declaration of London, Rules and practice in the present war.

"The author of more than one valuable treatise on international law, and now holding the office of Attorney-General of Great Britain, has undertaken to set forth in brief compass the law upon a subject which, together with contraband and blockade, has been the very center of belligerent and neutral controversy in the present war." Review, by C. G. Fenwick, A. J. I. L., v. 11: 901-3, 1917.

101. Spaight, James Molony. Aircraft in war. London, Macmillan, 1914. 172 pp.

Contents: Introductory; References to aircraft in the Hague legislation; The codes proposed by M. Fauchille and others; The sovereignty or freedom of the air; Belligerent entry of neutral atmosphere; Distinguishing marks for aircraft and their crews; The seizure, confiscation, and destruction of private enemy and neutral aircraft; The treatment of private enemy aircraft in a belligerent's territory at the outbreak of war; Aircraft and the Alabama rule; The treatment of civilian enemy and neutral airmen; The relation of aerial law to existing conventions; Some suggested modifications of the laws of land and maritime war; Isolated enemy airmen and attacks by non-military populations.

102. Upton, Francis H. The law of nations affecting commerce during war, with a review of the jurisdiction, practice and proceedings of prize courts. N. Y., Voorhies, 1862. 304 pp.

This book was written in response to the following formal letter: "It seems certain that the unfortunate civil conflict in which our country is engaged, will call into exercise to no inconsiderable extent the prize jurisdiction of our Courts of Admiralty. If this be so, a work which shall include a summary of the practice and proceedings in prize courts, will be of great value to the profession and to suitors before the prize courts of the country." From Letter from Sam. R. Betts, Judge of the District Court of the United States . . . in Introductory Correspondence.

103. *Wehberg, Hans. The problem of an international court of justice, tr. by C. G. Fenwick. Oxford, The Clarendon press; London, N. Y., Milford, 1918. 251 pp.

(Lettered on cover: The work of the Hague, v. 2. Carnegie endowment for international peace.)

"The undersigned . . . commends this volume to the interested public as the best statement of the problems connected with the necessity and organization of an international court which it has been his fortune to read, and as calculated to advance the cause of judicial and therefore of peaceable settlement of justiciable disputes between and among the nations." Introductory note, by J. B. Scott.

104. Willoughby, Westel W. Foreign rights and interests in China. Baltimore, Johns Hopkins press, 1920. 594 pp.

"The purpose of this volume is to provide a statement of the rights of foreigners and the interests of foreign states in China as they are to be found stated in treaties with or relating to China or in other documents of an official or quasi-official character. Viewed from the other side, the account will exhibit the limitations under which the Chinese government is compelled to act not only with regard to matters of international obligation but as to matters which, in countries more fortunately circumstanced, are of purely domestic concern." Preface.

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY was established in 1897 as a medium for the publication of articles, bibliographies, reading lists, and other material helpful to libraries. The "Department of Applied Library Economy," "The Principal Contents of the Library Press," and the "Dramatic Index" are regular features, as is also the record of "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World." A portrait of some well-known librarian or bibliographer is given in each issue.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited, and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired.

Address

THE F. W. FAXON COMPANY,
83 Francis Street, Boston 17.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

We print in this issue the annual index to library reference lists, which has been a feature of the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY since 1901, and which many librarians find most helpful. The fact that the list is compiled by the Providence Public Library is assurance of its accuracy and completeness.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS

Don't forget "Faxon Service" when it comes time to renew your magazine subscriptions. Let Mr. Faxon make you an estimate from the only agency which carries a stock of back files.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

We wish to call special attention to two new books recently published by the F. W.

Faxon Co., which we know all librarians will be glad to consider.

"Shakespearean Oracles" by Mrs. B. B. Kaiser is a new kind of Shakespeare handbook, covering the short quotable sayings of the great poet, arranged and indexed for instant reference by writers or public speakers. It will be a welcome gift book also for all Shakespeare lovers. Will you help us to reach such people by sending the name of the president of your local Shakespeare Club?

"A List of Series and Sequels for Juvenile Readers," in a new edition by May G. Quigley, gives libraries an up-to-date revision of one of our most useful reference publications. The order of issue and the titles of these series stories can here be found quickly and the book will be needed wherever work with children is done.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Mr. Samuel H. Ranck, librarian of Grand Rapids (Mich.) Public Library since 1904, is so well known to most members of the American Library Association that our task of introducing him to the few is a light one. He was graduated from Franklin and Marshall College in 1892, and received his A. M. degree there in 1895. He was even, while in college, an assistant in the library, and on graduation went to the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore, where he soon became assistant librarian, and left in 1904 to take charge in Grand Rapids of the building up of a public library. His success has been notable. His help is constantly sought in library matters throughout the country, he has made the Grand Rapids library one of those progressive institutions, reaching out into the whole city with its good work. He is a life member of the A. L. A., and has held many important committee positions. He is a constant contributor to the library periodicals and other magazines.

We give an excellent picture of him as frontispiece to this issue.

MAGAZINE NOTES

American Review, vol. 1, no. 1, Jan.-Feb. 1923, bi-monthly, octavo, is a new educational, political, industrial, psychological, philosophical, religious, scientific, and art periodical, the successor of School and Home Education, which died in June, 1922. The initial issue is a worthy one. $3.00 a year.

Chemistry and Industry, official organ of the Federal Council for Pure and Applied Chemistry, London, weekly, started January 5, 1923, as vol. 42, no. 1. It is published by the Society of Chemical Industry long so well known for its Journal, and its Abstracts. The cause of the first issue of Chemistry and Industry being called vol. 42, is found in the fact that The Journal of the Society of Chemical Industry begins at its 42d volume on the same date, and because this new "Chemistry and Industry" (called on its covers, "Chemistry and Industry Review") will also form a part of the regular issues of the Journal, which changing from a fortnightly to a weekly January 5, 1923, will contain also a section of Transactions and a section of Abstracts. Thus we have the Journal, with its three sections bound up in each issue, weekly, at the old price of the fortnightly (£4.4.0 if ordered through an agent, but only £2.10.0 to American libraries and universities which place their subscriptions direct with the society, thus being classed as members and paying the members' rate). And we also have the valuable Review section issued as a separate magazine for £1.5.0 post free, called Chemistry and Industry, beginning with vol. 42, no. 1, and becoming the official organ of the Federal Council of Pure and Applied Chemistry; a body made up of representatives of The Chemical Society, The Society of Chemical Industry, The Institute of Chemistry, The Faraday Society, The Society of Dyers and Colourists, The Iron and Steel Institute, Ceramic Society, Biochemical Society, Institute of Metals, Royal Agricultural Society, Mineralogical Society, Society of Glass Technology, Royal Photographic Society, and others. We recommend and will place subscriptions to Chemistry and Industry for any libraries desiring such an authentic weekly résumé of this broad field, $5.75 per year.

The Children's Hour. Here we have a new monthly for children (vol. 1, no. 1, April, 1923, $3.25 a year) with an idea back of it that will appeal to librarians and parents. It will not depict the naughty child, and will eliminate any suggestion of cruelty, fear, or sickness. It will uplift, educate, amuse, and will tend to calm the budding mind. There is surely room for a good children's periodical, and we endorse this one as worthy of your support — a good magazine for good children.

Collectors' Digest. In our August, 1922, issue, we asked someone to tell us how vol. 4, no. 3, could be whole no. 6. The publisher wrote us that vols. 1, 2, and 3 each were complete in one number for vol. 4 began with whole no. 4. See how easy it is when you know how! Collectors' Digest, Nov.-Dec. 1922, is before us now and is vol. 4, no. 9, whole no. 12, but look inside and behold we have October, 1922, vol. 4, no. 8! Now please tell us, before all our New England snow is gone, how one issue can be two numbers. That's harder than how one volume can be one number. Mr. A. H. Pike, publisher, is a collector of varieties by profession. We hope he's collecting a file of Collectors' Digest.

Educational Review, having changed its color to a bright blue recently, has with January, 1923, increased in size, so it is now 7 x 10 inches. It's only bad habit is going out of print before we all get our quota of copies.

Engineering and Contracting was "contracted" from 9 x 12 to 6 x 9 with October 1, 1922, but, see what a kind-hearted publisher can do! In order that readers who desire may bind up vol. 58, the reading pages from October 4th to the end of the year will be furnished in the old size on request. Now that is what we call thoughtful. But here is a delightful variety, too, beginning with the new size. The first issue of each month will be devoted to Roads and Streets, the second to Waterworks, the third to Railways, and the fourth to Buildings. Each of these weekly issues had been entered at the post-office as a monthly, with the same volume number, but paged separately until the end of 1922. With the new volume at the beginning of 1923 the continuity of paging will be resumed, or the four issues of each month can be assembled as one volume. At the end of the half-year an index covering all four issues will be issued.

An index based on the 9 x 12 size will be published at the end of 1922.

"Previous to adopting the 6 x 9 size, October 4th, we published vol. 1, nos. 1-3, of Roads and Streets, vol. 1, nos. 1-4, of Waterworks News. Beginning October 4th, in addition to the regular issues of Engineering and Contracting, we started publishing as supplements to these, four free circulation magazines, Road and Street News, Waterworks News, Railway Construction News, and Building News. We disregarded the first three numbers of Waterworks News and the first four numbers of Road and Street News issued prior to October 4th, and started the new issues as vol. 1, no. 1. The reading pages of the four supplements are selected from those of the corresponding issues of Engineering and Contracting. These four supplements will be paged separately, and no index will be issued for them."

This very clear explanation given by the editor will, we think, give all our readers food for thought. We wonder no one thought of such a nice plan before. So simple, too.

Gaylord's Triangle now has two sides. One is Gaylord's Triangle, vol. 2, no. 6, February 1, 1923, the other is Gaylord's Triangle, School Library Edition, vol. 1, no. 2, February 15, 1923.

"Two magazines with but a single name," the contents of these two we have on our table look lots alike, but are not, if you put on your spectacles. Take the front pages showing the march of the Gaylord Bros. to prosperity; we thought the two were exactly alike until we got out our ruler and measured 'em.

Business surely did jump under Miss L. A., but look what F. B. S.'s coming did on the 1922 level.

Our issues are defective, they had two holes punched out of each. But they're all free, and worth the asking.

Literary Digest sometimes nods, like other less husky fellows. Vol. 71, nos. 1, 2, and 3, October 1, 8, 15, 1921, were numbered as vol. 70, nos. 14, 15, 16, when we all know there are but 13 issues to one volume. Then vol. 72, nos. 13 and 14, were published instead of vol. 73, nos. 1 and 2, as vol. 72, only had 12 issues to complete it. "Ain't nature wonderful!"

Miss Rutherford's Scrap-Book, Valuable Information About the South, is the name of a new little magazine each number of which is a whole volume of some 20 pages, octavo.

Vol. 1 is January, 1923, vol. 2, February, vol. 3, March. She (Mildred Lewis Rutherford) calls it "a monthly pamphlet, 10 times a year," $2.50. It is a Confederate publication.

Nature Magazine, an illustrated monthly, with popular articles about nature, is a newcomer which we welcome. The American Nature Association membership is $2.00, including this beautiful and very instructive magazine of quarto size. We urge every library to let us place a subscription from January, 1923, [no. 1]. We predict that many would-be owners of a complete set will not subscribe in time. Hurry!

New York Clipper got "trimmed" a bit when December 20, 1922, came out as vol. 69, when all the rest of the year had been labeled vol. 70.

Proletarian is a magazine known to few. Let's get better acquainted. Vol. 3, no. 11, is December, 1921; January, 1922, was omitted; February, 1922, is vol. 4, no. 1; March, 1922, is vol. 5, no. 3; and then regularly up to vol. 5, no. 11, November, 1922; December, 1922, "isn't"; January, 1923, is vol. 6, no. 1. Directions to the binder:—bind the months of 1922 in order, and letter the books vols. 4-5. Chicago papers please copy.

Quarterly Journal of the New York State Historical Association, vol. 2, is composed of four issues, as one would perhaps expect from its name, but a title and index is issued loose in no. 4, reading "Proceedings of the New York State Historical Association with the Quarterly Journal, vol. 19." Mike and Ike they look alike, and a cloth case is provided for binding, labeled, "Proceedings of the 21st annual meeting, vol. 19." It's big enough to take a fifth number, but we are assured it's just right for the four, if we will but try it on our binder.

The Reference Shelf has set up a new style: vol. 1, nos. 2 to 5 inclusive, are one and all dated December, 1922.

Revue d'Histoire et de Philosophie religieuses, is published every two months in Strasbourg, France. It has articles covering the various aspects of the science of religion, as well as bibliographical notices and more extended reviews of the most important books. We recommend all libraries with a religious department to subscribe. The F. W. Faxon Co. are sole agents for the United States. Price, $2.00 a year ($1.50 to ministers and theological students).

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE ON AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF ECONOMIC ENTOMOLOGISTS

American Association of Economic Entomologists was first known as the Association of Economic Entomologists. First constitution, in Canadian Entomologist 21: 166, 168, 1889. Notice of first meeting, in Canadian Entomologist, 21: 219, 1889, also in Insect Life, vol. 2, no. 6. Second annual meeting, in Insect Life, vol. 3, no. 5. Third annual meeting, in Insect Life, vol. 4, nos. 1-2. Fourth annual meeting, in Insect Life, vol. 5, no. 2; also in Canadian Entomologist, 25: 201-212, 1892. Fifth annual meeting, in Insect Life, vol. 6, no. 2; also in Canadian Entomologist, 25: 263-271, 1893. Sixth annual meeting, in Insect Life, vol. 7, no. 2; also in Canadian Entomologist, 26: 265-274, 1894. Seventh to Nineteenth meetings, in U. S. Bureau of Entomology Bulletin, new series, nos. 2, 1895, 6, 1896, 9, 1897, 17, 1898, 20, 1899, 26, 1900, 31, 1902, 37, 1902, 40, 1903, 46, 1904, 52, 1905, 60, 1906, 67, 1907. Twentieth and following Meetings, in Journal of Economic Entomology, vols. 1 to date.

NOTE:—The Entomological Club of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, whose Proceedings may be found in Canadian Entomologist, vol. 21, 1890, and vol. 23, 1891, had no official connection with the American Association of Entomologists, though the activities reported were by practically the same group.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

DAVIS, MARY GOULD. The girls' book of verse. A treasury of old and new poems. This delightful book gives a multitude of poems by the best authors, and they are chosen as the favorites of girls, thus for the first time bringing together in an anthology those which girls have loved to read and hear. There are verses suited to many varieties of temperament. The book is in three parts: "Melody," "The Pipes of Pan," and "Enchantment," and has an index to authors, first lines, and titles.

New York, Frederick A. Stokes Co. 1922. 289 pages. Cloth, $2.00 net.

HUNT, CLARA W. Memoirs of a London Doll, with an introduction by Clara W. Hunt. All young girls will be grateful to Miss Hunt for rescuing this delightful little book from oblivion and making it available to the present generation of children, with all its quaint touches of old London and the queer customs of a bye-gone time nearly a hundred years ago. The publishers have tried to reproduce the original in size and type. Illustrations, some in color, are added.

New York, Macmillan Co. 1922. 174 pages. $1.25.

KAISER, BEZA BOYNTON. Shakespearean Oracles, a collection of the most quotable short sayings from the Great Dramas; designed especially as a handbook for public speakers, debaters, and writers. Of the multitude of Shakespeare books, this newcomer touches a new angle, and we feel sure there is room for it. We may be pardoned for including among "books by librarians" this one compiled by a librarian's mother, with an introduction by librarian Asariah S. Root of Oberlin College. All the witty sayings, proverbs, epigrams, humble old saws, in fact all the short quotable phrases and sentences are here gleaned for ready reference, arranged under the three general headings: Proverbs, Familiar quotations, Epithets, expletives, and catch phrases. Reference to play, act, and scene is given, and an index is added by which any quotation can be at once located.

Boston, F. W. Faxon Co. 1923. 142 pages. Cloth, $1.75.

KRAUSE, LOUISE B. Better business libraries, Talks with executives. The chapters of this useful little book were originally printed as a series of articles in "Trained Men," a monthly of the International Correspondence Schools, at Scranton, Pennsylvania. This book is a revision and is brought brought up-to-date. It will be invaluable to business executives, and helpful to librarians, both of public and business libraries. How to find and put to the best use printed business information is well covered, and no one more competent than Miss Krause, with her long experience with H. M. Bylesby & Co., could have been found to write such a handbook.

Chicago, The Indexers Press. 1922. 98 pages. Cloth, $5.00.

MOSHER, MARION DIX. More toasts, jokes, stories, and quotations. This book supplements and brings up-to-date "The Toaster's Handbook" issued some years ago by the same publishers. It is arranged by subjects and will be invaluable to after-dinner speakers, in fact to all who must make addresses for no speech is complete without its apropos stories. We hope all libraries will call special attention to this work which should be owned by every speaker.

New York, H. W. Wilson Co. 1922. 542 pages. Cloth, $1.80.

MUDGE, ISADORE G. New guide to reference books. This work is based on the third edition of "Kroeger's Guide to the Study and Use of Reference Books" as revised by Miss Mudge in 1917. It will be more than welcome to all librarians as a "tool" indispensable to good work. Much new material is here added, and the previous edition thoroughly revised.

Chicago, American Library Association. 1923. Cloth, 278 2-column pages, $3.00.

PEARSON, EDMUND LESTER. Books in black and red. A new book by Mr. Pearson is always hailed with delight by his hosts of reader-friends. This one is a delight, dealing so interestingly with literary hoaxes (in which he admits a share), the joys of hunting in book-shops, the research for curious books. Half his chapters are partly reprints, the rest of the book is new, but we don't think that is any drawback—the reprints we mean—for who cares to dig through the chaff of The Nation or Weekly Review to find the Pearsonian kernels! We like what he says of the Literary Annuals and gift books our fathers-to-be gave our mothers-to-be. We surely agree that indexes are often very good reading, but alas this book hasn't any. A parting admonition: the pages are not really intended by the publisher for blotters; its only his quaint way of getting $3.50 for a 200-page book, from those of the book-buying public who gauge value by thickness,—and an author needs all kinds of purchases to make royalty loom up prettily these days.

New York, Macmillan Co. 1923. 213 pages, $3.50.

QUIGLEY, MAY G. A list of series and sequels for juvenile readers, revised and enlarged from the compilation of Katherine H. Wead. This is "Useful Reference Series," no. 27, and gives in handy form those juveniles which have been issued in series, so that "the next book" in a series may be readily produced in response to the insistent demands made upon the children's librarians. The success of the first edition which has been out-of-print for some time, had caused the publishers to issue this new and up-to-date compilation.

Boston, F. W. Faxon Co. 1923. 63 pages, cloth, $1.35.

From the American Library Association we note the following recent publications:

U. S. GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS (Federal, State, and City) by J. I. Wyer. Revised edition. A Preprint of Chap. 23, Manual of Library Economy. A pamphlet of 40 pages.

GRADED LIST OF STORIES TO TELL OR READ ALOUD, compiled by Harriot E. Hassler and Carrie E. Scott. Fourth edition, revised and enlarged.

39-page pamphlet, 35c; (10 copies 20c. each, 100, 15c. each).

BOOKLIST BOOKS 1922, a selection. A handy selected list of the best books of the year arranged by subject, with an index.

88-page pamphlet, 25c; (10 copies 10%, 50 copies 20%, 100 or more 33½%).

From The H. W. Wilson Co. we have to note the following new publications.

LIST OF SUBJECT HEADINGS FOR SMALL LIBRARIES, edited by Minnie Earl Sears. This book is the result of the insistent demand of small libraries for a less comprehensive list than those hitherto available issued by Library of Congress and the A. L. A. This compilation is based on the lists of subject headings used in nine representative small libraries.

PLAYS FOR AMATEURS, a selected list by S. Marion Tucker, President N. Y. Drama League, 2d edition, revised and enlarged. This useful pamphlet covers One-act plays for men and women, Plays for Men, Plays for Women, Long plays, Plays for outdoor performance, Plays in oriental settings. It has a statement of cost of royalties for producing plays, and a list of addresses to which payment is to be made.

THE REFERENCE SHELF is really a series of monographs, each issue devoted to one subject, and so should have a notice here with other books and pamphlets. Eight issues have so far appeared and ten will constitute volume 1. The publication is for debaters' use and information will be up-to-date. Price per volume $4.50, but separate numbers can be purchased if desired.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF H. G. WELLS' "OUTLINE OF HISTORY"

Compiled by Irene Gentry, Public Library, Kansas City, Mo.

This bibliography gives an author and title list of references, arranged alphabetically by author under the Chapter Subjects. It was compiled from the original English edition, which appeared in twenty-four parts. Additions are made from the one-volume Cassell edition, and the two-volume edition published by Macmillan. When "1 vol. Eng." or "2 vols." are added after an entry these editions are referred to.

An asterisk (*) prefixed to certain lines means "not located in indexes."

RECENT BACK NUMBERS

We have an ever-increasing demand for magazines published within the last five years.

In sending lists of wants we request direct order, if possible, without quotation in advance. Trial order will convince that prices are right. Statement on the list you send that we are to have exclusive opportunity to supply for one or more months will be of great advantage. This insures your getting better results, as such lists we keep before us and hunt numbers not in stock.

"A SERIOUS SITUATION"

"Do you librarians know that all binderies report a most serious shortage of back numbers of magazines? That while you are calling the binder names because he does not return your books he is making frantic, but fruitless, efforts to find missing copies for the incomplete volumes you sent him?"

"Do you know that thousands and thousands of magazines were and are being sent to camp and hospital libraries? That in pre-war days this church or that society made a drive for old paper — 'yes, we want magazines because we get so much for that kind of paper,' and that thousands and thousands of priceless magazines went into the maw of the paper mill?"

"Do you know that in order that your or some other library may have complete files, you have got to have an attic hunt for old magazines? That you have got to watch your binding files of present day magazines, and not let one copy get lost?"

"Do you know that you MUST give this matter your serious attention?"

ADA J. McCARTHY, in Wisconsin Library Bulletin, January, 1920.

We will add, librarians should not rely on their binder for back number service, but write direct to the F. W. FAXON CO., Boston 17, for what they need.
